Juniors Complete Elections

Classes Make Plans

The Junior Class, under the leadership of its new president, Mary-Stuart Dent, has completed its choosing of officers with elections held on November 12. Elected secretary was Ann Adair from Erwin, while Dixie Thomas from Winston-Salem is the new Junior Class treasurer. The class's two Legislative Body representatives are Martha Hardee of Lexington and Shay Pratt-Thomas of Charleston. S. C. Audrey Wall, a Raleigh girl, is the new dance marshal.

All the classes are deciding on money-raising projects to be carried on throughout the year. The Sophomore Class hopes to shine shoes and sell sandwiches. The Freshmen Class will hold its annual Slave Sale and hopes to give a picnic for the Sophomores. The Junior Class is considering many projects, among them their traditional White Elephant Sale.

Y.R.C. Elects Officers

At the November 19 meeting of the Young Republican's Club, the club elected its new officers for the coming year. Clare Lloyd, a senior, was elected to serve as the vice-president. Acting as secretary will be Amy Hardy. The president of the Y.R.C. is Martha Wright.

St. Mary's Upholds Honor Week Honor Defined

Honor Week puts specific emphasis on honor and the importance it plays here at St. Mary's. Its purpose is to help the student to have a better concept of honor in order that she may evaluate her own honor and set higher standards for herself.

Posture Queen Chosen

Su-Su Dixon was selected as the 1963-64 St. Mary's Posture Queen in the traditional Posture Contest. At the same time Linda Connelly was crowned "Slump Queen" by last year's first runner-up, Marilyn Stadler. The contest, which took place in assembly on November 14, was sponsored by the Letter Club.

The six semifinalists, who were chosen by vote of the Hall Council several days before, were Martha Hardee, Su-Su Dixon, Susan Cook, Marilyn Koonce, Jane Williams, and Kinsey Sabiston.

Other contestants chosen by their halls to vie for Posture Queen were Lawton Davis, Ann Hubbard, Marcile Pritchett, Ann Adair, Quiney Stewart, Ibbey Pollard, Susan Ferebee, Frances Leonard, Ella Reese Mayer, Mar-

Held annually, Honor Week, which this year was Nov. 18-22, was filled with a number of events emphasizing honor. Both assembly programs and Chapel were concerned with this important week. At the Tuesday Assembly, Roses Watson, president of the Student Government, and a representative from each class spoke on what honor means to them. Through the ideas of these girls—Mary Quern, senior, Harriet Gilliam, junior, Karen Oetjen, sophomore, and Margaret Stephens, freshman—it is hoped that others can better understand what honor means to them.

Also at this first Assembly of the week, the Honor Council members were introduced, as was its advisor, Mrs. Stoops. At the Thursday assembly, Mrs. James McKee from Raleigh spoke to the school on her interpretation of honor and its importance.

Other signs of Honor Week were the posters in the Covered Way and near the post office, and also the blotters given out by the Circle members with the Honor Code written on the front.

Orchesis Active In Various Projects

Orchesis under the direction of Mrs. Bailey has been planning many activities for the year and has participated in several dance workshops under the direction of renown dancers. Orchesis also recently tapped four new members.

Workshops

On October 31, the dance group went to Duke University to a master dance class which was under the direction of choreographer and dancer Albin Ailey. At Duke they went through several exercises and were then taught a modern jazz dance. The Orchesis and other interested students also went to Chapel Hill Sunday, November 17, to see films on Marcel Marceau, a pantomimist; Martha Graham, a famous dancer; and Jose Limon, also a famous dancer.

New Members

Final tryouts of the Orchesis were held Tuesday, November 19. The new members taken in were Gaye Harris, Jane Williams, Charlotte Smith, and Lawton Davis. These new members along with the old members will present several assembly programs during
