DEAR FLABBY,
Man, I am really bugged - it's my roommate. She's on this unreal diet, and the things she eats are unreal! Like, I mean each to his own thing - she's got the right to dig what she wants to dig, but she has gone too far. The room is full of stuff like cottage cheese, broccoli, and onion soup. She eats all this junk in the room which is why the room smells so fantastically bad! The other night was the absolute end, I mean to tell you. At 3 A.M. I found a grapefruit in my bed - that was some kind of a different experience! And last night she kept asking for some Metrecol in her sleep. Her eating habits have got to split or I will. What do you have to say, man?

HER EATING AIN'T IN TASTE

DEAR E. A. T.,
In this case it has to come to a choice of two things. Would you prefer to have a Mama Cass for a roommate in your 3' x 10' room, or a skinny health food nut? (Can I come to your room for supper tonight? Your roommate's menu sounds better than the cafeteria's.)

FLABBY

DEAR FLABBY,
I have a big problem - it's my roommate. She talks like an Elvis Presley groupie, and she is always making fun of my diet . . .

DEAR FLABBY,
This is my second year at St. Mary's, and I really have a problem. Last year I made good grades easily, but this year my QPR is almost non-existent. It's not that I don't study - it's just that I've lost the knack of making good grades. (I've also lost my sense of humor.) What's going to happen to me next year at Carolina?

SELDOM IN GOOD HUMOR

DEAR S. I. G. H.,
Using my own experience, I have come to the following conclusion. What will happen to you next year at Carolina has got to be a little better than what has happened to you this year at St. Mary's. (Cheer up! Only 45 more days till the Pabst Blue Ribbon, beach bopping, cocoa butter, surfing, life-
