

Marshall Churches in Union Thanksgiving Service.

Union Thanksgiving services were held in the Marshall Methodist Church. Dr. W. E. Finley preached the sermon.

Dr. Finley spoke as follows: "Fundamentals of prosperity according to Roger Babson are to be found not only in big crops, easy money, and such material things, but in those things which the Christian religion gives—faith, honesty, and trust. A chart of religious conditions is made every time a financial chart is made because good or bad times are preceded by great interest or little interest in religion.

The President of Argentine when asked why the United States was more advanced than Argentine said "that the motive of the first settlers was the reason Argentine was settled by Spaniards seeking gold and the Pilgrims came seeking God." Abraham showed faith and trust and honesty. We give thanks that our country has these fundamentals of prosperity but while giving thanks let us cultivate them more and more."

Cream of Thought.

By Amos Clary.

It is the life, not the profession, which counts most for Christ.

It is conduct, not creed, which weighs most on the scales of character.

By training a fisherman may become as cultured and efficient as a lawyer in the service of God.

The geographical center of a cultured Christian life lies in a loving, believing obeying heart.

The church which is not zealously committed to an aggressive avangelistic missionary policy has not learned the first letter in the alphabet of duty.

The church functioning through its public services and other organizations is a straight line between the saving word and the needy soul, the shortest distance between the sinner and his salvation.

The church which has not received a baptism of the Holy Spirit is a powerless church. It may be wealthy and popular. Many another club is that. But a church must be more than a club. It must be the container of divine life and power.
