Local Union Conducts Church Service

A very interesting program was given by "H" union Sunday night, March 27. The devotional was led by Mr. J. Hampton. After the special music, consisting of a vocal solo by Miss Mary Hamby accompanied by Miss Lucile Hamby, the group captain, Miss Vista Stines, took charge.

The discussion of the evening centered on "The House of God." Those taking part were Misses Katherine Roberts, Alma Williams, and Marye Carter; Messrs. Lester Bradley, Glenn Whitt, and Fred Anderson. Mr. Fred Jarvis, president of the union, is to be congratulated for his splendid service with the organizations, which has improved under his guidance.

Declaimers Have Contest

Three declaimers from the McNeil Society and three from the Columbian Society of Mars Hill High School entered into a declamation contest March 16. The winner is to represent the school at Wake Forest later in the spring. Those that represented the former society were Messrs. Rex Brown, Frank Huff, and Grant McDarris; those from the latter were Messrs. Tilson Fleetwood, Lester Bradley, and Floyd Boone. A second contest must be held to break the tie between McDarris and Boone.

Baseball Games

The spectators witnessed an interesting game played between the high school nine against their fathers and several teachers. The combat was very exciting, but the fathers, on account of their being out of practice, were not equal to their excellent opponents. The final score was read 8-12 in favor of the boys.

Another baseball game was enjoyed on Monday, March 28, on the home grounds when Mars Hill High played Burnsville High. There was no competition between the two, for the score will tell that the locals won, 29-2. Thus far the boys have not lost a game, and if the good work keeps up they will come out on top.

Junior-Senior Reception Great Success

On Friday night, April 8, the annual reception was given in honor of the graduating class. As the Seniors entered the high school building, they were met by the President of the Junior class and its honorary member, Miss Geneva Phillips, who gave to each a carnation (class flower). The Juniors ushered the Seniors into the auditorium, which was beautifully decorated in pink and blue crepe paper (Senior colors, pink and white; Junior colors, blue and white). A very interesting program was rendered, consisting of the Juniors' welcome song to their guests, then a hearty response by the Seniors. A duet by two Junior boys followed by six snappy stunts that represented the letters S-E-N-I-O-R added fun to the occasion. After a vocal selection by two Junior girls, the President of the Senior class, Miss Jamie Anderson, expressed in words of appreciation the sentiments that prevailed among the members of her class.

An evening of merriment had already been enjoyed, but a great deal more remained. That pink lemonade and mints was such a delight! Then the block ice cream and cake were served to a jolly group, who declared that they could be able to taste it for weeks afterwards. A request was made that all go outdoors on the back side of the school building, where there were two large bonfires. One can imagine their delight! With two genuine yells came the close of the happy gathering.

MARS HILL GRAD HONORED AT COKER

Louise Wilkins Elected Head of Student Government

Miss Louise Wilkins, affectionately known here as "Sallie," the daughter of Mrs. Wilkins of our faculty, has recently been elected president of the student government at Coker College for 1927-1928. This is only one of the many honors she has received while at Coker; in fact, there has perhaps never been one in that college who has been so favored as she. In the annual statistics for 1926-1927 she was awarded two places: that of the best all-round leader and that of the ideal Coker girl. She is now president of the Junior class, the only girl of the college to have been elected class president for two consecutive years; she is also song and cheer leader for the college, a member of the Student Council, a member of the Y. W. A. cabinet, a member of the Freshman commission, and a member of several scholarship and departmental clubs. Her former teachers will be pleased to learn that despite these many ultra-curricula activities Louise is making an enviable record in her class work, having been awarded the "palm," an emblem of the highest recognition given by the English Department.

While in Mars Hill for the spring holidays, Louise said that she was indebted to the training which she received at Mars Hill College for any success which she may have achieved since leaving the "Hill."

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF B. S. U. OF NORTH CAROLINA MEETS

note. Several were discussed, but the one winning the greatest approval was "Aggressive for Christ." This will in all probability be the keynote of the South.

It was decided that the speakers would be equally divided between the students and adults. The adult speakers will be the best available, possibly several of the following: Dr. Jester, Dr. Greaves, Dr. W. R. Owen, Dr. Hill, and Dr. Clarke.

The most important thing settled was the place of the next state-wide B. S. U. meeting. Pullen Hall, State College, Raleigh, was accepted and will be an exceptional place for such a meeting. With State College for men and Meredith College for women, we can expect no other than an enjoyable meeting October 28-31, the time of the 1927 conference.
