NONPAREIL NEWS

The darkies from Coon Town were visitors in the Non Hall Thursday afternoon, March 1. While there they performed a wedding for the benefit of the society. Preceding the wedding march, Susan Josephine and Jeremiah Bridges gave a reading entitled, "Kentucky Philosophy." As the wedding march pealed forth in soft strains, the bridal party took their respective places in the formation at the altar and an aged, gray-haired minister entered from his study.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, wearing a veil of dotted swiss curtain—an heirloom from her mother—caught with a cluster of dandelions as it extended from her dusky brow in lovely folds. The couple, happily married, left hurriedly. The audience after a brief business meeting adjourned.

THE OLD RETIRE

March 1, 1928 witnessed the retirement of the officers of the Ministerial Conference without the resignation of any one of them. The new officers elected to the same positions, are as follows: Paul Grogan, president; W. L. Stewart, vice-president; C. P. Stinson, secretary; C. W. Peplin, pianist; C. W. Roper, chorister; A. N. Corpening, doctrinal critic; F. H. Leatherwood, assistant doctrinal critic; E. F. Baker, English critic; B. L. Mullinax, assistant English critic.

THREE INJURED IN CAR WRECK

At about 11 o'clock Tuesday night three students were injured by the wrecking of their car. Moody Henderson was driving. The other occupants were C. L. Parrótt and Irving Sumner. Mr. Henderson says that he was tired and sleepy and that he must have dozed off to sleep in rounding the curve. The accident occurred about half a mile northwest of the Forks of Ivy. The car went down an embankment about 40 feet, turning over as it went. Mr. Sumner was thrown from the car about half way down. At the time of this writing no fatal injuries are evident.

Tomorrow you will live, you always cry;
In what fair country does this morning lie,
That 'tis so mighty long ere it arrive?
Beyond the Indies does this morning live?
'Tis so far-fetched, this morning that I fear
'Twill be both very old and very dear say:
"Tomorrow I will live," the fool does say:
Today itself's too late;—the wise lived yesterday.
—Martial

Mr. Grubbs: In the senate a person can talk as much as he pleases.
Raymond Long: Eh, Mr. Grubbs, do they have any women senators? ate would never adjourn.

Mr. Farr: How many know this song? (two raise their hands) I think I see my wife and a gentleman over there.

Mr. Furches was chaperoning the Buncombe county club for a picnic a few days ago. He met a little boy wearing a football jersey. Said Mr. Furches: Son, where did you get that jersey?

Mr. Corpening: Mr. Roper, where is Perea found?

Charles Roper: I don't believe I know, Mr. Corpening.

Mr. Corpening: Mr. Hughes, will you tell us?

Mr. Hughes: I don't know exactly, but you usually find it in the gums; four out of every five have it

New Note Struck By the B. S. U.

A new note was struck in the key of spirituality by the B. S. U. Council in the meeting, February 19. Throughout the whole meeting was clearly felt the influence of the wonderful work of Dr. Lyons and Dr. Perkis, as it was manifested in the deepening of spirituality in the hearts of those present.

This was felt in the brief talk given by Rachel Chaffin on Personal Work. She mentioned the help she had received from Dr. Perkis in a conference with him. She stated that she had an entirely new conception of personal work after the ray of light given by him.

Mr. Owen spoke a few words expressing his hopes for the success of the prayer groups organized among the students. He suggested the plan of keeping record of all answered prayers.

Miss Pierce took up the subject where Mr. Owen ended. She encouraged prayer groups and testified to their worth to students which she herself had witnessed many times.

The customary reports from the various organizations were very encouraging. The Council rejoiced with the B. Y. P. U. president over their increasing membership. Mr. Patrick gave a fine report of the personal service carried on by the ministers with a new spirit and a new enthusiasm. Indeed, Dr. Lyons and his associates have started a new and great spirit in the campus organizations, and God's Spirit seems to be working among the individuals as never before.

Miss Pierce: Pope says Chaucer makes him sleepy. Isn't that a severe criticism?

Chas. Maddrey: He makes me sleep every day on class.

Frank Huskins: Say, John, are you going to Math class?

John Kirk: Yes, I need the sleep.

Shoe Cobbler: Say, can you tell me who rooms in 216 Brown?

Ransdell: You mean that crazy boy?

Shoe Cobbler: Oh, yes, I have it, Paul Grogan from the paper mill.

A party was disturbing Raymond Long from study. He could tolerate it no longer. So he approached his opponents with a butcher knife and a broom, saying, "If you want to fight fair, come on."

Mr. Lineberry: All right, Mr. Reading, kg. stands for keg. Now what is keg?

Bessie Lieby: Oh, I'll tell you. It's a baby barrel.

Y. W. A. NOTES

The entire student body is at present having its interest directed toward the mission study courses beginning March 26th. We are expecting to make this one of the outstanding features of the year's work. As instructors for the courses we are looking forward to having with us Mr. H. H. McMillan, a missionary from China, now at home on furlough, the young people's leader of Tennessee, with our own young people's leader, Miss Dorothy Kellam. Certain members of the faculty will also teach courses. The most recent and interesting books on both home and foreign missions will be studied.

Glyn Bolch: How does a fellow feel when he is in love?

Van Powell: He feels like he is crazy, I reckon. That's the way they all look.

After Miss Bowden left Mr. Mullinax was heard singing this song: O Love That Will Not Let Me Go.

While making out the roll for the study course a name was received thus: H. C. Isenburg (white).

Carl Mears: Does Chief Justice Taft live at Washington?

Wade Brown: Yes.

Carl Mears: I thought so.
Earl Bradley (from the rear): Boy, you'd better keep it; it's the first one you've ever had.

Jessie Wingo: How does North Carolina rank with South Carolina in population?

Mr. Stringfield: In South Carolina the negroes and white people are counted together, but in North Carolina we don't count the negroes.

Carl Mears: What is the capital of South Dakota?

Bill Dockery: Black Hills, I think.

Mrs. Robinson: Mr. Blackburn, I want you to tell me the circumference of the circle, ABC; when you have found what it is, stand.

John Blackburn (standing): Mrs. Robinson, the circumference is the distance around the circle.

One of the leading social events of the season here will be the "Womanless Wedding" to take place on Saturday evening, March 17 in the auditorium of the Mars Hill High School, according to an announcement lately. The ceremony was solemnized promptly at the fashionable hour of 8 o'clock and cards will be required at the door. Names of contracting parties have not yet been made public, nevertheless this wedding will unite two of the most prominent families of the city, Mr. Gibbs says.
