Henry P. Ledford of Wichita, Texas, was recently married. He and his wife operate a hospital for children in Wichita Falls.

Richard M. McConnell, a former Mars Hill College student, was recently married.

Mr. S. L. Lamm, and Paul K. Carr, formerly of Mars Hill College, are at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Julian Glazener was seriously injured in an automobile wreck which occurred on March 22, near Mars Hill, N. C.

E. B. Jenkins of Rutherfordton, N. C., was recently married.

Robert R. Mallard, a broker in Chicago, Ill., and an old student of Mars Hill College, recently came toward a new swimming pool at Mars Hill.

E. H. Haddock is now in graduate work in the department of social science.

Ministerial Conference Live Organization

A young man at Mars Hill called God to preach the message. At present there are members who find it to be of great value in the preparation of their life's work. It meets for spiritual development and training in giving the message of Jesus to others. At the weekly meeting, things are discussed. Spiritual truths in the Bible are sought for and applied to the spiritual life. Testimonials and experiences are shared with each other. A member is given opportunity to speak before the conference. In this way he may learn to preach himself before people. The faculty give suggestions for the past session it has been the pleasure of the conference to have some of the most outstanding speakers of the Southern Baptist Convention speak to it. They have been in having Dr. B. W. Spill, W. N. Johnson, Mr. M. A. Dr. J. S. Perkes, Dr. J. O. Van Meter. In the past they have been privileged to have Mr. Eller, cashier of the First Bank, who spoke on "The Minister and His Credentials," a returned missionary, Turkey, who spoke on "As I See It"; and Mr. Olive, a returned missionary spoke upon "The Past." Mr. Eller sat in silence for a long time. Then Fred spoke a little nervously. "What are you thinking?" he blushed and moved a little. "I sat in her chair. Never answered. It's your business to propose, not mine."

FROM THE CAMPUS AND COMMUNITY

Miss Gregg is back after being away for some time at the bedside of her ill father.

Visitors have been scarce at Mars Hill. There has been one recently whom all love for her association with our beloved pastor—Mrs. Mahaffey from Franklin, who was Mr. Owens' first teacher.

Spring is coming, and folks are beginning to visit home again. The following are at home for short visits: Mr. A. C. Hamby, who is now pastor at Mebane; Dean I. N. Carr, who has been studying at Duke University; and Prof. P. L. Elliot, who is studying at Johns Hopkins University.

Radio fans are to be treated again next Tuesday night, April 10. Mars Hill students will broadcast from station WWNC in the interest of the Centennial program. The time allotted is 45 minutes. Something worth while is in store for those who listen in.

Both young and old are having good times here. The T. E. I. class divided into two working groups, the Reds and the Blues. With the understanding that the victor was to be entertained by the vanquished. The contest came to a close, and the Blues were delightfully entertained by the Reds Monday afternoon in the primary department of the church. The social hour and the regular business meeting were combined, and a good time was had by all.

Madison County Club Entertains

Friday night, March 30, in the College Auditorium, the Madison County Club entertained their parents. The program included the following numbers: "History of Madison County," Gladys Farmer; "Some Outstanding Men of Madison County," Glenn Whitt; "Some Outstanding Women of Madison County," Inez Roberts; and "At His Task in Rural North Carolina," Fred Anderson.

String music, comical poems, and readings aided in making the evening pleasant and enjoyable to all. The parents also contributed liberally to the program by several encouraging speeches. After the program delightful refreshments were served.

The Madison County Club is one of the most active, as well as the largest, of the clubs on the campus. It is doing wonderful work teaching Madison County students to know more about their county.

Catawba Wins Dramatic Contest

Continued from Page 1 of the evening, and that the acting of all the others was to be commended.

The plays were presented as follows:

High Point gave Where the Cross is Made, a tragedy by Eugene O'Neal.

Catawba gave Figureheads, a fantasy by Louise Saunders.

Mars Hill gave The Valiant, a tragedy by Holworthy Hall and Robert Middlemass.

It will be remembered that the Mars Hill cast has won in preliminaries in the local Dramatic Club, and at Lenoir-Rhyne College. The players and the director took the defeat graciously.

Examinations Close Mission Study Course

(Continued from page 1) of power, contemplation of the works of God, carrying out the commands of Jesus, and casting out the enemies of God were the source of the power in a Christian life.

Mrs. Stukenbrok with an enrollment of 55 taught "A Straight Way Toward God," a book written for those who wish to be of true service to the world. It points out the way through careful thought and intelligent study by which people may be led toward the Straight Way that the Master has pointed out.

Under Mrs. R. L. Moore thirteen girls studied "The Ministry of Women." This little book of Mrs. Ella Robinson outlines the place of women in Christian service.

"Christianity's China Creations" was taught by Mr. Olive. Dr. R. T. Bryan, a missionary for 14 years in China, wrote this book which seeks to portray the lives of a few typical families in order to show China's need of mission work. It predicts that China will one day assume her rightful place among the nations. There were 85 enrolled in this class.

Twenty students made up the class under Mrs. Vann who studied the organizations, functions and purpose of the W. M. U. in the "W. M. U. Manual."

Miss Dorothy Kellam taught the book, "Lotie Moon," by Mrs. Una Roberts Lawrence, to a class of 121. This book gives an interesting account of the life and work of Miss Lottie Moon, the distinguished missionary to northern China during the early days of Baptist Mission Work in the yellow empire. It aims at a vivid picture of Chinese life as Miss Moon saw it.

Y.R.B. Class Entertains

The Year Round Berean Sunday School class gave the young women's class a delightful social Saturday evening, March 24. According to the statements of the visitors, the entertainment excelled any ever given by the class. The outstanding features were: a game of holidays in which the winners received a prize, a cake-walk, and a string band which furnished music of by-gone days.

There were no less than sixty-five in the crowd of fun seekers which was divided into an almost equal number of girls and boys. A course of ice cream and cake was served at the close of the evening of fun and frolic. The guests departed, having satisfied their desires for a jolly good time.

High School Plans Commencement

ning an excellent commencement program which is to begin Sunday night, April 29th, with the baccalaureate sermon at the church by Dr. J. O. Van Meter. Beginning April 30th, the following program has been planned:

April 30, 10:30—Declamation contest.

April 30, 2:00—Recitation contest.

April 30, 8:00—Senior play "Daddy Long Legs."

May 1, 10:30—Graduating exercises, Dr. Zeno Wall, speaker.

and development of these large families and explained the religions of these peoples to a class of 30 who were under Mr. Owen.

Mr. Corpening taught "The New Challenge of Home Mission," an interesting study of the different phases of home missions, to a class of nine. Special emphasis was placed on the needs and remedies of the Home Mission Board.

The faculty entertained the visiting teachers with an informal tea on Tuesday afternoon, and the Y. W. A. entertained with a picnic supper at the Cascades Wednesday afternoon.

The Y. W. A. Council wishes to thank each who has helped to make this week of study so pleasant and beneficial.
