LARGE SQUAD PRACTISING ASSIDUOUSLY FOR FIRST GAME OF THE SEASON

ling, fly receiving, and a small amount of signal running. Scrimmage was to have begun this past Monday, but due to the wet field, blackboard practice was substituted. Real scrimmage will most probably start the end of this week and the beginning of the next. Coach Roberts has not yet made any statement as to the matter of positions. This of course cannot be expected sooner than two or three days prior to the first game with Tusculum. From observation, it seems that his main problem is that of locating a good line from the raw material at hand, with the old linemen as a nucleus.

A glance at the stiff schedule of games this season will show that much is expected of the team.

Up until Friday, men out for positions were: Plemmons, Baber, Anderson, Camnitz, Sprinkle, Buckner, Chiles, Gibbs, A. Albritton, Felmet, Lingerfelt, Harrell, Stroupe, Webb, Reece, McCler, Greeter, Buck, Barton, Hood, Burnette, Osborne, Hendricks, Dale, J. Albritton, Robinson, C. Roberts, Simpson, Campbell, Graham, Briggs, Nash, Corder, Brown, Suttle, and Kearns.

The authentic schedule for the year follows:

Mars Hill vs. Tusculum, Greenville, Tenn., September 28.

Mars Hill vs. Milligan at Johnson City, Tenn., October 5.

Mars Hill vs. Boiling Springs, here, October 12.

Mars Hill vs. Tennessee Wesleyan at Athens, Tenn., October 19.

Mars Hill vs. Carson-Newman at Jefferson City, Tenn., October 26.

Mars Hill vs. Lenoir-Rhyne at Hickory, November 2.

Mars Hill vs. Tennessee Teachers at Johnson City, Tenn., November 8.

Mars Hill vs. Bluefield at Bluefield, W. Va., November 16.

Mars Hill vs. Oak Ridge, here, November 23.

Mars Hill vs. Rutherford (pending), here, November 28.

With this ambitious schedule in mind the Mountain Lions will have a hard job taking the measure of the majority of these opponents. The Lions are a rambling team this year, playing in Tennessee five times, West Virginia once and in North Carolina only four times, three at home and once at Hickory. The co-operation of the students is solicited to help support the team in a way that will cause them to appreciate the support of the student body.

'29-'30 Class Sports Tournament Fixed

This year inter-mural sports will be run on a much larger scale than previously. In addition to regular class representation like the past year, the gym classes will also have a tournament of their own. According to Coach Roberts the basketball tournament will start inside of two or three weeks, while tennis and volleyball will come later.

Each gym class is now composed of several teams. The best one of these will be pitted against the best of another class, thus giving every student a chance to partake in the tournament. The regular class teams, that is the A-4s, C-1s, and C-2s, will be chosen by the captains of these. The class captain will be elected by the class as a whole.

Those who successfully defeat all competitors will be presented with minor letters by the school.

It is expected that much interest will be manifested in these tournaments for the reason that the average student athlete will be given a chance to compete for an athletic letter. No varsity men will be allowed to participate in any of these, but it is understood that they can act as coaches to the various class teams.

Now our advertisers that we appreciate their co-operation.

A Column of Sports Chatter.

When the Mountain Lions swing into action against Tusculum, at Greenville, Tennessee, a week from Saturday, they will break a record that has stood for a long while of engaging Catawba College in the opening fray. This year the two schedules did not jibe and as a consequence the Tusculum eleven gained the opening date. Catawba and Mars Hill were long rivals on the gridiron and in the many years of play the Indians were unable to score a touchdown on the rambling Lions. Last year they started the season with a twelve-nothing win over the Indians. We wish Catawba better luck with their opening opponents this year.

When Carson-Newman meets the Mars Hill eleven on their own gridiron they will meet an old teammate who has returned to his original stamping ground. Carl Baber, go-liathian guard, will be at his old post on the Mars Hill line against his teammates of last year. Nor will that be all, for if Kearns, new addition to the squad, makes the grade, Oak Ridge will face one of its own warriors in the opposing line-up.

Unless football fans walk to Milligan and Tusculum they will not get to see the Lions in action until October 12, when the Boiling Springs team again invades their lair. By that time a good line should be had on the team and a more accurate forecast of the season can be had. By the way, the Milligan clash, always second on the schedule, will be again held under the floodlights at the Buffaloes' home prairie. Last year a huge crowd witnessed the game, one of the first night games held in the South, and a large crowd of Mars Hillians made the journey. It is rumored that another convocation will want to make the trip this year and if the powers that be will give their consent the college will be again well represented at the clash.

With the elimination of Belmont Abbey from the schedule it is rumored that the Lenoir-Rhyne Bears will take their place. If so the contest will be held in Hickory. These Bears are ancient rivals in basketball and baseball, and it is only fitting that they meet again on the gridiron.

With the change of the Oak Ridge game from Charlotte to Mars Hill the last chance of an Eastern trip vanished, and this year the Eastern followers of the Lions will have to content themselves with newspaper accounts from Tennessee and Mars Hill, because, unless the proposed Lenoir-Rhyne game goes through, there will be no games east of Mars Hill; whereas there are five scheduled in Tennessee.

It is said by those that seem to know that Georgia Tech will be shy its great team this year. With a weakened line and a backfield that will miss father Lumpkin, the Golden Tornado does not have the pre-season strength that was forecast for it last year; however, when the whistle blows the old Rambling Wrecks will be on the field in full force and you can lay to that.

The Dukesters, or Millionaires, seem to be all set for a great season. When such stars as Jankoski and Buie lose their positions to youngsters there is a team in the offing. When they trot on the gridiron against Pittsburgh they will have a chance to exhibit some of that stuff, for Pittsburgh is plenty good this year and will make a bid toward the mythical national championship. Those Tar Heels don't look so bad and are likely to surprise somebody, even Georgia Tech. Wake Forest is the mystery team of the big five, according to all dope, but the Tar Heels don't appear worried, but—you never can tell. Those Deacons have a habit of upsetting the dope bucket at exactly the wrong time. State and Davidson are in the running but do not seem to have the teams of other years.

It's my opinion that the Southern Conference flag will fly at the University of Alabama this year! Wallace Wade's Crimson Tide has about had time to reach another wave and there is due to be a big time stirring in those parts.

ALUMNI NOTES

Zollar Reese is paymaster for a large company in Birmingham, Ala., and gives a radio discussion in the Sunday school lesson every Saturday evening. On Sunday he teaches a Bible class for men.

G. Lewis Bailes is solicitor for the county court which includes Birmingham, where he lives. He teaches a large Bible class for men and also writes for the Age-Herald the Sunday discussion of the Sunday school lesson.

Mr. Fred Moore and Miss Tessie Moreland, both of Elizabethton, Tenn., were married about May 28.

Yo-Yos! Yo-Yoers Yo-Young!

Yo-Yos? Yes, that's what those small, round, red, blue, yellow, and orange objects are. At a distance it looks as though the Yo-Yoer must have some magnetic power about him—or her. The Yo-Yo will leave the hand drop about fifteen inches, then come back, but on close observation it is noticed that a string is attached to it and by some means (I haven't learned the mechanical terms) goes down then comes back up.

Yes, they're all doing it. The boys are in the lead, some of the girls are taking up the fad, and actually some of the faculty have been known to try Yo-Young! Well, anyway, it is a mere fad that has caused some little comment, amusement, and valuable time spent.

There are all kinds of contests, readers' contests, walking contests, cake eating contests, so why not have a Yo-Young contest? This would create a lot of interest and all the while would afford much excitement. Let's all think about a contest of this kind. Why not?

It seems that the fad of wearing brightly colored caps has gone, but with the fad of wearing brightly colored suspenders has come the Yo-Yo. They were brought into town; the Yo-Yoers bought them, and now Yo-Young has taken the campus by storm.

Emily had been to school for the first time. "Well, honey," asked her mother when she returned, "what did you learn?" "Nuffin'," sighed Emily. "I've got to go back tomorrow."
