Nonpareils Win Opening Society Basketball Encounter

The Clios were defeated by the Nonpareils in a nip and tuck affair by the score of 18 to 16. This was the first girl's game of the year, and was the best that has been played for the last two years.

The Nons started out in the lead. Yet at no time in the game did they maintain over a six point lead. As it was the first game of the year, there was a quite a bit of roughness prevalent. This could have been due however, to the closeness of the game.

The Clios, though never ahead, played a great brand of ball, especially on defense. They fought with much tenacity and determination and threw a scare into the ranks of those that wore the gold and black more than once.

Picking stars of the game would be hard to do as every individual played a jam-up good brand of basketball.

The starting line-up was as follows:

Clios	Nons
Need	F	Hooks
Leares	F	Stikeleather
Hendricks	C	Wannamaker
Hoyle	G	Higdon
Arch	G	Brendell
Roberts	G	Snow

Substitutions: Clios—Hoffman for Roberts, Andrews for Hoyle, and Hoyle for Hoffman.

HARDWOOD HOPES

(By the author, Pigskin Picks).

When we turn aside from the pigskin to the realm of the court we have behind us one of the most hectic, upsetting, and generally tumultuous gridiron seasons in history behind us. I picked Alabama to win the Southern Conference. She didn't, but didn't miss any more than the backs of many another team. Only a few picked the Green Wave and it is the opinion of many that although she had a great team she played only a few strong teams. North Carolina is one of the greatest teams in its history on the field and would have had a clear title to the championship except for that upset at the hand of the Georgia team.

Let's look at the other sport that is now taking the colleges—basketball. In the South several teams have already begun pre-season maneuvers and even have gone so far as to send teams on barn storming trips North in order to give them a taste of battle before the conference season opens. In this pre-season dope there is a team that looks stronger than the Wake University squad. It was a good team last year, and this year it should be better. They are my pick for the Southern champs.

at Lexington, Washington and is warming up a great squad. In opinion of many coaches they had the year the best team in the South, their record was remarkable. This year practically their entire squad is returning intact. They should be some one a race for the laurels.

Alabama has two wins over the other teams to start the year off, and they too have a cage squad which will bear watching.

from the point of sheer thrills there is no game like basketball, it is speed, skill, endurance, every-thing, and ever increasing crowds are following the sport each year. Here Mars Hill we have all the earmarks of a great team this year. There are a few weak places, but they are being ironed out. With Reese at center, Buckner and Jordan at forwards, and Andy and Jim Albritton holding down the guard posts there is going to be a scrappy competition on the floor.

judging from the yells and excitement the Non Clio girls game was one of the best games of the year.

It inaugurated the inter-society series for the year. The Phis and Eus will hook up Saturday afternoon. The Nons took the first clash in a nip and tuck encounter that leaves the following games largely to conjecture.

MARS HILL BASKETEERS TAKE WOFFORD INTO CAMP FOR VICTORY

Game Snatched From the Fire in Last Minute of Play.

Coach Roberts' Basketeers came through with a thrilling finish in the game with Wofford at Spartanburg, Monday night.

Press reports from Spartanburg said that "a game little Mars Hill College basketball team came to hand out a close lacing to the scrapping Wofford College Terriers, to the tune of 33 to 31, in one of the closest and most surprising hardwood battles ever enacted in these parts."

Booked beforehand as the underdogs by a wide margin, the Mars Hill team unleashed a driving attack which, it is said, completely swept the Wofford Terriers from their feet in the closing moments of play.

The Wofford quintet, carefree and confident, quit the court at the half period, leading by the score of 17 to 12. But Coach Oren E. Roberts gave his men a neat talking to between the halves, for they came back on the court at the start of the second half with determination breaking out all over them. The boys from the Hill put up a fine defensive performance in the entire second half and held off many goalward charges by the Palmetto aggregation.

During the last ten minutes of the affray the score was tied five different times and the big crowd was on its feet urging its team (Wofford) on to victory. But the game lads from the Hill kept doggedly on. With but a few seconds of time remaining, the vast throng again came to its feet and watched the ending score, a perfect field goal by Reese. Before the ball could be returned to center and a tip-off made, the timer's whistle sounded to give Wofford its first setback in seven starts.

To pick out any satellite from the Mars Hill team would be to ignore the good work of the team as a whole. All fought valiantly. Jordan was the scoring ace, with 19 points. Reese was most active, also, securing 10 for the Hilltoppers. Albritton was there every minute at guard, and others of the team, while not contributing so largely to the scoring, put up an offensive and defensive fight that baffled the opponents.

The Wofford team also was game to the finish, and when they saw the game slipping from them they redoubled their efforts, but by that time the Mars Hill lads had gained the upper hand and it was too late.

The line-up:

Mars Hill	Position	Wofford
Buckner (2)	F	Burlington (24)
Jordan (19)	F	Gault (5)
Reese (10)	C	Walters (2)
Albritton (2)	G	Haynes
Harrell	G	Cogswell

Substitutions: (Mars Hill) Saunders for Buckner; Edgerton for Harrell. Referee, Nash (South Carolina).

SUNSET ON THE MOON

A moving picture showing a sunset on the moon was one of the chief features of the annual exhibit at the Carnegie Institution of Washington. The earth rotates on its axis once each day, thereby causing the sun apparently to sweep across the sky, rising in the morning and setting in the evening. Similarly the moon rotates on its axis, but more slowly, once in 27 1-3 days; consequently on it the sun sets in more leisurely manner than on the earth. The film, taken with a moving picture camera using the 100-inch reflector at Mt. Wilson as the lens, shows the effect produced by the sunset on the moon over an area about the size of New Jersey. The actual time covered by the film is five and a half minutes; the changes observed during that period are shown in one and a half minutes.

WHAT OTHERS DO AND SAY

Well, I guess you can find mid-gets in places other than circuses and vaudeville. It seems that they have started their annual circuits in the colleges and universities. We notice that at Carolina, a big he-man of three concise feet entered the freshman class there to study journalism. Whether this is a prophecy of the downfall of shows or the increase in campus variety, we must say that even the small part of the world wants to be educated.

The Asheville Junior College recently ran their first issue of their "newsie" off the press. Appears to be a very neat little paper, and contains a great variety of campus activities. We extend our congratulations for their good work. Keep it up!

"Do not put your watch under your pillow at night, you will be sure to sleep over time."—The Collegiate.

In the Fortnightly, Westminster College paper, we see that a little memorial has been given in remembrance of the "Lyceum Course" and "Warm Chapel," which "are gone from us but their fond memory is with us yet." We at Mars Hill can sympathize with the students at Westminster, because it was just recently that these beloved members of our student life passed away.

When girls at Lenoir Rhyne College were deprived of their social privileges for breaking rules, the gallant young men of the college came to the rescue with a lengthy demonstration of protest. They banded together and marched to the girl's dormitory, there displaying a series of yells and noisy objections to the social ban. The demonstration took place inside of the home itself, and therefore created quite a bit of unusual interest.

Who said the days of yore were gone when ye valiant knight comes to ye rescue of ye gracious ladies who have been subject to the vices and cruelty of ye awful tyrant?

THINGS SCIENTIFIC THE INFLUENZA GERM

The discovery and isolation of the influenza germ in his laboratory was announced by Dr. Isidore S. Falk, 30-year-old professor of bacteriology at the University of Chicago, according to The Pathfinder. Six years of research, declared Dr. Falk, was required to make the discovery which brings the "hopeful prospect that an antitoxin for the dreaded disease will now be possible." The American Medical Association immediately challenged Dr. Falk's announcement. "With little if any apparent warrant," its organ, the Medical Journal, states, "it is again announced for at least the tenth time in five years that the causative organism of influenza has been discovered and it is hoped to prepare a vaccine. There is thus far little or no evidence in scientific medical literature, or even in spoken addresses, to indicate that Dr. Falk and his associates have progressed any further toward the solution of this problem than have workers in other parts of the world, now or in the past." Meanwhile a statement was published in London to the effect that Dr. David Thompson and his brother had isolated the influenza germ three years ago.

A NEW LINDY PLANE

The Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, at Burbank, Cal., has built a new airplane for Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in accordance with specifications and plans drawn up by the famous flyer and the Detroit Aircraft Corporation. It is a low-wing monoplane of the open cockpit type, and is driven by a 425-horsepower air-cooled Wasp motor and is inclosed in cowling such as the advisory committee for aeronautics suggests. The plane has a top speed of 190 miles an hour and, it is said, the longest cruising range of any plane in private use. Its color scheme is distinctive and was selected by Colonel Lindbergh, and his wife.
