

IT HAPPENED

20 Years Ago

April 30, 1938 — During the Junior-Senior Banquet held in the dining hall of Mars Hill college this evening, several students, including the so-called "Frankie" Hough and his running mate. Wild Bill Kellner, ransacked the new Edna Corpening Moore dormitory and carried off enough tile flooring to make 3 sets of dominoes. It was reputed that the third set was to be smuggled to Virginia Steadman, of South Carolina.

May 1, 1938—As a hangover from overeating at the banquet last night, twenty-five Mars Hill students are confined to the infirmary here today. Those inflicted include Margaret Hendren Carroll Smith, Eleanor Cashwell, Margie Baker, Ben Donehoo, and Bob Childs among the more serious cases.

May 2, 1938 — History was made today as a sit-down strike in the dining hall against compulsory attendance at the noon meal was started at 7:25 o'clock this morning by forty students led by Preston Champion. After much persuasion and coercion by the deans, Mr. Champion hurriedly called for a dispersion of his followers at 11:59 o'clock. The day was saved but not the meal.

May 4, 1938 — Bill Therrell left school unexpectedly today to become manager of the Moore county baseball team. Going with Mr. Therrell were William Eaton and Frank Rains.

Washington, D. C., April 30. (G. P.)—Maine and Vermont are now represented in Congress by Russell Harris, who moved to Maine in '39, and Adlai Hoyle, who moved to Vermont in '40. They are fine representatives of the smallest minority. They always speak of their alma mater Mars Hill college, as the place where they got their forensic training.

Asheville, N. C., April 30. (G. P.)—Miss Earline Duncan of this city has just given a donation with which to build a measles hospital. Miss Duncan is naming this building the "Duncan Measles Clinic" in memory of her college days.

New York, N. Y., April 30. (G. P.)—Miss Josephine Yokley is now running a dress shop on Fifth Avenue. She is claimed by the debutantes to be the successor to Hattie Carnegie.

Capt. Warren Smith Plants U. S. Flag And Claims West Pole

"Much of my credit is due our radio operator, Sam Bennett," Captain Smith said in his recent radio address over B. B. C. "Another man who has played a real hero is Dr. Carl E. Charles, medical advisor," he continued. "He labored day and night when we were all stricken with catfish fever."

This expedition was backed financially by the Georgia Cracker Company.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mars Hill—Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Stringfield gave a lawn party for their son, Mr. P. C. Stringfield, Jr., and his charming wife or Thursday afternoon, April 22. Some of the guests were Senator and Mrs. Bruce Murray, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Thigpen, and Dr. and Mrs. Ray Roberts, of Asheville.

Raleigh—Miss Billie C. Henderson, the Secretary of State, entertained Misses Ruth McKelvey and Ellen McLain, Messrs. Fonzo Randolph and Charles Radford, Friday afternoon, before they left to study unemployment conditions in California for the State Department.

Ode By a Freshman

A college without a Freshman Would be a dull affair Of lazy upperclassmen Less that superior air. Who'd have to bear the brunt Of any error and shame Without us trusty Freshmen On whom to dump the blame.

There'd be upperclass suckers The usual college goats Who'd have the usual redtape Pushed down the Freshmen's throat. They'd have to be the bottom For an extra year And so you upperclassmen Be glad we Frosh are here.

You most of all would miss Us'uns ignorant ways In classroom, hall and campus That blank bewildered daze.

But the Frosh does add new glitter To the worn out Sophomore line; The Junior gals are knitting While the Freshmen lassies shine

Now this has no moral It takes up space and time But if I were not a Freshman I'd discard this little rhyme!

Miss Murphy Teaches At California Creek

1938 Graduate Superintends One-Teacher School Near Here.

Miss Marie Murphy, a Mars Hill graduate of 1938, has been appointed superintendent of the one-teacher school at the thriving mountain town of California Creek near here, according to dispatch from State Superintendent Carroll Smith.

Following her graduation a Mars Hill college in 1938, Miss Murphy finished at Furman University and taught ten years in the public schools of Hodges S. C. Leaving this school system abruptly, she returned to North Carolina and has been teaching at Southern Pines in grade schools there. Miss Murphy states that she will enjoy continuing her work here in Western North Carolina, for she learned to love it when in school here.

Mr. Brothers Heads English Department

"Better English, better Americans" is the motto of the new head of the English department, Mr. L. C. Brothers, formerly of the Wake Forest college English department.

"Since the retirement of Mr. J. B. Huff from the position as English Department head, the college considers itself fortunate in securing Mr. Brothers in that capacity," according to a recent issue of the college quarterly.

Mr. Brothers has been on the faculty of Wake Forest college for five years and in that time has won recognition for his outstanding classes on old classic and English literature. He will continue his classes here, in addition to supervising all work in English for college students.
