

COLLEGE KNOWLEDGE

By ELAINE ENSCHO

She just adores long, baggy sweaters with pearls or gay necklaces, sloppy saddle oxfords, thick, floppy anklets (colors don't matter), silly somethings stuck somewhere in that glamorous Greta Garbo imitation coiffure. Her hands are smeared with ink from lecture to lab and back again, and her skirt often weighs anchor on one side. She can never find a clean handkerchief, especially when mascara starts its watery journey down rouged cheeks. Her conversation is broken by pops of gum or the drugstore blues emerging from her soda straw. She is an information bureau concerning any football game for the past three years, but she goes limp with fright when the discussion turns to current world events. She can swing any popular piece and recognize the orchestra, but her expression turns to one of dumbfoundment when strains of a prelude or sonata become audible. She can fill in gaps of conversation with a steady stream of blowy babble; but, strangely enough, she never says anything. She practically supports the grocery, drugstore, and cafe investments. She pulls out a dusty copy of How To Win Friends and Influence People when she doesn't have a male admirer for every bead on her string of pearls (imitation, naturally).

Her motive for being is certainly indefinite, if, indeed, she does possess such a rare quality. Her aim: that handsome blond on a string (Packard or Buick, of course). Address: any campus whose inmates are of both male and female gender. This seemingly empty piece of ornamentation is what we call the typical college co-ed. Despite her eccentricities, we still love her. May she never become extinct.

countries of the hemisphere. Germany and Italy have a deep hold on the country, and thus the United States finds trouble that may some day be one of her chief international problems. Meanwhile Argentina continues to expand and to draw closer to the dictator nations.

Our Friend

Brazil has always been the friend of the United States. She is the largest in the ABC group and has a vast empire of natural resources. Her thirty million people have turned toward a social change policy, but the United States can count on her to help stop any real menace that might develop in South America.

Chile

Chile is the third country in the ABC group and perhaps the most feared of all South American countries, for she is military minded. However, Chile is a strong link in the Pan-American chain, and we can always count on her for cooperation and support. Chile has many economic problems to face in the future,

A Rising Building

The work was discontinued during the recent cold spell but has been resumed and steel window frames have been inserted into the rising walls.

Campus Personalities

tant of Brown dormitory (second floor). His natural appearance belies the fact that he is frequently "putting on a show" and enjoying immensely the reaction of others. His height is five feet eight and one-half inches, and he weighs one hundred and fifty-two pounds. His mother calls him "Grandpop."

TOM WHITE—

A native of Washington, D. C., and an authority of governmental affairs. He is vice-president of the Philomathian literary society and former president of the I. R. C. He also takes an active part in forensic work. A good worker and excellent student, he is nevertheless not a bookworm and really enjoys the lighter things of life, romance, etc. An abundant crop of blond hair is his distinguishing characteristic. He is six feet no inches tall and weighs one hundred sixty pounds.

"GIN" TERRY—

A good-natured Clio from Hamlet, whose nickname is an abbreviation, not an insinuation. She is now vice-president of the Clio society and formerly was secretary. Active in glee club work, she is a valuable member of the college sextet. Noted for her good humor, she is, even though a pre-medical student. It is necessary to mention here that she is crowned with auburn locks, but her height, weight, etc., must be obtained from the lady in question.

EMILY PATRICK—

C-I president of the Nonpareil literary society and a member of the Dramatic club. She is vice-president of the Scriblerus club and a prominent member of the forensic team. Altogether very vivacious, charming, and has a keen sense of humor. Quite a few young gentlemen have vied for her favor, each thinking himself preferred; perhaps all of them were fooled. A good conversationalist and always good company, her degree of elongation and avoirdupois may be regarded as "satisfactory."

"PERK" PERKINSON—

The "gal" with the radiant personality and winsome character. A leader in religious work, she is noted for her practiced religion and exemplification of Christian principles. She is a member of the college glee club and is former censor of the Clio literary society. She was secretary of last year's C-I class. She has soft brown hair and a broad, good-humored face which sometimes shows a trifle of impishness, frank and sincere; she is a girl anyone should be proud to know. Height and weight may be obtained from their owner.

CLAIRE HARDIN—

President of the Nonpareil literary society and violinist in the college orchestra. She is a member of the B. S. U. council and a former president of the Scriblerus club. An interesting and entertaining speaker and a fine person to have for a friend. She is very versatile, being in the glee club and sextet in addition to numerous other activities. Somewhat abbreviated in stature,

Five Honor Clubs Choose Officers

The leader of the German club will be Harold Sluder with the help of Alice Craddock, vice-president; Vivian Lunsford, secretary; Bill Duckworth, treasurer; Tommy Evans, reporter.

Officers of the Classical and French clubs are expected to be elected in the near future.

When re-organization is complete, each club intends to present to the student body in the college auditorium a program that will exemplify the purpose and achievements of the group.

Bids to join these clubs are being extended to C-I and C-II students who made a high scholastic rating.

Road To Public School Now Being Improved

Mars Hill is to have paved street.

The road leading from the center of this mountain to the public school, so paved, is now receiving a fine stone curbing. Already rocks are being spread in preparation of the oncoming winter.

The work, financed by grant and by a local assessment, was started largely through the efforts of Mayor Lee and the city council.
