

EUTHALIANS TO CELEBRATE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

News Flashes

NON-EU HALL AND ANNIVERSARY PRESIDENTS

Half A Century Of Achievement To Be Celebrated Saturday

Today
Mars Hill Lions encounter Edwards Military Institute on the gridiron here this afternoon.

Tonight
The annual Clio Reception will be held tonight in the two society halls at 8:00 o'clock.

Football
Milligan Freshmen are scheduled to play Mars Hill here on Saturday, Nov. 23.

Euthalian Anniversary
The Euthalian Anniversary will be held in the college auditorium on Saturday night, Nov. 23, at 8:00 o'clock. The public is invited.

Thanksgiving
The annual Thanksgiving game with Brevard College will be played here on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 28. This game will close the 1940 football season.

Speaker
Dr. Avers, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Forest City, will give the Thanksgiving address in chapel on Nov. 28.

Carolina Playmakers
The Carolina Playmakers will present Paul Green's The House Of Connelly on Thursday, Nov. 21, at 8:00 P.M., in the college auditorium.

Extensive Program Of Improvement To Be Begun Here Soon

Spilman Dormitory To Be Remodeled.

A recent interview with Mr. B. H. Tilton, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, has revealed that an extensive improvement program is soon to be inaugurated by the Board of Trustees.

Prominent on the list of buildings to be improved is Spilman. The dormitory will be remodeled into a completely modern, fireproof unit. The dining hall will remain unchanged for the present but the dean of women will have much better office facilities; and sure to find favor with the students is the plan for larger and better parlor space.

Improvements are to be made also on the Landers Cottage, located behind the Science Building, which will have new bath fixtures and steam heat. These changes are certain to make Landers one of our most popular cottages.

The new athletic field will soon be completed and new grass has been sown in many places on the campus.

Shown above is the interior of the new hall of the Nonpareil-Euthalian Literary Societies, which celebrate their forty-fifth Reception and fiftieth Anniversary. Inset: Lowell Shive, Euthalian Anniversary President; Lynn Starkweather, Nonpareil Anniversary President.

Carnegie Set Adds To Music Appreciation

Music Department Offers Sunday Entertainment.

The music department of the college has been one of the most active during the past two months. Highlighting that phase of our curriculum is the Carnegie music set, which has enjoyed increased popularity this term. This set was donated to the college by the Carnegie Corporation three years ago.

It was chiefly through the efforts of Miss Martha Biggers that Mars Hill was able to obtain the gift. We remain the only junior college in the state possessing such a remarkable machine with its collection of master recordings. There are approximately 800 records in our music library — masterpieces from all over the world. It is interesting to note that the more familiar and everyday tunes have been omitted — the real purpose of the library being to broaden our appreciation. It is also interesting to note that the boys have taken more advantage of this opportunity than the girls.

Each Sunday afternoon some member of the music faculty plans a half hour concert of new selections and a half-hour of familiar numbers. Between these periods the listeners may make requests. At other performances the pro-

(Continued on page 4)

Fiftieth Anniversary Program Of Euthalia

The Euthalians, under the capable leadership of their officers — Lowell A. Shive, president; Richard C. Proctor, vice-president; Edward J. Long, secretary; and Ben Johnson, censor — and with the co-operation and aid of the various committees, will present the following program for their Fiftieth Anniversary: Address, Lowell Shive; "Euthalian Hymn," Euthalians and Nonpareils; Devotional, Haggard Ellis; To Clio-Phi, Lowell Shive; Declamation, "Southern Spirit," Ralph Jinnette; Dramatic Reading, "The Vision Of Sir Launfal," William Clark.

Debate: Resolved, That The Powers Of The Federal Government Should Be Diminished." Affirmative: Roy Caviness and Harold McCroskey. Negative: John Farrar and J. C. Jones.

Vocal Selection, "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes," Paul Brunner; Oration, "The Challenge Of Peace," Richard Proctor; Trumpet Trio, "Southland," Douglas Little, Jack Lucke, J. Carlton Jones; Declamation, "The Volunteer Organist," Robert Beall.

Alma Mater, by the audience; Prologue, Grand Finale, Epilogue.

Nonpareils Anticipate Successful Reception

Forty-Fifth Annual Celebration To Be Observed On Nov. 30.

"Who's your date?" "May I borrow your black evening handkerchief?" "Ooh — my hair didn't get dry!" These and similar feminine observances will be heard from 7:00 until 8:00 o'clock on Nov. 30. Why Nov. 30? Because that is the night of the Nonpareil shine. So long anticipated by the old members, so long a puzzle to the new members, the Nonpareil Reception will at 8:00 o'clock be a reality.

Clio-Phi has had the stage for the past two weeks. Monday Euthalia and Nonpareil start in earnest to complete their well-laid plans of this their fiftieth and forty-fifth, respectively, annual program. The Eus look forward to a memorable Anniversary, the best

(Continued on page 4)

Chapel Gems

One of the outstanding features of recent chapel programs was the inspirational talk given on Nov. 5 by Mr. Perry Morgan, manager of the Southern Baptist Assembly Grounds at Ridgecrest. Mr. Morgan actively entered the religious field of work in 1920 when he became Training Union Secretary. Since that time he has had a big part in the religious work of the state and the Southern Baptist Con-

(Continued on page 4)

Ideals Of Dignity, Simplicity And Conservatism Held High.

"Thy name has glorified in the past,
Euthalia, Euthalia.
And by thy side we stand steadfast
To make it shine again,
again.
And to our leaders strong and true
We pledge support in all you do.
We'll sing thy praise throughout the land,
Euthalia, Euthalia."

Half a century has elapsed since Euthalia came into being. The name has glorified in the past and the past holds memories of those leaders and followers who have stood steadfast through the sometimes trying, yet victorious development and progress of the society. And today, as the horizon of Euthalia has broadened, the black and gold banner waves ever higher.

Fifty years ago the Euthalian Society was formed from the old Mars Hill Debating Society. Fifty years ago the sons of Euthalia formed a brotherhood and chose those appropriate ideals of dignity, simplicity, and conservatism which still serve as worthy goals for every member. Every Euthalian holds for his brothers an active devotion and for his society a potent feeling of loyalty.

Since its foundation, the society has stood for high literary achievement, and the success of all accomplishments through the past fifty years gives credit to the high standards and capable membership of the society. The willing co-operation of each member with his brother Euthalians is a great factor in the sustenance of the annual accomplishment in literary participation.

On celebrating fifty years of advancement, it is fitting to remember the intrepidity of the leaders of past years and to look forward with assurance of even greater achievement in the future.

The torch of simple living, burning with a steady flame, the dignity of the nobler way of Euthalia, and the conservatism of past traditions promise that the purpose will never waver.

The student body of Mars Hill changes. New faces come and old ones leave, and new personalities make up the so-

(Continued on page 3)