

Chapel Gems

The chapel programs conducted by our college family for this year have been of a varied nature, and many of them have proved highly inspirational.

President Blackwell, who spoke to us on the Monday on which Founders' Day was observed, gave us a brief history of our college, impressing us with our obligation to the past and our responsibility to the future.

Through our B. S. U. council and its president, Douglas Aldrich, we have had many fine programs. Each Tuesday the assembly period is given over to the work of the B.S.U. On October 14, Ronda Robbins gave a summary of the B. S. U. convention which was held last November in Hickory, and a preview of this year's convention which will begin October 31, in Durham. On our last B. S. U. chapel day we greatly enjoyed a talk by Douglas Aldrich, who spoke about "Reality in Christ's Living."

On Thursday of last week Dr. R. L. Moore gave an interesting talk on making the most of one's life. He emphasized the fact that we possess the ability to convert our lives into things of beauty by overcoming all that is small and ugly. On Friday Mr. R. L. Lee brought us a beneficial discussion, admonishing us to look to God for guidance in time of temptation.

In addition to the delightful concert given by the band, another musical program, which featured David McAdams in a violin solo, "Polish Dance," by Severin, was greatly enjoyed.

The lineup in the Davidson Frosh game was as follows: Bowen and A. Anderson, ends; Ingle and Holt, tackles; Day and Green, guards; Moore, center; Carr, quarterback; Faulkner and Addleman, halfbacks; Cushwa, fullback.

LIBRARY GIFTS

(Continued from Page 1) volumes of biography and history, was given to the library by Buren Jurney of Statesville. Mr. Jurney is a graduate of Mars Hill and is now chairman of the State Industrial Commission. These volumes will be appreciated especially by the history department. They were edited by Archibald Henderson, a professor at the University of North Carolina.

A valuable collection of books and pamphlets was given by the late Laura Lazenby of Statesville. She was formerly a teacher and a very active Baptist leader. Her collection includes devotional and mission study books, poetry, biographies, and a few novels. Some of the titles are How to Pray by Fosdick, Meaning of Prayer by Torrey, and Wonders of the Tropics by H. M. Stanley.

The James Long Library of approximately thirteen hundred books was given by Rev. James Long of Erwin, Tennessee; and it holds much in store for ministerial students especially. Mr. Long had pastorates for thirty-four years in North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia. In addition to the books, periodicals, and pamphlets in the gift there were also a desk, chair, filing cases, and cabinets from Mr. Long's study. His books were given with the stipulation that they be kept intact, and they are

Peace Treaty Of '41

Nan Love has demanded and received a map of South Carolina, although she still insists that the Ashley and Cooper Rivers run together at Charleston to form the Atlantic Ocean. George Blake has received a book in which to write his diary.

Diary:
Oct. 18—Snowing, can't go hunting.

Oct. 19—Still snowing, can't go hunting.

Oct. 20—Still snowing, shot grandmaw.

Thus ends the treaty. The spoils are spoiled, the last shell is shot, and Miss Biggers tolls the bell of peace over the little circle where pacific pairs sit on.

now housed in the music building. They will not be available for use until they are catalogued.

B.S.U. Hy-Lytes

A tour of the Duke campus, a message by Governor Broughton, and a sunrise installation service will be other outstanding events of the week-end.

Mars Hill has a definite part to contribute to the convention.
