

ing in public relations there, and later to the University of Chicago where he was engaged in writing. He is now a lieutenant in the Army, serving in the European theater as a cryptologist.

Robert Burnett (1933-34) studied journalism at Washington and Lee University. He worked for the Louisville, Kentucky, Courier-Journal and was, until recently, connected with station WHAS for which he arranged programs. Mark T. Orr (1933-34) continued his education at the University of North Carolina where he helped with the news bureau. He remained there for several years as a fellow. He edited The South In The Affairs of the World. He left the University of North Carolina to become a public relations officer in the Air Corps. Lionel Hoffman (1934-35) did not continue his college work, but he is now a business man at Gastonia. Walter Brock (1935-36) went to the University of Richmond and to I.W.N. Law school. He is now in the Navy. John Van Hoy (1935-36) is a lieutenant in the Army and was serving in North Africa at the last report.

Mary Brunson (1936-37) continued her schooling at Alabama Woman's college. Hubert Eliot, editor the same year, went to the University of Missouri and to the University of North Carolina. He worked as a newspaper man for several years at Edenton. He is now in public relations in the army. Al Bellinger (1937) was, at the last report, at home in New York. Eugene Brissie (1938) went to Wake Forest. He edited the Student and remained there for a year of graduate study, in which time he wrote voluminously in their public relations, bulletins, and other publications. Later he went to Raleigh as a newspaper man, and he is now in public relations in the Navy.

Paul Early (1938-39) went to Wake Forest College and later to the Southwestern Baptist Seminary. He is now pastor of a church in Louisville, Kentucky. Orville Campbell, editor the same year, continued his work at the University of North Carolina. Tommy Nicholas Evans (1939-40) went to Baylor University and later to Vanderbilt Medical School. He is now in the Army Air Corps. Charles R. Green (1939-40) was killed in an automobile accident shortly after leaving Mars Hill.

Grady Dover (1940-41) went to the University of North Carolina but did not follow a journalistic career. He was in the Army Air Corps and has been reported missing over Germany. John Foster West (1941-42) also went to the University of North Carolina. He did much writing and was employed in the publishing department. He is now serving in the air corps. L. Russell Jordan (1942-42), after finishing Mars Hill, went to the University of North Carolina. He is now in public relations at Fort Bragg. Mert Simons (1943-44) is now in the Merchant Marines. Nina Guard, editor the same year, is now at the University of North Carolina. She is not following a career in journalism, but is majoring in English and Social Science.

Bob Chapman,
Editor 1945.