But aren't we human beings, And not angels we're supposed to be?

We do not play a golden harp Nor sail the heavenly sea.

But we're exposed to human ills And to the world's mischievous ways.

So aren't we privileged to indulge

For a few of our numbered days?

The only reason that folks assail And batter the preacher's clan, Is because the master of the tribe

Therefore his offsprings should practice

The sermons that he preaches, And watch their deeds and ac-

And, also, watch their speeches.

Because there are people in this

Who watch the preacher's daughter,

"To catch her when she does or says

Something she shouldn't oughter."

And this last thing I say to you (With reference to our reputation)

Please leave us be and let us live, Like the rest of the population.

Boy! Hold your hats and call forth all your excitement 'cause time. Thrilled? I should say! What I'm so happy about is that I can relieve you of club news for awhile and talk about the Big Event! Yep, we gals had a chance to portray our athletic ability (?) before the entire student body in a basketball game Thanksgiving day! What was even more exciting was the fact that it was between the two societies-Nonpareil and Clio. That is 'nuff said to let you know that spirit and rivalry were manifest!

Despite the zero weather, we donned the basketball outfit, and made our debut! Whew! Did you say cold?? But not for long, 'cause the exercise and excitement soon had our blood to a degree of sufficient warmth. Thrilled and inspired at the yelling of our societies we felt ourselves undefeatable. We cast a glance toward the balcony; and, amidst the glowing faces of Clios and Philomathians and Nonpareils and Euthalians, identified by the colors of blue and white and black and gold, we recognized an atmosphere of love and enthusiasm. Thus, the game began!

Even though the Clios were victorious, excellent playing and sportsmanship were observed on the part of both teams. Ummm, the way some of those gals got around! F'r instance, Jackie Morton must have charmed the ball, er goal, 'er something with all those goals she made. Speaking of goals, Sally Hudson, Marjorie Ellington, and Elaine Duckett tried to be polite and share their points-sweet things! Let me warn you, though, if Virginia Wright or George Ann Foster get near you-I'd advise you to move, 'cause they're applicants for the football team. Oh, yes, Ann Dyer has developed a reputation for the Non team as a good player, and Dot Stevenson beats any guard we've just about ever seen. Honestly, we could just talk and talk some more about that elegant game; but Emily Post advises that we not extend a discussion too long; so in accordance with this, and your wishes, we will now change the subject!

Co-Eds Find Answer To $$$ Problem

The ingenuity of three Mars Hill college co-eds has solved their Christmas money problemat least temporarily.

Christmas shopping in Asheville Saturday, three southern lovelies -Mitzi Brockman, of Greer, S. C.; Tommie Wright, of Daytona Beach, Fla.; and Gene Warth, of Savannah, Ga. - peddled in Edna Moore dormitory He plans to complete his work jewelry, hats, blouses, sweaters, here this semester. skirts, and dresses.

The rummage sale, held surreptitiously after last lights had flashed, netted $20.00. Miss Wright (who fears unpleasant repercussions from Florida when sadly depleted) was a one-man advertising agency. She paraded the halls with advertising placards on her back.

"At first, the girls thought we were joking," reports Miss Warth, "but when they found we were dead serious they grabbed for our clothes and jewelry and cried for more."

Christmas Offering

The Lottie Moon Christmas Offering stood, at $252.00 Monday, with collections incomplete, according to an announcement made by Hilda Mayo, Y.W.A. president, in chapel. President Blackwell expressed confidence that the final figure would top the $300.00 mark.
