

'Who Is Educated?' Is Theme For Next Two Weeks In Chapel

Under the direction of Miss Frances Snelson the following chapel programs, covering a period of approximately two weeks, will be given to emphasize the marks of a truly educated person.

Who Is Educated?

There are five tests of the evidence of education—correctness and precision in the use of the mother tongue; refined and gentle manners, the result of fixed habits of thought and action; sound standards of appreciation of beauty and of worth, and a character based on those standards; power and habit of reflection; efficiency or the power to do.

Correctness and precision in the use of the mother tongue. Mr. DeShazo. Auditorium, Monday, November 18; Church, Tuesday, November 19.

Refined and gentle manners, the result of fixed habits of thought and action. Mrs. Kolb. Auditorium, Wednesday, November 20; Church, Monday, November 25.

Sound standards of appreciation of beauty and of worth, and a character based on those standards. Mr. McLeod. Auditorium, Thursday, November 21; Church, Wednesday, November 20.

Power of habit of reflection. Dr. Pierce. Auditorium, Monday, November 25; Church, Tuesday, November 26.

Mars Hill Students Broadcast Weekly

WWNC Program Every Friday At 5:15 P.M.

Since October 11 Mars Hill college has been engaging in a weekly broadcast on Friday at 5:15 p.m. over WWNC as a part of the Columbia School of the Air series.

Various groups of Mars Hill students, under the direction of Professor Ramon De Shazo, chairman of the Radio committee will continue to discuss current problems of our national life.

"Veterans' Organizations and Politics" was the subject of the first program, which was discussed by Carl Isaacs, Harold Bennett, James Warren, and Elliott Donnels, all veterans at Mars Hill.

Speakers for the second program on the subject of "How can we check rising prices?" were D. T. Carowan, Jimmy Helvey, Miss Merle Stevens, and Sam Johnson. This program was also moderated by Mr. DeShazo.

The third weekly subject, "How can the Housing Shortage Be Solved?" was moderated by Dean R. M. Lee and discussed by Carl Isaacs, Quentin Harper, Wayne Richardson, and Dean Minton.

"The Issues of Election Campaign," the topic of the fourth program, was moderated by Professor Vernon E. Wood and discussed by Miss Merle Stevens, Miss Sara Padgett, Bob Bunch, and Bobby Hanes.

The subject for the fifth program, "Should we adopt the Six Months' Military Training Program?" was prepared under the direction of Miss Collie Garner and discussed by Ralph Drake, Howard Knight, Roy Young, Norman Humphrey, and Garriss Parker.

The remainder of the programs for November will be moderated by the following faculty members: November 15, Miss Bonnie Wengert; November 22, Miss Mildred Bingham; November 29, Mr. J. A. McLeod.

89 Mars Hill Students Attend BSU Convention Held In Durham

The Mars Hill delegation of 89 left the campus in special buses and by air (air ya' going my way) for the annual North Carolina B. S. U. Convention in Durham after a very special breakfast in the college dining hall at 5:30 a.m. on Friday, November 1.

The long trip was shortened by a stop at High Point City Lake for the purpose of eating a lunch which had been packed at the "Hill." The good ol' Mars Hill spirit manifested itself in a continuous flow of song—having its beginning in hillbilly melodies and digressing until, as usual, the entire group joined in choruses and the all-time favorite hymns.

After several hours at the First Baptist Church in Durham of efforts to either get in the same home with that girl or bisect the communal suitcase and then several more hours looking for that home, the evening's program began. The highlights of the evening were the address by a former Mars Hill B. S. U. president, Rev. Charles A. Maddry, emphasizing the theme that "to live is Christ, and to die is gain" and the rollicking party afterwards in the church basement for the purpose of making every one feel that he had known everyone else for years.

In the schedule for Saturday morning was a panel discussion on four phases of the subject "Baptist Doctrines and Principles" presided over by Dr. Claude U. Broach of Charlotte. The address of the morning, "Living Christ in Race Relations," was given by Dr. Wendell C. Somerville, a Christian Negro who is Executive Secretary of the Lott Carey Baptist Foreign Mission Convention, Washington, D. C., who also led a forum on "The Answer to Race Relations." The keynote of his address was that race relations are not a social, political, or economic problem, but a moral and spiritual problem. Following the message were the four forum groups.

The message of Saturday evening was by Rev. Warren T. Carr, pastor of the Watt Street Baptist Church of Durham, and was on the imperative subject "Live Christ." On Sunday morning the climactic sermon was given by Rev. J. Winston Pearce, host pastor to the Convention.

One of the highlights of the Convention was the reunion of old friends from colleges and towns all over the state. On Saturday morning the total registration was 417, and more were expected during the day.

GI's And VA Checks

Say, veteran, if that subsistence check from the Veterans' Administration fails to show up next month, take your problems to the VA training officer here—not to General Bradley himself.

Fuss, fume, and foam if you must, but do it in the proper place and where—it will do the most good and quickest. If you're supposed to get a check, and it doesn't show up, the VA wants you to tell its training officers about it.

The VA training officer assigned to this campus is Mr. Thomas J. Marlowe. He's located on the Fifth Floor, City Building, Asheville, and his one reason for being here is to give help and assistance to veteran students. Take your check troubles and all other problems related to your rights and responsibilities as a veteran to the VA training officer.

"There are thousands of veterans enrolled at North Carolina colleges and universities this fall," Mr. Marlowe said, "and most of them will get their November subsistence (More on Page 3)

Phy Anniversary Plans Complete

A large number of old Clions and Phis have been invited to Anniversary; therefore, the occasion will be one of great reunion. According to the words of the Philomathian president, Quentin Harper, "As we celebrate our Fifty-sixth Anniversary, we extend a cordial invitation to 'all hands.' We shall be most happy to have any and all of you in our meeting."

numbered 37; and the college acquired a wide reputation for moral character and academic standards.

Last year Dr. Moore retired from active teaching, but continued to add his moral support to the college by devoting himself to "strengthening the ties that bind the students to the college." Moore continues at her desk as bursar of the college with undiminished industry and zeal. Both the joy of seeing the college which they love and to which they have devoted their lives making its high religious and academic standards while growing with celebrated speed.
