

Lions Meet Georgians In SEJC Tourney Today

Milledgeville, Ga., March 14.—Tar Heel cage fans and a sprinkling of loyal Mars Hillians were on hand here this afternoon to lend their cheers and tears to Coach Woodrow "Red" Ramsey and his Mountain Lions who bore North Carolina banners into the Southeastern Junior College basketball tournament today with a preliminary contest against South Georgia. The game was slated to get under way at 4:00 o'clock.

Mars Hill - North Carolina junior college western division champions and runner-up to Wingate for the state crown—is one of eight contending teams from six states of four districts gathered here in this sleepy-eyed Georgia town to fight it out for laurels in this, the first Southeastern tourney since before the war. The tournament is set up on the championship and consolation basis. Eligibility of the participating teams was determined by percentage of points based on total number of games played.

On this, the opening date of the two-day tourney which will climax with championship and consolation finals on Saturday night, four preliminary games are slated to be reeled off in rapid succession. Two will be played in the afternoon; and, the four other quints will tangle in the nightcaps. Marion (Alabama) and Cumberland (Kentucky) clash in the cage festival opener at 3:00 P.M.; Mars Hill and South Georgia at 4:00 P.M.; St. Brenard (Alabama) and Spartanburg (South Carolina) at 7:30 P.M.; and Middle Georgia and Tennessee Wesleyan at 9:00 P.M.

Semi-finals will be held on Saturday morning and afternoon. Seeded bracket (Mars Hill's bracket) games are set for 10:00 A.M. (championship contention) and 1:30 P.M. (consolation). The second bracket games are 11:30 A.M. (championship contention) and 2:30 P.M. (consolation).

Three trophies and the game ball will be awarded on Saturday night at the conclusion of the championship finals. In addition to the coveted championship trophy, cups will go to the championship game runner-up and the consolation winner. The souvenir basketball will be awarded to the consolation runner-up.

Thus far, no favorite or favorites have been established from the eight teams scheduled to compete in the play-offs; although, the locals are definitely among the big four. The Lions emerged

Great Youth Revival Sweeps Mars Hill Campus

Mr. Roy Wall, Former College Trustee Dies

Roy R. Wall, 58, former member of the Mars Hill college board of trustees and prominent resident of Mars Hill, died at his home Tuesday morning, March 4, following a brief illness.

Mr. Wall was widely known as a business man and civic leader. He retired last fall after 20 years of service as appraiser with the Federal Land bank. Before his connection with the bank he was secretary-treasurer of the Mars Hill National Farm Loan Association. He served as a member of the board of aldermen of his home town, and he served as a member of the board of trustees of Mars Hill college from 1942 through 1946, when he went off the board by rotation at the meeting of the convention in Asheville. He was president of the Mars Hill Men's club and a former chairman of the board of deacons of the Mars Hill Baptist Church.

His surviving immediate family consists of his widow; two sons, Sidney and Albert of Mars Hill, and two daughters, Mrs. J. W. Sternberg, Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Frank Fulk, Asheville.

Funeral services were held in the Mars Hill Baptist church, Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock and interment in the Mars Hill cemetery. Rev. John Link and Rev. R. Owen officiated.

Business Club Sees Demonstrations

Representatives of the International Business Machines Company presented a very interesting program for the Business Club which met in the Clio-Phi Hall Tuesday evening, March 11, 7:30 o'clock.

After the business meeting, refreshments were served by Miss Edson and Miss Bingham, assisted by members of the club.

Audrey Baker, right, of Cleveland, Ohio has been elected May Queen and Nell Thornton, of Gadsden, Alabama, Maid of Honor for Mars Hill college's annual May Day program. May Day will be celebrated on May 3 in the amphitheater.

Nons Hold Tea For Clios

On Thursday, February 20, the Nonpareil Literary Society held their annual tea for their Clio cousins. In both Stroup and Edna Moore parlors, the motive of the tea was carried out. A small ship, after sailing calmly through the "Sea of Harmony," gradually cast anchor in the "Harbor of Love." Through its port hole, guests received its ship log books and anchors from "sailors," Polly Jean Yandell and Evelyn Stapleton.

A group of "seamen" entertained the guests throughout the afternoon with a medley of nautical songs. Those taking part in the group were: Joyce Harrell, Kathryn Ely, Clarice Collin, Miriam Hardy, Margaret Brooks, Martha

The pianists were Ann Davis and Edna Palmer.

The guests were led on deck where "captains" Betty Brooks and Polly Anna Gibbs served ginger ale, ice cream, powdered donuts as life preservers, open-faced cream cheese sandwiches, and peanuts in small sail boats. Waitresses, Jo Fahnstock, Audrey Hanes, Iris Godfrey, and Nancy Joyce, dressed as "sailors," assisted at the tea table, and checked coats.

McIver, Langley Lead 'Spiritual Awakening' Week

"I'd rather have Jesus" was the theme of the Mars Hill youth revival which began Sunday, February 23. This theme was carried on through the week in the morning and noon watch services, in the chapel programs led by students, in the evening worship services conducted by Ralph Langley and Bruce McIver and in the prayer meetings held during the week. The meetings closed on Sunday, March 2, but plans have been formulated to transmit the revival spirit in continued work.

Following the suggestion of Dr. Hoyt Blackwell the students are praying, working, and asking for one or more station wagons to provide transportation for those doing mission projects. A committee, headed by Warren Bush and composed of Jean McCurry, Miss Frances Snelson, Jack Dyer, and J. T. Holland, will accept money for this cause. Teams of students plan to conduct week-end youth revival meetings in this vicinity during the spring. As students return home for the summer, many plan to sponsor youth revival meetings in their respective

Station Wagon Drive Climbs To $106.00 Mark

A drive was started Saturday night, March 1, on Mars Hill College campus to raise the necessary amount of money for the purchase of station wagons as a means of conveying groups of students to nearby churches and communities to hold revival meetings and to do general Christian work.

The approximate cost of one station wagon will be $1,700. On March 4, $106.00 had been received from various students.

The committee for receiving the contributions is headed by Warren Bush, assisted by J. T. Holland, Miss Frances Snelson, Jean McCurry, and Jack Dyer.

Faculty Approves New Regulations

Following a meeting of Dr. Blackwell, the Executive Board, Veterans, and other interested college boys, Mars Hill College's faculty met Monday night, February 24, and endorsed two new resolutions which, with the approval of president Blackwell, became a part of the college code of rules and regulations. These regulations permit young men and ladies to sit together in church, excepting daily chapel programs, and permit the organization of the Veterans' club.

A third proposal, sanctioning young men and ladies sitting in booths of downtown cafes and similar establishments here in Mars Hill, is still under consideration of the faculty and a decision will be rendered at a date to be announced later, according to a statement made by Dean R. M. Lee, Tuesday, March 4.
