

Think You Need Glasses? There's An Explanation

If any of our Mars Hill students think that they've been seeing double lately, there's an explanation. Before we found it out a lot of us were thinking that certain of our schoolmates were undoubtedly the fastest moving mortals we'd met, since we'd see them on the way to the cafeteria one minute and studying in the library the next, or enjoying the weekly movie and playing a game of football at the same time. This confusion was quickly ended when we discovered that three of our friends really were double—that they simply had twins who were identical to them.

First on the list of duplicates are the Pullen twins, Jean and Joan, who hail from Wilmington, North Carolina. Both are taking a business course and have all their classes together, which explains why they are often seen hurrying down the hill together as the bell summons us to classes.

Jean and Joan have their careers planned already, and of course both have the same plans. They both want to take up some phase of business, preferably secretarial work, when they graduate, and eventually they plan to settle down with homemaking as a career. Incidentally, they've got the fellows picked out already.

Caudells Are C-II's

Betty Jo and Jonnie Lou Caudell are C-II's, but this is their first year at Mars Hill. They, too, are taking the same course, majoring in physical education, and both plan to enter that work upon graduation. Their first year of college was spent at the University of Miami, which is close home, since they live in Miami.

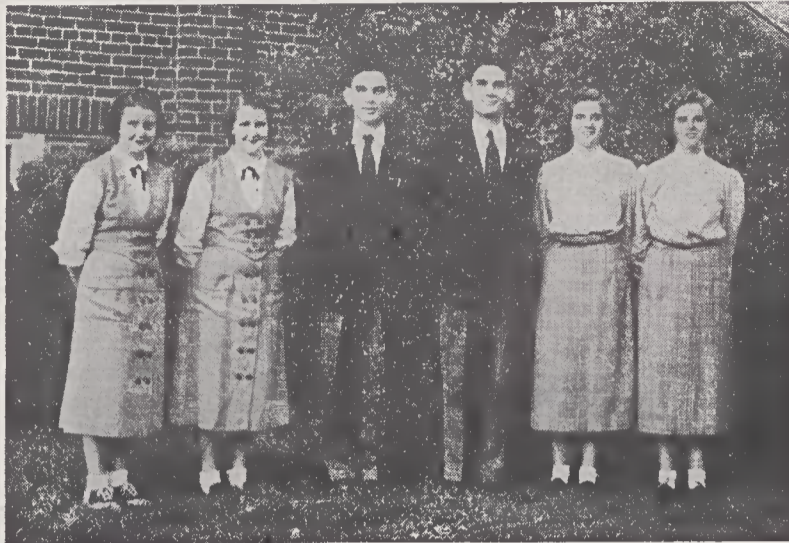

The Caudell twins room together in Stroup dormitory, and of course their room is just like them—two of everything. It seems they, too, have almost exactly the same tastes, likes, and dislikes.

Gillespies From China

Last but not least there are James and Arthur Gillespie, C-I's who have come to Mars Hill from Reidsville, but who have spent most of their lives in China, where their parents are missionaries. The boys attended Shanghai American High School, in Shanghai, China, and came to the United States just last December.

James is taking a pre-med course and plans to be a doctor. Arthur is majoring in chemistry and is working toward the day when he'll be a research chemist. Both the boys will enter Wake Forest when they graduate from Mars Hill.

SEEING DOUBLE?

Sikes Elected Floridian Head

Florida students elected Husky Sikes, of Miami, Florida, president of the Florida Club at the second meeting of the year, October 4. Peggy Stahl, Miami, Florida, is the new vice-president; and Judy Henderson, Jacksonville, Florida, is the new secretary. Latimar Farr, Wachula, Florida, and Luther Mann, Miami, Florida, are the social co-chairmen, and Gerry Fossum, Miami, Florida, is publicity chairman. Latimar Farr was also made chairman of a committee which investigated the chartering of a bus to Jacksonville Christmas holidays. Florida students have already begun signing up to ride on this bus, and the first ones who sign will be given the first opportunity to ride on it.

Volunteers Hold First Meeting

Kelly Caudell welcomed everyone, especially the first year students to the first meeting of Volunteers for Christ in the college auditorium September 27.

Volunteers is an organization for people who are planning to do full-time Christian work other than the ministry. One of the evening's speakers, Bill Huff, stressed that "now is the time and this is the place" to begin mission work. Bonnie Pearce, vice-president of the Volunteers, spoke on Southern Baptist Home Mission work and Jeanne Ramsey, co-chairman of the Mission Council, spoke on local mission work.

Club Comments

Mars Hill College Honor Clubs held their first meetings of the year on Monday and Tuesday nights, October 10 and 11.

Stroup parlor was the scene of the International Relations Club Monday night at 7:30. The program was on the organization of the western countries in Europe. This year the M. H. Club is cooperating with the international organization in planning the programs. Members expect to attend the national meeting. They correspond with a similar organization in Germany. George Knight is president of the Club, with Betty Jo Bernard as vice-president and program chairman.

Harold Newman, president of the Science Club, and Bill Helvey began the first meeting of the club Tuesday night at 7:30, with a humorous skit about an old scientist. Clyde Polk later spoke on "Science as an Explorer," and Guy Wiggins on "Science as a Civil Engineer." Nancy McCracken is vice-president of the club.

Eight new members were initiated into the Scriblerus Club Tuesday night in Edna Moore Parlor. The program was a study of the poetry of Paul Viereck, Pulitzer Prize winner in poetry for 1949. The motif carried out in the program was a patriotic one, since the meeting came on the eve of Columbus Day. Prize winners in the short story will be the subject of the November meeting. Paul Davis is president of the club, and Carol Webb is vice-president.

French Club met at 7:30 Tuesday night in Mrs. Nona Robert home. The program was on three French composers. Three of the records were played and discussed. There was also a discussion of the lives and works of the composer. Officers are: president, Margaret Potts; vice-president, Jimmy Daubruhl; secretary-treasurer, Bonnie Pearce.

Seven members were initiated into the Business Club Tuesday night at 7:30 in Huffman parlor. They were: Pat Murphy, David Gaines, Betty Leatherman, Nancy Rogers, Betty Pate, Helen Britt and Fleta Hampton. Officers are: president, Joyce Sherrill; secretary, Barbara Lilley; and treasurer, Lois Rogers. The vice-president is to be elected. "Building the Future" was the theme of the program on which the following took part: Etta Sue Richardson, Marjorie Barnes, Barbara Lilley, James Cox, George Tanji, and Lois Rogers.

During the fall semester the German Club will operate on the basis of allowing any student who takes German to attend meetings and participate in activities. Later the Club expects to resume honor requirements.
