

Was This Your Experience?

Never will I forget the day I first entered the great metropolis of Mars Hill. My heart was in my mouth as I turned the corner to enter the school and it slid in a slow thump when I caught glimpse of Rivermont.

My first thought was to turn around and walk the other way, but I checked that impulse. As I traveled over the ground, I found that the college was really attractive. I especially liked the location of the girls' dorms upon the hill. Little did I know how much strength it would take to climb that hill seven or eight or nine times a day.

My first two weeks were an experience that no one could afford to miss. I remember well the day I went to register. They handed me a card, gave me a shove, and I was off. I really thought I was "off" before I was through. Then as I glanced at my card I saw the letter "W" before one room number and I asked an intelligent looking student beside me just what that letter stood for. She looked at me with a smile and said, "walk!"

"Walk?" I exclaimed. But it didn't take me long to realize that the girl was more than correct because my classes in Wall have proved to be one long hiking trip. Of course, a place had been reserved on my card for Chapel, and one helpful individual hasten to explain that C-I's are required to attend Chapel every day and Sunday School on Sundays. Saturday came and I rushed to chapel and found my seat. A girl was playing at the organ, and I sat there for ten minutes thinking that everyone was late today for some reason. The girl finally turned and asked me why I was sitting there. When I told he she burst into a big giggle and explained the mistake to me. I retreated to the dorm with a red face.

But the worst was yet to come. I hurried to the cafeteria for my dinner. After standing in line for thirty minutes, I finally reached the table and was about to pick up my tray when a big boy walked up to me and said, "What do you think you are doing?"

"Why I'm getting my tray, I stammered, "I'm getting my tray."

"Well, I'm sorry," he spoke up, "You'll have to let me go first. You're supposed to let all CII's eat first."

"Oh! I mumbled, "I didn't know." He left me standing there for a moment and when he returned there was a long line of people following him. Before I knew what was happening I found myself once more at the door with no food. And every time I got in line for the next few days I always found myself eating with the last group. This situation, however, was remedied near the end of the two weeks. It seems that my meal ticket had not quite run out. This could be because of the fact that I never had time to eat a whole meal. Not only was I allowed to go first in line, but I had more companions to eat with. This sudden popularity was something that I had not counted on, but many disillusioned girls were sympathizing with me the following week.

They say that ignorance will "out," and it certainly did when I went to put my tray on the rack. Not knowing what the trayveyor was for or how it worked, I just put my dishes down the shaft. When I heard them crash below, I began to think that maybe I had done something wrong. Mr. Martin came rushing over toward me, and when I told him my story, he was only too glad to explain to me how the dishes were carried down. It took me some time to acquire the skill that it takes to catch one of those hooks.

But now I am well established at Mars Hill, I have no more trouble with helpful CII's schedules or trayveyors. In fact, I have learned so fast that many think that I am a CII. I think that I speak for the CI class when I say, "You'd better watch out, upperclassmen. We're wised up and on our toes."

—Earline Collier.

Home Ec. Recipe For Good Spouse

Home Economics students studying home preparations of foods have agreed on the following receipt.

"How To Cook Husbands:" A good many husbands are spoiled by mismanagement in cooking, and so are not tender. Some women act as if their husbands were bladders, and they blow them up. Many keep them constantly in hot water, in a stew, or in the roasting pan.

In selecting your husband, you should not be guided by his silvery appearance as in buying a mackerel. Be sure to select him yourself according to your own tastes. Do not go to the market for him; the best is always brought to the door.

MHC Art Club Holds Monthly Meeting

Mars Hill Art Club members held their second monthly meeting in the Art studio at 4:30 Friday, November 4, Lamar Brigman presiding. After a devotional by Elizabeth Bridges, a program was presented by Nancy McCracken, Jean Lambert, and Lamar Brigman on the topic, "Japanese Painting." Afterwards a discussion was held, various members of the club giving ideas and facts on the subject of the program. Miss Bowden gave a summary of Japanese life and customs and described their painting techniques.

A short business meeting followed the program, and plans were discussed concerning a forthcoming trip of the art students to visit the Biltmore Estate and the home of Dr. Charles Norburn, owner of a number of originals.

Works of the students for the past month were displayed during the meeting, and the two most outstanding pictures were chosen by the students for the monthly awards of first and second prizes. The pictures were "The Head of Christ," by Elizabeth Bridges, and "Smokehouse," by Jean Lambert.

Last month's winners were a floral composition by Lamar Brigman and a scene by Jean Hamrick.

Officers for this term are Lamar Brigman, president; Nancy McCracken, vice president; Jean Hamrick, secretary and historian.

All students, whether or not they take art, are welcome to join the Art club at its next monthly meeting.

Club Comments

Honor clubs of MHC met for the second time this year Monday and Tuesday, November 7 and 8.

In the IRC, "Tito's Break with Moscow" was the general topic for discussion. Jean Stevens, Carolyn Carlton, Rebecca Cumby, and Dan Stallings spoke on the following topics: Tito and his co-operation at first with Moscow, Tito's definite break, Economic and political problems in Yugoslavia, and a discussion on whether or not the U.S. should give aid to Tito. The club met in Stroup parlor.

"New Developments in Medicine" was the topic for discussion in the Science Club. After the devotion and a humorous reading, "Lover Come Back—Love in the Chemistry Lab," students made talks on penicillin, streptomycin, and insulin and its uses in shock treatment.

Greetings were given the Scriblerus club members by Carol Webb, vice-president, who presided in the place of Paul Davis, president. Cery Fossom gave the devotions, and "Death of a Salesman," a Pulitzer Prize play by Arthur Miller, was the center of attention for the night. Bill Lloyd gave a sketch of the life of the playwright; Wilma Berry gave an interpretation of Act I of the play. Michael McGee interpreted the second act. The "Requiem" from "Death of a Salesman" was drama-tized by the following: Thornburg, Eva McConnell, Olive, and Paul Davis.

The program of the Business club featured a debate, the of which was: "Resolved: machine dictation is more advantageous to a business man shorthand." Pat Murphy and Britt spoke for the negation. Jorie Barnes and Betty Pate for the affirmative. After the debate, Nancy Rogers spoke of New Philosophy for Service. Sue Richardson concluded the program with a solo.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hall retained the Orpheon club Tuesday night. Richard Strauss was subject of study for the evening.

Several cities of France the study of the French club day night. Julia Almeida led members in singing French songs.

MHC German club held its meeting of the semester Monday night in the home of Mrs. Officers were elected for the organization and a short devotion and program were presented.

After a program on Mexican Spanish club elected some of its new officers Tuesday night in the man parlor. They are: Donae Mae Dixson, president; Taylor, vice-president; and Lawler, secretary.

Baylor Building To Be Built Soon

The cornerstone of Baylor's $800,000.00 Browning Building will be laid within the coming two or three weeks, Dr. A. J. Armstrong, chairman of the English Department, has announced.

The edifice will contain eight classrooms, and offices for the entire English staff, besides housing Baylor's world-famous Browning collection. The building's total value will be about $1,250,000.00 when the collection is installed, Dr. Armstrong estimated.

Another guy got tired of the "whatcha doin' Saturday night—I'd like to go out with you but I have a date" routine and pulled an old comeback out of the hat:

"You busy Friday night? Oh. Well, are you busy Saturday night? Oh. Have you got a date Sunday night too? No? I sure hope you get one!" —Dakota Student.
