It's Precious

Some people complain about not having any talents; others complain about lack of money; and still others complain about lack of beauty. We of Mars Hill may or may not be guilty of such complaints, but most of us are guilty of complaining about not having enough time. We could go cn and on moaning about the things in life which seem to be allotted unequally to people. Yet, everyone has the same amount of time. Each is given twenty-four hours a dayno more, no less. We may use only those, and there is definitely no getting an advance on the hours of the next day.

How we use our time is a matter of individual choice. Most of us who complain about our heavy, woeful load should take stock before complaining and see just how many precious minutes we waste every day. My, but aren't our faces red when we begin adding up those minutes! Maybe it is not the hands on the clock after all—maybe it is just us. Even if we do not have time to do all we would like to do, we still must admit that we really waste useful time.

It is said that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. This may be true, but there is hardly any real danger around Mars Hill. We must remember that everything has a price. If we play when we should be working, then that "F" is the price we must pay; therefore, have we really any right to be complaining? We must not pay too high a price for fun. We must be careful not to shortchange ourselves.

Hats Off!

Hats off to the pranksters who seem to have reformed this year! Few evidences of destructive and mean pranks were seen in this area on the morning of November 1.

What does Halloween mean to you? Does it bring to mind noise, soaped windows, and firecrackers, or costumes, false faces, carnivals, and jack-o'lanterns? For as long as most of us can remember it has been a part of Halloween tradition to play as many pranks as possible.

Many people claim that they can not have any fun unless they soap windows or take part in other mean and destructive pranks. Perhaps they have never realized that the pranks which offer the most entertainment are the ones which do not harm anyone or destroy anything and that do not leave a guilty feeling after they are done. It seems that the people in this area (college campus, Mars Hill, and Asheville) have discovered this fact.

Here on campus the students donned their costumes and exerted their ingenuity in producing skits at a Halloween carnival. Those who didn't participate in the skits made enough noise as they clapped and yelled for the contestants for king and queen, from whom Kay Wells and Mr. Robertson were chosen to reign as our own King and Queen of Halloween.

Most of us had laughed so much that we had little energy left for meanness. After hungrily eating the delicious gingerbread made by Miss Caroline and Mother Sparks, we returned to our dormitories. Other than short-sheeting roommate's beds, few pranks were played.

I heard that a few cars were locked in garages to avoid being soaped. Oh, well, everyone can't be expected to reform, although a sincere effort has been made. One of our New Year's resolutions can be to try having fun next Halloween without being destructive. We succeeded this year.

In Sympathy

The Hilltop staff, together with the entire college family, extends deepest sympathy to Robert R. Chapman, assistant to the registrar, on the passing of his father, R. R. Chapman, Sr., who died last Tuesday. Mr. Chapman was a resident of Spencer and was employed by the Southern Railway company there.

The Hilltop

PLAIN LIVING AND HIGH THINKING

Published by the Students of Mars Hill College

Entered as second-class matter February 20, 1926, at the Postoffice at Mars Hill, North Carolina, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Published semi-monthly during the college year.

Volume XXVII	November 15, 1952	Number 5
Editor-in-Chief		Margaret Johnston
Managing Editor		Anne Thompson
Assistant Sports Edit	ors David	Heizer - Fred Toung
Assistant in Advertisi	ing	Mary Jeanne Brown
Assistant in Circulati	on	Calvin Metcair
Exchange Editor		Beog Zai-

Courtney Isenhour, Joyce Ellis, Sarah Adams, Mildred Scroggs, Wanda Chason, Helen Brown, Mitchell Cornell, John Dean, Kay Wells, and Margaret Wilson.

Pictured is Susie C. Kim, holding the desk plaque, of ebony, inlaid with mother-of-pearl, which her mother made and sent to Dr. Blackwell.

Nineteen-Year-Old Korean Girl Is Recent Addition to Student Body

Mars Hill has had a recent addition to the student body. This addition is none other than Susie C. Kim from Seoul, Korea.

Nineteen-year-old Susie plans to be in America for six to eight years. Two of these years will be spent at Mars Hill where she is taking the pre-medical course. After finishing at Mars Hill, Susie plans to attend a senior college, become a medical missionary, and return to Korea to serve her people. She hasn't decided definitely what school she will attend next, but she is thinking about going to Ohio to study.

In connection with working as a medical missionary, she hopes to work with orphanages if possible. She says that the needs of her people are great. They lack even essential food and clothing. She states that a pair of oxfords, such as are worn on campus, would cost about $20 in Korea. Susie is delighted with her first pair of hose and dress shoes which she purchased recently in Asheville.

First Impressions

Susie's conception of America was a land of big tall buildings; therefore, she was greatly disappointed when she got to Long Beach and the fog was so thick that she couldn't see anything. She likes the "big mountains," but definitely dislikes the food of Americans. She prefers vegetables to the meat which Americans seem to love. She does, however, think that ice cream and cokes are wonderful. One of the sights she thrilled to most on her arrival in America was the sight of the big super markets with great shelves of green things to eat.

Susie was in Seoul when the North Koreans invaded the city, and with other refugees she lived in hiding under houses for 40 days before she was able to make her escape. At one time she went without food for 10 days.

Susie certainly appreciates the advantages offered by the American schools. She says that only the rich attend school in Korea and then the school facilities are very poor. Susie finished high school but was forced to quit after two months of college because the communists took over the schools and other large buildings.

buildings.

Huyler Sponsors

Colonel Frank Huyler, father of Mars Hill's Nancy Huyler, is Susie's official sponsor. Colonel Huyler met Susie when she was employed at the Air Force headquarters in the photography laboratory. It was here that she learned to speak the English language so well. Colonel Huyler decided that a person Susie's ability should be given opportunities; therefore he is making it possible for her to attend school. Colonel Huyler's action resulted in other officers sending other students to school. At present there are four boys and two other girls studying in America because of such spon-

An investigation which lasted six or seven months was conducted before it was possible for Susie to leave for Mars Hill. This was the reason for her delay in enrolling. It took her one month actually to complete the trip which was made by ship and plane.

Susie has three brothers but no sisters. Two of her brothers are attending college in England and the other is in the armed service of Korea. Her father is a high official of the Korean ministry of defense and is in India on a government mission.

Hill Topic

Those much-needed rall Mars Hill this week by more emphatically to our the improvements being on campus. For instance, is the widening of Edna road with the clay taker the new church lot. Stars had been complaining abos gred dust collecting on shoght socks. Now house mother house keepers are compleabout the red mud tracke of the dormitories! Which of the dormitories when the roaracin paved, it will really be a bide ful thing!

It won't be long now ed we C-II's see those old fai. Co faces on campus. Homeof all will be here before we know the How good it will be to see the er Mars Hillians! C-I's, IC for feel bad—your time will he next year. It may seem from amazing to you when you the excited screams all over the campus along about Than remaing, but believe you me Bol will understand next year the feeling of seeing old C-II's and

We would like to commed the behavior in chapel this own Some of the teachers havene Theard to express the opin aid that it is much better than Lee of last year. However, the year that there is still a little ped much studying.

Between The the Book Ends by h

Here's an exciting new hole to look for on the library bwns shelves. Thomas B. Costainemse tinguished historian, has tult of his talents to Biblical times a weave an inspirational ague about the cup used by Chrithe Last Supper with His ples. If you enjoyed Cost The Black Rose and High lers you will want to read Silver Chalice.

This novel, based on the ends of the years follow The Christ's crucifixion, descrutation, the life of Basil of Antiockspit young and skilled artisan, chased from slavery to create Recorative casing for the recious Chalice. The scenes laid in Antioch, Rome, and rusalem. Throughout the Medbarically colorful capitals of cto ancient worlds, the sorceryut of the infamous Simon the Trigician, and even the ire of cto Roman Emperor Nero, Bous pursues his object, diverted ome by the charms of two beautiopy women, one good and one egain

The Silver Chalice is a station of spectacular beauty, polynomial of spectacular beauty, polynomial and spiritual insight. It is a economiating insight into what interpretation in the minds are the such men as Paul and Josephine Arimathea, and even so humber a novice Christian as Basil sculptor, in the latter years the first century, A. D.

In the book reviews The New Chalice was described as Rel novel of gripping interest frem of action and adventure."