Lynwood Sampson, Mars Hill Student Suffers Fatal Injury in Sledding Accident

Lynwood Sampson, 18, a sophomore student at Mars Hill College, died on January 27, as a result of injuries suffered in a sledding accident the previous evening.

His sled was struck by a car about 9:30 p. m. as he was sledding on the Mars Hill-Marshall road that runs through the dormitory, coasting across the road and stopping on the other side.

Books Available About Focus Week Topics

On display in the Memorial Library and Student Center are various books connected with topics which will be discussed in group meetings and seminars during Christian Focus Week.

Books on display in the library may be checked out. The student committee on publications hopes that through the reading of these excellent books persons may better understand the truths that they are searching for. Many pamphlets for general use are also on display. Books on display in the Student Center are for sale and are good choices to add to one's personal library.

The reading of good books on a problem or question that confronts one often will give a better insight into it or a clearer understanding of it. It is the hope of the committee that every student will take advantage of this opportunity and read at least one appropriate book during Focus Week.

ATTENTION! This is a last reminder to all students interested in submitting articles to the Hilltop for the Literary Edition. The deadline for submission is February 20. At the present very few articles have been received by the staff and unless more are received we will be unable to have a Literary Edition.

Witnesses said they saw the car approach; then the sled, but the car struck Sampson and the sled.

Monroe Mace, driver of the car, was cleared of blame. Dr. W. A. Sams, who performed the autopsy, said the death was an accident.

Sampson was a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society and was captain of the basketball team in his senior year.

He was interested in science and in his senior year was voted "Best All-around student" in his senior class. He was also a member of the engineering student body.

Memorial services were held in the Methodist Church at Mars Hill on January 28, with the Rev. and Mrs. Lee and The Rev. and Mrs. Steve R. Carter, officiating. Burial was conducted on January 29, at his home in Lumberton. Attempts were made to contact Doug Lilly, Sam Ann Mes Carter, Gene Foster, Jim Oates, Donna Poole, George Ridenour, Corn, Glenda Stone, Beverly Hendren.
