

Lions won their second of the season by beatingerson-Newman JV, 27-7, ay.

The Hilltop

Published by the Students of Mars Hill College

The first of a series of faculty recitals will be presented at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Spainhour Hall by Robert Rich, voice instructor and director of choirs.

XXXVII

MARS HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1962

Number 3

Mars Hill tries patience of Job

This is where the group from Canton will be stationed . . . oops, that's beyond the fence, Band Director Wayne Pressley explains to John Lackey, Glenda Robinette and Alice Swof. is on the agenda for Band Day next Saturday. More than 300 high school and junior high musicians will join the Mars Hill band in presenting a varied musical program during the game halftime.

The "Book of Job" will be presented in Moore auditorium Thursday, Nov. 1, at 8 p.m. by the Everyman Players, a professional acting troupe which has toured two continents.

The drama is under the direction of Orlin and Irene Corey, purportedly one of the most notable man-wife teams in the American theater. Their unique style in theatrical production has received international recognition, culminating in "The Book of Job." Presented in the Greek manner, with a protagonist and a male and female chorus, the production was adapted by Mr. Corey from the Old Testament story of Job, whose patience and forbearing gave him and his God a victory over the temptations of Beelzebub.

Mr. and Mrs. Corey are both graduates of Baylor University, where they received their M.A. degrees in drama. Mrs. Corey procured her M.A. with an emphasis on design and is responsible for the mosaic costumes and Byzantium setting of the play, in which the actors' costumes are mosaic, including mosaic masks. Mr. Corey claims to be interested in religious drama and made this the theme of his master's thesis.

"When this production was performed beneath the Atomium at the Brussell's World Fair," remarked producer-director Orlin Corey, "it was for many a reminder that the eternal search for meaning in life remains man's greatest quest. God's purpose in history is no less essential to our times than it was in the age of the Bedouins."

Look two ways says committee

The campus safety committee, an organization established to promote less accidents through better safety, is now working on its program for the school year.

Under the direction of Mr. Emmett Sams, last year's Laurel dedication winner and teacher in the mathematics department; and Mr. Richard Hoffman, a member of the social science department, the committee has already been responsible for one fire drill and for having crossing sections marked across the highway.

"Of particular importance in this matter is the habit of looking both ways before crossing streets," said Mr. Sams. "And," added Mr. Hoffman, "we certainly want to avoid the panic we had two years ago when the old auditorium burned down." Simple safety precautions are being stressed and the committee has formulated plans for further safety practice which will be made known at a later date.

Now making a tour of a limited number of colleges and universities, the drama has been put on the "must see" lists by THE NEW YORK TIMES, CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, TIME and NEWSWEEK.

"The Book of Job" is the third item in this year's lyceum series. Following this production will be Basil Rathbone, who will appear Dec. 4.

BOOK OF JOB PLAYERS

On the Mars Hill scene . . .

THE ROYAL AMBASSADORS from the western part of Tarheelia will be feted with a tour of the Mars Hill campus Oct. 27. They will also be honored guests at the football game with Marion and will get to view the band-day program and be treated to dinner. Mr. B. W. Jackson, state R. A. secretary, will be in charge.

PROPER TABLE MANNERS was the topic of discussion at the Oct. 10 meeting of the Home Economics department. A program was given in each of the girls' dorms with emphasis on proper seating, correct use of napkins and which foods were to be eaten with the fingers. The program was sponsored by the woman's student council and the various house officers.

AN EMORY UNIVERSITY nursing representative, Miss Virginia Proctor, will be at the college on Wednesday, Oct. 31, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Miss Proctor is director of student development for the Emory Nursing School.

MARS HILL HIGH SCHOOL is now offering night courses which lead to all degrees offered by the University of North Carolina and North Carolina State College. A year of college work at either freshman, sophomore or junior level may be taken.

Classes are held each Monday and Wednesday night from 7-9 p.m. More than 130 courses are being proffered. The number of the courses are the same as those appearing in the catalogues of UNC and NC State. Classes are also being held for individuals seeking to complete their high school studies.

The program is sponsored with the cooperation of the two colleges.

Park Inn hosting HEC

The North Carolina Home Economics Association will hold its annual convention at the Grove Park Inn of Asheville Nov. 2-3 with several Mars Hill students attending.

Mrs. Howell, club advisor, says that the convention will include a breakfast meeting of the college club chapters. Delegates from Mars Hill will be chosen at the next meeting of the club, Oct. 22. Featured speaker for the meeting will be Mrs. Elizabeth G. Parham, home economist with the Carolina Power and Light Company.

The Grove Park convention will feature as its main speakers Dr. Naomi Adbanese, dean of home economics of N. C. State College; Richard H. Wright III, founder and president of Wright Homes, Inc.; and Dr. Marjorie Knoll, head of the economics department of Pennsylvania State University.

At the Miami convention during the summer, "The Mars Hill College Chapter of the American Home Economics Association" was adopted as the new name for the college home economics club.

Alumna Loretta Duncan, a graduate of Mars Hill in 1959, is one of the 59 graduate assistants at Appalachian State Teachers College for the current school year.

Miss Duncan's assistantship is in English. She is an English major, specializing in junior college instruction. As an undergraduate at AST, she was active in the chorus, Baptist Student Union and the Vernician Society.

Band day scheduled for Oct. 27

Band Day, an annual event at Mars Hill, will take place on the Mars Hill High School field Oct. 27th with eight bands participating. In addition to our own band, there will be representatives from seven junior and senior high school bands from the surrounding Western Carolina communities.

These attending and their directors are: Bethel High, James Galloway; Canton High, Carroll Shaver; Clyde High, Ronald C. Muench; David Millard Junior High (Asheville), Miss Pat Laye; Lee H. Edwards High (Asheville) Ed Benson; Murph High, Ed Reynolds; and North Buncombe High (Weaverville), Neil Wilson.

The approximately 370 high school musicians who will invade our campus for the day will climax their visit by presenting pregame and half-time entertainment for our game with Marion at 7:30.

Roll around this yegetown intramural play with most of far taking place. In the open, an defeated Br overwheled m and the cottages 21-0.

ere will be some on this year on level, with the practice game wirs in an election is the at some later soccer players, r, uncle, father or sted by Coach A, he adds, if the candi- no famous ancestors, rge his name to Ken-

Weekly scheduled will be announced the ANNOUNCE to a student opinion Saturday, sponsored under the VICKING, campus news- the poll 83 per cent intervention with 15 per cent ed. Only 18 per cent sed to armed interven- 50 per cent said that should not be taken tin American consent.

ARTIN LUTHER KING last week and received ause from the student his speech. King, a inister and native of as the first in a college nuring nationally promi- ball. More co- res. lated before the

Following the track squared off in ball. More co- res. lated before the