

SGA Adopts New Crest As Official Coat of Arms

An insignia which will serve as official coat of arms in all functions of student government has been adopted by the SGA and approved by the administration. (See cut at right.)

Designed by Josten's, the company which makes the college ring, the insignia features an engraving of the familiar mountain behind the imposing bell tower of the Administration Building. A scroll in the upper left corner symbolizes scholastic merit. In the opposite corner there are four stars, representing the academic classes. Mounted above the engraving is the Mars Hill College mountain lion, surrounded by scrollwork.

The emblem was secured by a special committee appointed by President Gary Brookshire near the beginning of first semester. Headed by Senior Senator Carolyn Lamb, the committee included Gerald Lankford and Ron Harvey. They consulted George Goosman of Asheville, Josten's representative, and submitted suggestions for the design.

The emblem may be used on official SGA stationery and as a large plaque to be displayed in the SGA meeting room. Such a plaque will carry an explanation of the various elements in the design.

The new crest will also be incorporated into a pin to be made exclusively for SGA members.

The speaker was introduced by program chairman Jack Reece. Plans were revealed during the meeting for the club's annual field trip. This year's off-campus tour of a business establishment will be on Apr. 13, when members will visit the huge American Lank Corp. plant just west of Asheville.

Campus Poll Uncovers Various Holiday Plans

by Cecelia Butler

Mars Hill students are eagerly awaiting spring vacation, which will begin at the end of class work next Friday and extend until classes resume at 8:00 on Monday morning, April 4. A poll reveals that Mars Hill students have a variety of things planned for their vacations:

Steve Rountree: I plan to do some water skiing and skin diving around Miami.

Doug Mulkey: I'm going to a sculptor show in Atlanta.

Lynn Mayfield: I'm going to look for a job and visit my fiancée.

Allen Hayes: I'll be getting ready for my wedding.

Ray Johnson: The first weekend the mission council has a spring revival in Myrtle Beach. Then I'm going to Winthrop.

Henry Moon: I'm going to Jacksonville Beach.

Bill Carr: I'll be working at Belk's in Charlotte. I'm going to wash some fire trucks too.

Cathy Tilghman: I'm going to Florida to visit relatives.

Ned Boyette: I'm going to fly with a friend who's taking flying lessons.

Carroll Reed: I'm going to preach at a youth week revival in Rockmart, Georgia.

Wade McIver: I'll be doing my student teaching at North Buncombe High School.

Larry Phillips: I can't tell!

Ken Sessoms: I don't know. What did you have in mind? What's it for? ... The Hilltop! Oh, gosh.

Don Tesh: I'm going to catch up on all my unfinished work, including seeing Joy (Simpson) as much as possible.

Cherrie Moore: I'm going to make my spring wardrobe.

Linda Brooks: I'm going home, then I'm going to Vernon's.

Grace Huang: I'm going to Hendersonville with Sandra Wells.

Brenda Robbins: Bonnie Alexander and I are going to New York.

Robert Haynes: I'm going to work in Washington.

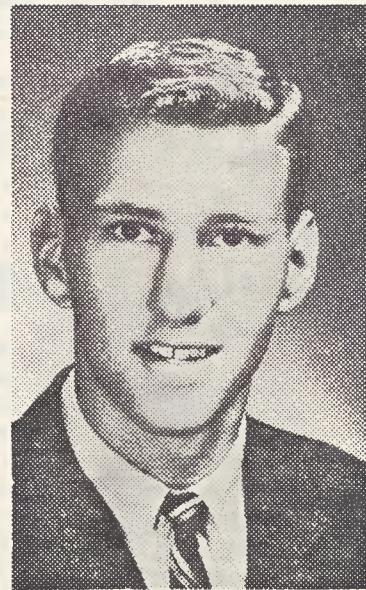

Harriet Hunter: I'm going to the beach.

Judy Henson: Mostly feed cattle and help daddy on the farm.

Lavonda Thomas: I'm going to Ocean Drive.

Mary Chan Lovell: Betty Biggers and I are going home to New Bern and to the beach.

Mary Ellen Saunders: My boy friend and I are going to the Azalea Festival.
