Cadenza Previewed

by Kay Gregory

Tuesday evening, April 24 at 7:30 p.m. the 1973 issue of Cadenza will make its debut in the form of a literary and art presentation by those students whose work is included in the magazine. With work from 51 students, the evening should prove most interesting and entertaining. This premiere offers student contributors not only the opportunity to be published in the magazine, but also the opportunity to present their work to a public audience.

First on the evenings agenda is a student reading of portions of the literature. With their own copy of Cadenza in hand, the audience can follow as the 32 literary contributors read their original poetry, short stories, prose pieces, and dramatic dialogues. Highlighting the program will be the announcement of the winners of the 1973 Cadenza contest.

Cadenza, in cooperation with the English and Art Departments of Mars Hill College, sponsored its first contest this year to promote student writers and artists. $100 in prize money was divided among the categories of poetry, prose, and art (all inclusive). Judges for the 1973 contest were Dr. Francis Hulme and Mr. Joseph van der Meer. All material was submitted anonymously to the judges and absolutely no distinctions were made between the work of the staff members and contributors.

Dr. Francis Hulme, literary judge, has studied and taught at many universities both in the United States and abroad. He obtained his M.A. degree from Emory University and his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota. He did post graduate work in Kabuki and Chinese Theatre. He studied and taught at the University of Tokyo and the University of Hong Kong where he was a Fulbright Professor. Dr. Hulme taught at Mars Hill College for the 1970-71 school year. He

Social Goals

Discussed

by Ken Chamlee

The Student Affairs Council sub-committee on social goals met at Christmont April 12-14 to discuss and organize the future of Mars Hill's social progress. This committee was organized by Dr. Donald Gehring, Dean of Student Development. Dr. Fred Bentley, President of Mars Hill College, had said there would be no more piece meal social changes until definite goals, attitudes, and objectives were drawn up. He appointed this task to the Student Affairs Council. Dean Gehring organized the sub-committee and with the help of David Gasperson and Mrs. Susan Remine, prepared a tentative agenda.

The first session, Thursday evening April 12, was mostly brainstorm and searching for specific improvements in the directions of personal, social, and community involvement. Friday's sessions were spent recognizing realistic limitations to the overall concept, working the
