

THE GOOD, THE BAD, AND THE AWFUL

Herr Kramer

I just received a list of new Warner Brothers' movies in release, as well as a schedule of those in production. Since I am a bit tired of re-viewing oldies; I thought a series of one line pre-reviews might be a good change of pace.

Dog Day Afternoon- Al Pacino is fine until the crowd discovers that his wife is a he.

Let's Do It Again- Uptown Saturday night plus "Dynamite".

Lisztomania- Ken Russell makes Liszt and Wagner the first pop stars.

All The Presidents' Men- Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman in the story of the Watergate Affair.

Barry Lyndon- Stanley Kubrick's new film based on Thackeray's novel.

Bogart Slept Here- Neil Simon's new comedy.

Ode to BillyJoe- You will finally find out what was thrown off the Tallahatchee Bridge.

Outlaw-Josey Wales- Clint Eastwood as a "Walking Tall" civil war soldier.

The Stuntman- Burt Reynolds in a film that should suit him perfectly.

A Star is Born- Barbara Streisand is a rock singer in this musical love story.

The Exorcist Part II- How can they outdo the gore in part one?

Dirty Harry III- Clint Eastwood and his 357 are at it again.

One would certainly have to say that Warner Brothers' new releases are predominately masculine-oriented.

THE GOOD:

The Emigrants (PG) The story of the Swedish emigration to America in the middle of the 19th century. Liv Ullman and Max von Sydow. Picked as one of 1974's best by many film critics. Nov. 23, Moore.

THE BAD:

Billy Jack (PG) Compared to Trial this one is an academy award winner. Delores Taylor only cried 62 times and Billy Jack only took his shoes off once. The karate scenes are great but too short. Should be a big crowd in Moore. Nov. 9, Moore.

Age (PG) George C. Scott in a fictitious story based on an actual nerve gas accident. Scott plays it perhaps a little too naively. All in all the film should upset you. Nov. 16, Moore.

The Eiger Sanction (R) Clint Eastwood in a stupid but exciting spy story. Eastwood did his own climbing scenes and a climber was actually killed during production. Nov. 6-8, Mars.

The Great Waldo Pepper (PG) Robert Redford as a barnstormer. Lots of fun.

The Yakuza (R) Robert Murchum in an interesting but disappointing film. The Yakuza is the Japanese answer to the Mafia; rather than the kiss of death they believe in giving a part of themselves. The samurai sword fight is exciting. Nov. 20-22, Mars.

THE AWFUL:

Once Is Not Enough (R) Jacqueline Suzanne's novel. Kirk, the chin, Douglas, David, the fugitive, Jansen; and George, Knieval, Hamilton and a cast of mediocrity prove that once is not enough; it is more than enough. Nov. 10-12, Mars.

Last week's film quiz answer: Marian Michael Morrison.

This week's question- What Director, in order to promote his newest film, held a party in the graveyard, used coffins as tables, and had the waitresses dress in black dresses with veils?

with the people of the community. During the afternoon, students were involved in construction projects that improved the physical conditions of the buildings that housed the ministries.

Winter Park, Florida also hosted a group of students from Mars Hill. The students were working in conjunction with the First Baptist Church of Winter Park. They were involved in survey work and personal contact in surrounding neighborhoods. Also encompassed in their ministry was follow-up and the personal sharing of their faith.

Two years ago, a group of MHC students were sent to Mesa, Arizona. There they helped build a Spanish Mission and helped complete construction on an educational building for a church in a nearby community.

This year definite projects are set up for the Christian Social Ministries of Seventh Baptist Church, Baltimore, Maryland and for the Youth Ministry of First Baptist Church, Winter Park, Florida. Negotiations are underway for projects in Phoenix, Arizona, and at Koinonia Farm in Americus, Georgia.

For more information about how you can become involved in a January Mission Project for Religion or Sociology credit, sign the mailing list in the reception area of the Counseling Center, the list on the bulletin board near the post office in Wren College Union, or see the Chaplain, Robert Melvin.

MARS HILL GRADS AT SOUTHERN SEMINARY -- Several recent graduates of Mars Hill College take a break between classes at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky. They are part of a record-breaking entering class of 719 students, up 46 per cent from last fall. Pictured (left to right): John Saunders, Teresa Owens, Alan Trent, and Reed Bowman.

Eligible to Vote?

A quarter of a million college and high school students are eligible to vote in North Carolina. But they can't vote unless they are registered.

The Campaign for Student Voters (CSV) will encourage these 250,000 potential voters to register before the North Carolina primary in March.

Founded last summer by eight high school, community college, and university student groups, CSV has the endorsement of the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, and the State Board of Elections. CSV is only the second such drive in history to be endorsed by the Board of Elections.

CSV will hold conferences where student leaders can learn about voting laws and how to organize a registration campaign on their own campuses. So far about 600 students from across the state have been invited to these conferences, said Gary Thomas of the N.C. Student Legislature, coordinator of CSV.

In some counties officials have made it hard for students to register. But with the help of the State Board of Elections, CSV hopes to break down those barriers and make it easier for students to exercise their rights as citizens.

Individuals or groups who want to join CSV's effort may write coordinator Gary Thomas, c/o Student Government, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.

Challenging

by Valorie McNabb
Does the thought of spending three weeks in a challenging setting, doing everything from manual labor to leading worship services, send a chill up your spine and make you see stars and stripes forever? If so, perhaps you're just the person we'll be needing this January for mission projects in Baltimore, Maryland; Winter Park, Florida; Koinonia Farm, Georgia; or Phoenix, Arizona.

For the past two years, a group of Mars Hill College students have worked in inner-city missions in Baltimore, Maryland. The students have served in various capacities working along with the full-time staff members of 7th Baptist Church in their on-going social ministries. Their ministry to the "total" person includes special emphasis towards meeting the community's physical and emotional needs as well as their spiritual needs. Some of the on-going ministries at 7th Baptist include: the House for mental patients, high-rise apartments for the elderly, alcoholic rehabilitation, breakfast programs, and a lunch program for senior citizens. Students worked in the morning in projects which involved interaction

Mini-mester