

Madison Campaign

Mars Hill College's Madison Assurance Campaign received a boost last week when Wachovia Bank and Trust announced a "lead" gift of $15,000 and R. D. Williams of Hendersonville presented the school with a $10,000 challenge gift.

Wachovia executives Steve Fisher of Mars Hill and Herbert Buckner of Marshall stated in announcing the gift that "Wachovia has a deep and abiding interest in Mars Hill College and Madison County," and wanted to do its part to insure that the college reaches its goal.

Wachovia has supported the college in each of its previous fund raising campaigns for buildings, and the two executives noted that the bank "has a special interest in seeing that the recent difficulties encountered by the college are overcome and that Mars Hill College remains a strong and viable institution."

On the heels of the Wachovia announcement, R. D. Williams, a Madison County native and president of the World of Clothing store near Hendersonville, issued a challenge to the business community of Madison County to match dollar for dollar, gifts up to $10,000.

Mars Hill College president Dr. Fred Bentley, in acknowledging the challenge, noted that this will make gifts from local businesses doubly important. Dr. Bentley also noted that as the mid-point of the one-month campaign draws near, approximately one-half of the $200,000 goal had been reached.

"We are extremely grateful for the response to our request for help from our neighbors in Madison County," Dr. Bentley stated; "and for the volunteers who have spent their time and energy assisting us in reaching our friends in the county."

The campaign will end Monday, May 16. Those wishing to make a contribution may contact any of the workers listed in the News Record article published April 13; or they may contact the Office of Development at the college, telephone 689-1102.

The flag corps is a division of the marching band which provides half time entertainment at football games. In the past year the flag corps has stepped forward and made itself known. Not only did they perform for half time football games but for basketball as well. New uniforms have also added more color and showmanship to the corps. Participating in the unit takes much hard work and dedication, but is also fun and exciting. Anyone interested in joining the corps for the next year should contact Judy Bullman or Mr. Babelay.
