HOMEcoming 1993 COVERAGE

By Rhonda Baity
Hilltop Staff Writer

On Saturday, September 25, Mars Hill's campus was saturated with familiar faces of the past. The day was held special for each individual on the campus. The day was Mars Hill's Homecoming 1993.

Saturday, September 25 was full of excitement. Alumni were ecstatic about being on homely territory; some alumni could not wait to visit with their old friends and acquaintances. There were some alumni who brought surprises such as new additions to the family with them.

The alumni seemed to enjoy the day. For them, it was adventuresome and tiresome. Among complaints, were about the rain that fell during the football game.

Nancy Harmon, alumni, commented, "Homecoming was wonderful, and it was so good, to see everybody. However, the weather really dampened the spirit."

For students, Homecoming was experiences that would not soon be forgotten. The week went off with a bang. The Homecoming Committee, with hard work and long hours had each detail planned well. They oversaw each event, and even got up early Saturday morning to decorate the campus.

The campus fraternities and sororities worked diligently on their Lion's Growl skits and their parade floats. All was with the intention to pop the campus. They also decorated the campus Saturday morning.

Golden Pride

Golden Pride spread school spirit by decorating the locker rooms with homemade "spirit" signs for each football player. On Saturday morning the organization "painted" the football field with blue and gold streamers, posters, and balloons. During the game, Golden Pride sold programs, worked Will Call, and helped in the press box.

Powder Puff

Homecoming was not all work, though. Powder Puff football was held on Thursday, September 23. There were six teams that were a mix of girl's basketball, sororities, and friends. The participation was good and a lot of people are interested in doing it again. According to Cacie Campbell, they will definitely do it again. She would like to thank several football players for being referees, and Coach Bennett for lending them the intermural equipment.

Krista Faeth described the powder puff cheerleaders as "hilarious, great, and lots

"I was really glad it rained for it made it unique. Everyone was relaxed. My most memorable part of homecoming was Todd Lusk walking behind President Bentley and Betts Calloway."

of fun." Cheerleaders were Brian Cox, James Lyda, John Faeth, Jonathan Silliman, Joey Jenkins, Josh Callahan, Ricke Clagget, Dragan Kjukic, and Andrew Runheim.

The Friday before homecoming, a fair took place. A dunking booth was set up, caricature artist, Brent Brown was tremendously popular, and a picnic was held.

Singer, Brian Husky was on hand to entertain during the picnic. Krista Faeth commented, "It was a real nice day and very relaxing. I sat there for two hours just listening. It was so relaxing that you could sit there and worry about nothing. It was great."

Lion's Growl

The Lion's growl ended the spectacular day of entertainment. The Lions Growl presented music by the marching band, skits by the fraternities and sororities, and a speech by Coach Clifford.

Homecoming Concert

The homecoming concert was held Saturday morning. A large crowd enjoyed Britten's "Make a Joyful Noise," "Sang Be Thou Vision," "I will Arise," and Schubert's "Gloria," sang by the chorus. The Alumni joined the choir's performance of "The Old English Prayer."

Bailey Mountain Cloggers

The National Champions Bailey Mountain Cloggers made up of Mars Hill Students, performed after the choir.

Spider's Webb spins an explanation of the latest holiday: "National Break-up Month." Mike takes a stab at Rolling Stone magazine and poor journalism.

Homecoming Coverage

We do it all, from the queen to the decorations to the game. Page 4 is pretty much a scrapbook of the weekend.

Sports

Not only is the Homecoming game covered, but also soccer, volleyball, and even the latest fad, INDOOR SPORTS.

Features

Arts For Humanity is new in town. Find out what they are. CultureFest is kicking off, so look at what all is in store for the year. Debate club is having a special event, also.
