Co-ops to Market Cotton
By delivering cotton to a state cooperative cotton marketing association instead of selling it in the open market, the grower now can get almost the present local selling price as an immediate advantage from its association. When the cotton is finally sold, the grower has reasonable expectation of an additional amount. The success of the plan depends entirely on the farmers themselves, says J. A. Fees, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"...probably the best piece of tobacco in the section used V-C Super-Tobacco fertilizer. Just what you recommended. Am more than pleased."—S. W. KEYS, Glade Spring, Va.

Diversification at Last
"The report that farm conditions are generally excellent is further proof that business conditions are sound. Improvement has been marked, despite local slumps. This is partly due to diversification, which is now at last being practiced. No longer are farmers completely wiped out when any single crop fails."—New York Times.

Each individual leaf is handled 35 times in the curing area, to produce Florida shade tobacco for cigar makers.

Canada Is Learning, Too
"As the plant food content of the Canadian soils slowly diminishes, farmers realize more and more the value of fertilizers in obtaining increased yields."—Commerce Reports.

Hydrogen gas will harden peanut oil so it will stand even tropical heat without melting. After the oil is taken out, the by-product makes a good flour, high in protein content and fine for feeding animals as well as for human food in dietaries.

PUT POOR LANDS BACK
"Marginal and sub-marginal lands of low productive power, low standards of living, low social standards. Sound policy must exclude such land from agriculture and assign it to its legitimate uses such as timber production and grazing."—J. G. LEMAS, New Jersey College of Agriculture.

Cotton prices depend on the quality of the crop as well as on the total number of acres.

New International System
"Several states of the south will this year transfer their allegiance from their time-honored custom of stating phosphoric acid first to the international system of stating nitrogen, phosphoric acid, potash."—E. L. BROWN, President, National Fertilizer Assn.

American flue-cured tobacco is sitting pretty. The world is smoking more cigarettes every year, and foreign production of the flue-cured is limited.

Now It's Your Turn
Fear hear of the man who got so scared when he heard the barrel that his false teeth clattered in the glass of water? Yes? Well, then, did you ever hear of the other fellow who was so naïf that when he hired out as a scarecrow the crows hurried home and brought back corn they'd been stealing for three years? Attaboy! Three cheers for V-C!

"Used V-C Fish & Potash Compound and my corn is 18 inches higher, and better in all ways, than where I used none."—JOHN LUTZ, Sinking Spring, Pa.

Science Adds Millions
Farmers and farm leaders of Georgia have furnished a striking example of how to add millions of dollars to agricultural income by applying scientific methods. A dozen years ago tobacco was a comparatively unimportant crop in the state. Today it ranks second in value. The agricultural leaders learned exactly what types of soil were best adapted to this crop, included Georgia farmers of the fact, and thus insured the rapid growth of a highly important industry, says Dr. H. G. Knight, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"Fertilizers are expected to contain both N, phosphoric acid and nitrogen. The time is coming when they will be more complex. Nitrogen can be fixed from the air, but essential minerals cannot."—Florida, An Industrial Survey.

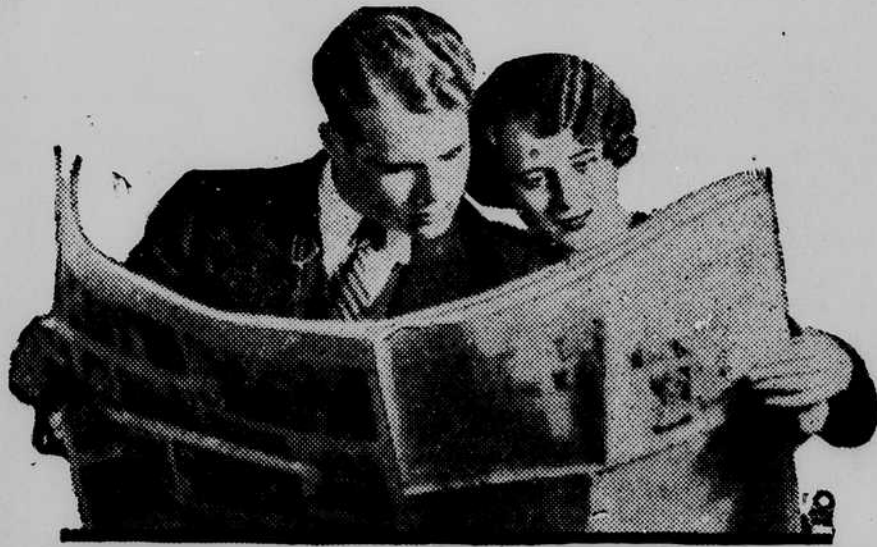

Let's Keep It Secret!
They're flourishing on growing cotton in another state of Brazil—the state of Para, Pernambuco and Clear, the two other states that grow cotton down there, produce 20,000 and 100,000 bales respectively. What wouldn't they do if they had V-C!

"Used V-C Fish & Potash mixture on my fall wheat and reaped an excellent harvest. Am well satisfied. Have ordered three tons for next fall."—CALVIN HOLZMAN, Sinking Spring, Pa.

Now Look to Quality
"Qualitative production is the next stage. We must be able to say that if a certain soil is fed with a certain plant food it will produce fiber of a certain quality—the valuable fiber that is needed today."—Dr. E. C. BROOKS, President, North Carolina College of Agriculture.
