TAXATION WITHOUT -

In times like these the subject of taxation usually is brought to the forefront. It has always noble experiments, it sounded grand. But beautibeen the contention of many of our friends in ful thoughts, pleasant sounding prophecies, ideal business and industry that the system of Ameri- istic movements, pale and pall before the brisk, can taxation was basically wrong because brains, initiative and foresight were the most heavily taxed items in the list.

In a conversation the other night with farmare gaining a powerful ally in the person of the the solution of the taxation tangle. numerically great and financially feeble class of farmers.

This year, taxes will be a burden to many farmers and they are turning their thoughts to serious study of the situation. One farmer made the amazing assertion that he never intended to make another improvement on his farm. He said famous Prisoner's Song. It might be aptly used all this talk of living at home was the bunk, today by those who have occasion to become a Hunters Dinner on top of the toast. What profited it him if he went out and broke up some new ground for a garden, or cleared away land for pasture or made any other improvement in the way of irrigation, draining or terracing, all at great expense, when a tax assessor was on his back the next day after completion to raise the valuation of his land and take from him in taxes anything that might accrue from said improvements.
