"War Nurse" Reveals Work of Heroic Women at Front

"War Nurse" which will show at the Peoples Theatre, was made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with the thought in mind of presenting the woman's side of the war in the same direct, accurate realistic manner that made such a success for "The Big Parade," outstanding epic of the boys in the trenches.

Searching for a story to carry out this idea M-G-M picked the frank novel, "War Nurse," which caused so much discussion when it appeared serially in a national magazine. The players of the piece include members of an American nursing unit in France during 1915, aviators of the Lafayette Escadrille, French and English soldiers. The principal protagonists, two aviators and two nurses, are played by Robert Montgomery of "The Divorcee" and "The Big House," Robert Ames of "Holiday," June Walker, the stage star of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," and Anita Page of "Our Blushing Brides." Other comedy and dramatic scenes are in the hands of such well-known players as Zasu Pitts, Marie Provost, Helen Jerome Eddy, Hedda Hopper, Edward Nugent, Martha Sleeper and Michael Vavitch. Outstanding scenes include: Introduction of a group of society girls to the jog of turning a French stable into a hospital. An emergency operation during a "big drive." The shelling of a hospital at the front. The discovery by "Joy" that her lover, "Robin" is the seriously wounded man brought in just as the big guns begin to smash the ambulance walls.

The dash to an ambulance full of nurses through a barrage. From the romantic side the most climatic scene is that staged by 'Babs' Miss Walker, and "Wally," Robert Montgomery, in Bab's billet. The settings include hospitals at the front, the middle section, and the base ports, battlefields through which ambulances threaded their way to the rear, provincial cafes where soldiers and nurses took their fun, and the night clubs of Paris.

"It" Girl Heads Big Laugh Hit of Year

Sizzling! Whizzling! Action! Fun! Clar Bawo's in town in "Her Wedding Night," a delicious romantic farce-comedy written by Avery Hopwood, king of farce. "Her Wedding Night," shows at the Peoples Theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Its laughs at the start, in the middle and love at the end. It's a Bow knockout.

Imagine Clara Bow as a red-headed movie star in France, where, because she doesn't understand the language, she unwittingly becomes the bride in a wedding ceremony in which the groom is masquerading under an assumed name. Thus she becomes the wife, by proxy, of a man she has never seen. And when they meet, and when Charlie Ruggles gets in his complicating comedy, and when Skeets Gallagher, the bridegroom's proxy, gets through explaining, there's a diverting love story with Clara falling hard for her strangely acquired husband, Ralph Forbes.

"Her Wedding Night" zips in Paris, whizzes through France, and winds up in a merry matrimonial tangle in Venice. The cast is superb.

Film-Makers Brave Terrors To Make Red-Man's Picture

Back from northern Ontario, William D. Burden and William C. Chandler have brought a stirring story in motion pictures of the life of the Ojibway Indians as they were before the advent of the white man. Not only is the picture a realistic picture of Indian life, it is a romantic story, filled with the thrills, love customs, dangers and interesting superstitions of the first inhabitants of the American continent.

The story is so much more than the customary travel picture made in the wilderness, in its dramatic narratives of the struggle of a primitive people to survive, that it was taken over by Paramount. It will show at the Peoples Theatre Friday and Saturday.

"In 'The Silent Enemy' we have pictured a tribe of Ojibways in one of the years when food was scarce. Everything in the picture is true to the life and history of the tribe. Every night we would gather with the leaders of the Indians and the older men of the company and talk over the events that were to be photographed the next day. Thus the story was essentially written by the Indians themselves."
