MOVIE GOSSIP

Keep an eye on Elissa Landi and Joan Bennett, their next pictures will tell if their contract is to be renewed or not.

Did you know that the entire Barrymore family—yes I mean Ethel too, will all appear in one picture. The film is going to be "Rasputin," sounds like a swell role for Lionel.

At last Marlene Dietrich got a break. Her next picture now in the cutting room, "The Blonde Venus" is a real hit and gives her a chance to show what she can really do. Yes, you'll see the Dietrich legs too.

Jean Hersholt is a Dane—not a German as so many think.

Crawford's best scenes were cut from "Grand Hotel," because with them in—she stole the show.

Diane Sinclaire, who is foreign born, plays a middle western girl in "Washington Masquerade," and Karene Morley who hails from Ottumwa, Iowa plays a foreigner in the same picture. Now isn't that just like Hollywood?

Joe E. Brown, recuperating from a series of severe operations at a Los Angeles hotel, has left for a rest and vacation at Catalina Island.

Maurice Chevalier sailed Saturday for France.

NEW LOW PRICES

Both Roanoke Rapids theatres this week announce new low prices for all shows at 10 and 25 cents.

In the past this has been the matinee and Friday and Saturday prices, but in the future this will be the prices every day in the week matinees and nights.

Neither management was ready to say if this would be a permanent arrangement, but it will certainly last the rest of the summer and if the increased patronage warrants will probably be continued indefinitely.

RED-HEAD WOMAN

The newest edition of Liberty Magazine, has the following to say of "Red Headed Woman," the feature showing at the Peoples Theater Mon. and Tues.: "Jean Harlow, erstwhile platinum blonde, temporarily a red-head, gives a performance you will not soon forget in this filming of Katherine Brush's novel of a stenographer who 'brings 'em back alive' more effectively than explorer Frank Buck himself."

Lil Andrews puts a price upon her affections. She picks her male victims and goes after them with amorous astuteness. The films have stepped far from Pollyanna in unfolding the progress of this hard-boiled little adventuress. There is more than a cynical hint on the screen these days that the wages of sin get few depression cuts.

The redhead breaks up the home of the wealthy young Bill Legendre brings about a divorce, and even marries her victim. An ambitious unfaithfulness leads her on to a new amatory goal. In the end you see her at French race tracks the toast of the day.

Miss Harlow makes Lil a very real and earthly figure. There is no softening of the character; for Lil remains always a cheap, flamboyant little cheater. You know the type. She is the sort of girl who, when she goes down the street, can empty a pool parlor quicker than four alarm fire.

"Red Headed Woman" is the first of a series of outstanding hits that the Peoples will bring you under the new summer admission price of ten and twenty-five cents either matinee or night.

Nathan Fitts Married

All the "oldtimers" in Roanoke Rapids remember Nathan Fitts, the bright faced boy with the serious smile. Brandenburger of St. Louis, Mo., announce the marriage of their daughter, Lucille, to Dr. Nathan Palmer Fitts, on Tuesday, July 12, 1932, at home July 17, Williamsburg, Va.
