

Next Week At Local Theatres

IMPERIAL PROGRAM FOR WEEK

The Imperial hits the familiar stride for good pictures next week with two note-worthy films, "Silver Dollar" and "The Match King," the first half of the week, while Lee Tracy stars in "The Night Mayor" for the Friday only offering and Tom Keene appears in "Ghost Valley" for Saturday of next week. No stage attraction has been announced.

Edward G. Robinson appears as "Yates Martin," silver tycoon of the early West in "Silver Dollar." The picture is based on the novel of the same name, which tells of the adventurers who swarmed into Colorado during the richest silver strike in history.

Immediately upon the heels of the most amazing international financial swindle in modern business history comes "The Match King," paralleling in screen drama the astonishing story of one man's skillful manipulation matches into a colossal bubble that broke only when general business conditions revealed the crookedness of the financial machinations. The picture stars Warren William and offers Lili Damita in the supporting cast.

At The Imperial — Next Week

Here's the "male interest" next week at the Imperial, girls! At the left is Edward G. Robinson, whose latest characterization is set forth in "Silver Dollar," which comes Monday and Tuesday. And of course, you recognize the dapper young chap at the right as Warren William. It is a scene from his latest picture: "The Match King," and will be shown to Roanoke Rapids' audiences for the first time Wednesday and Thursday at the Imperial.

Tracy, who after playing the roles of newspaper reporters or columnists in four consecutive films, appears as the romantic and gay—but honest—mayor of a big city. "The Night Mayor" will be shown at the Imperial Friday only next week, followed by Tom Keene in "Ghost City."

AUTOS COLLIDE

Richard Liles, driving a Ever Ready Cleaners car, and A. B. McAllister collided Saturday at the corner of Third and Jefferson. Liles' car was overturned and he was bruised but escaped serious injury.

Mrs. Meyer Dies Of Pneumonia

Mrs. M. R. Steinberg was called to Enfield last week on account of the illness and death of her mother, Mrs. Meyer.

For the past three or four years Mrs. Meyer has been a partial invalid but was able to be out part of the time, until about a week before her death, she developed pneumonia.

All of her eleven children were with her when death came. She has visited her daughter here on various occasions and her many friends extend sympathy to her bereaved loved ones. Mrs. Frank Horwitz, formerly of this city, was also a daughter of the deceased.

The Presbyterian Auxiliary met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Frank Nash. The principal speaker was Mrs. McLoughlin, a missionary from China, who with her husband and three daughters, is on a furlough.
