

Bill Violates "Gentlemen's Agreement"

State Newspaper Man Comments On Senate Bill No. 242

Long's Name Was First On List Of The "Gentlemen's Agreement" Two Years Ago Which Senate Bill No. 242 Would Undo

EDITOR'S NOTE—Herewith is printed a report on the legislative action last week on Senate Bill No. 242 by M. R. Dunnagan. Mr. Dunnagan is staff correspondent of the Charlotte Observer, and Raleigh representative of several state newspapers. He perhaps controls more publicity than any other man in the state.

Raleigh, March 2nd.—"Senatorial Courtesy": that indefinable something which a group of legislators extend to one of their number to allow him to do something which he may desire, even though it is against the expressed and emphatic wishes of 90 per cent of the affected constituents.

Example: Senator T. W. M. Long introduced in the Senate last week a bill to extend the corporate limits of Roanoke Rapids to take in several pieces of mill property, around and beside which the earlier villages, now thriving town of Roanoke Rapids had been built. The mill plants are within the boundaries of the school district and pay 76 per cent of the taxes for the school operation. They are in the water and sewer district and pay 70-odd per cent of the cost of the water and sewer district costs. The mill villages, homes of operatives, are within the limits of the corporation, paying 26 per cent of the corporate tax.

By a gentleman's agreement two years ago, the limits were extended to take in Rosemary and Roanoke Rapids, leaving out the several mill plants, a bill being introduced and passed by Senator Long then, subject to a referendum vote of the people. The election carried about 20 to one. Senator Long's name was the first on the list to the "gentleman's agreement". Now he has a bill, SB 242, which would undo the "gentlemen's agreement" and take the mill property into the corporate limits—without a vote of the people.

The mill owners, the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants Association, the Kiwanis Club, the Parent-Teacher Association, the Woman's Club—all of the community interests—were present, about 200 strong, opposing the Long bill, saying 90 per cent or more of the people affected are against it. They asked for nothing more than that an amendment be added to permit their to vote on the proposal in a city election.

By Senatorial Courtesy, the Senate committee on Counties, Cities and Towns voted eight to two in favor of Senator Long's bill, without the referendum asked for by his constituents, although not a word was uttered in favor of the bill and Senator Long, a member, did not attend the executive session in which the vote was cast.
