

UP AND DOWN
The Avenue
WITH THE EDITOR

About the "Century of Progress" Exposition. A friend ventures he will bet there are very few people who remember how Chicago actually looked a century ago!

The abbreviation "B. O." is often-times seen in the movie magazines, particularly in the trade journals, but one comes to learn that it does not mean the same as in the newspaper ads. It means "Box Office!"

Penders Grocery Store will soon occupy the recently remodeled building in the main block on Roanoke Avenue in the South ward business section that has been unoccupied since W. C. Williams moved his business to his new Funeral Home in the Postoffice block.

And now with the recent establishment of E. W. Smith's Electric Shop and Wafford's Jewelry Store occupying the old Crowder stand, and the new candy kitchen nextdoor to the Rosemary Drug Co., empty store rooms are fast becoming a thing of the past on the Avenue.

If you don't think U. S. Senator Robert R. Reynolds is "one of us" consider his question to George Whitney, Morgan partner, during last week's testimony in the Senate Investigation, in which "Our Bob" asked:

"Have you heard that the dictator of the Italian Government—I never can pronounce his name—sometimes I call him Mussolini and sometimes Mussoloni—participated?"

There is something intrinsically "human" about a man who admits he doesn't know how to pronounce "Mussolini" . . . particularly before a Senate Investigating Committee.

Our own favorite method in learning a new word is first to hear it pronounced over radio or in the talkies before "springing it" on an unsuspecting world, but even that has its hazards, for according to recent authority of such nature we might be going around saying: "des-pik'a-ble" or "bur-le-que."

It may be alright. Al Smith says "rad-i-o" with accent on the "rad" and a short "a," and the lady on South Main Street says that sounds better than what her husband calls it at times.

BOY ROBBERS
BEGINS ON PAGE ONE

Since that time they have been in the county jail at Halifax in default of bond. Prince and Clary will probably be on their way to the state penitentiary at Raleigh by the latter part of the week.

City police believe that with the arrest of the three boys they have definitely put an end to the series of petty robberies and store breaks that have been troubling them for the past few months. Both Prince and Clary are said to have taken their sentences calmly. Trial of the cases occurred on Monday, and Judge Frank A. Daniels pronounced sentence Thursday morning.

The tenth child of Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Iantarelli of Harrison, N. Y., has been registered in the office of the town clerk under the name of Franklin Depression Iantarelli.

Marriage Of City Doctor Solemnized In Greenville, S. C.

The following announcement will interest many friends:

Mrs. Minnie Balcome announces the marriage of her daughter

Madge Westmoreland

to

Dr. J. M. C. Covington

on Saturday

May the twenty-seventh nineteen hundred and thirty-three Greenville, South Carolina

At home

After June 7

Roanoke Rapids, N. C.

The marriage of Miss Balcome and Dr. Covington was solemnized at the home of Mrs. C. Q. West in Greenville at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, May 27, with Dr. D. E. Camak, of Union, as the officiating clergyman, in the presence of a gathering of friends and relatives.

The beautiful bride wore an afternoon dress of blue crepe combined with lace, with a becoming hat trimmed with garden flowers. Her colonial corsage was fashioned of pink rosebuds.

The bridegroom was attended by his best man, Dr. R. L. Cashwell.

Immediately after the ceremony an informal reception was held for the guests present.

The bride is a young woman of delightful personality with a number of admiring friends in Greenville, who regret that her marriage takes her to another state for residence. She is a graduate of the City hospital nurses training school in Greenville and did post-graduate work at Union Memorial hospital in Baltimore, Mr. For several years she has been superintendent of the operating room of the City hospital, which she has held with efficiency.

The bridegroom is likewise pleasantly known in Greenville, having gone there in 1931 to serve his internship at the City hospital. He graduated at Davidson college and also at the University of Virginia School of Medicine. For two years he has been a lieutenant in the medical corps of the United States Navy. He is now located in this city where he and his bride will make their home.

J. Winfield Crew, young Roanoke Rapids attorney, was among the out of town guests at the wedding.

Two Dances Every Week At New Lake Thomas Pavilion

The Southern Syncopators will play for the next dance at the new Lake Thomas Pavilion next Friday night, which will be a strictly invitational affair, followed by a dance on Saturday night which will be open to the public, and which will be played for by Duke Lynch and his Roanoke Ramblers.

Under the new policy, two dances will be given each week at the pavilion, one to which a card will be required for admittance, the other being open to the public.

An attendant is on duty afternoon and nights at the Lake, and the bathing season is in full swing, while free dancing privileges to visitors at the pavilion may be enjoyed either afternoon or nights, an excellent victrola and radio being furnished by the amusement park.

The next invitational dance, following Friday nights affair, will be next Thursday, when Thurston and his North Carolinians, 10-piece dance orchestra, play for a dance.

With facilities for picnics, dancing, bathing and boating to be added at a later date, Lake Thomas is daily attracting more and more visitors who find it a pleasant place to spend summer afternoons and evenings. The pavilion is under the direction of the owner, J. H. Hines, and is managed by Shearod Crumpler and Edwin Akers.

Wedding Of Local Couple In Richmond Thursday Afternoon

A wedding of much interest to the many friends of Miss Kate Brinson and Mr. Carl Hales of this city was solemnized quietly in Richmond, Thursday afternoon, June 8th, at four o'clock.

Miss Brinson has been a faculty member of the local schools for the past two years. Her home is in Grantsboro, N. C.

Mr. Hales has lived in Roanoke Rapids for three years, where he is a prescription druggist at Rosemary Drug Company. He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Hales left for a short honeymoon trip to Washington, Baltimore and New York. They will return to Roanoke Rapids in two weeks, where they will be at home to their friends, temporarily at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Marks.

Practicing with a revolver in preparation for suicide, Carmino Calnango of New York shot himself in the toe and then decided to keep on living.
