We Apologize

For the last few weeks the following notation has appeared on the advertisement of the A. & P. Tea Co., carried in this newspaper: "The North Carolina Sales Tax has been added to the retail price of taxable items and is included in the prices advertised."

This paragraph was incorrect. According to the most recent ruling, a merchant cannot add the sales tax to the price of his merchandise advertised, and this copy should not have been in the advertisement. The mistake occurred in our office and we are sorry.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

IT IS good news to learn that there will be no need to curb our appetites for grapefruit this season in spite of the great hurricane damage. There will be plenty for all at moderate prices.

Celery is one of the best fall vegetables, delicious as a relish, stuffed or in salads and also good cooked, whether buttered, creamed or braised. In addition it gives a most desirable flavor to soups and stews. Onions, beets and carrots, cabbage, cauliflower and spinach are the best vegetables for the coming week. Sweet and white potatoes are also of excellent quality. Some white potato added to mashed yams or sweet potatoes helps to give it fluffiness.

Frying size chickens are available at attractive prices and they can help to make an attractive Sunday dinner. Many markets are also featuring steaks, roasts and chops from beef, pork and lamb. Dinners, therefore, need not be monotonous. Make your Sunday dinner attractive, says the Quaker Maid Kitchen.

A piedmont North Carolina textile manufacturer has advised the reemployment office in Raleigh that he advertised daily for a week in four daily newspapers in the textile areas of North and South Carolina for "drawing in hands—female" and had only six responses.

He said he had 70 weavers idle because of the lack of such workers and asked if the NRA would allow him to work the drawing in hanks he has 48 hours a week, instead of the 40 hours under the code, in order to give the 70 unemployed work. He would do it until the places could be filled and pay extra.

The reemployment office was uncertain, but asked any experienced women in that job needing employment to register at their county office.
