CLEAN COAL

There are also many new coal-burning furnaces which are quite as good looking as the oil burning type, and may be equipped with automatic heat control. If your present furnace is in bad condition it will be wise to look over the new developments before spending money repairing the old. A few additional dollars may mean a tremendous saving in the long run.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

THE other day Junior came home from school with a new book under his arm, so his mother asked him where he got it. "I won it mother," he says, "it's a prize." "A prize," his mother replied, "and what did you win it for?" "For natural history, ma. Teacher asked us how many legs a hippopotamus has and I said five." "But sonny," she objected, "a hippopotamus has only four legs!" "I know that now, mother, but all the rest of the kids said six and I was nearest, so I won!"

GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN DOES NOT HARM THE HEART

The Marvel Cullom murder has brought forth a lot of weird fantasies and queer superstitions. We suppose the Coroner's jury would classify some of the testimony they heard as such or worse, but investigators were approached by persons, who, in all seriousness and anxious to solve the mystery, had worked out, heard of, read or dreamed of sure-fire solvents.

There was the Lantern detective. A lantern, placed at the death spot, with a red cross on the globe, would draw the perpetrator of the deed to the spot like a magnet. He could not stay away, once the lantern, crossed with blood, sent its rays out over the gloomy spot where the dark deed had been committed.

Similar was the Crossed Sticks trap. Take two hickory sticks, each two and a half feet long. Cross them on the top of the bed formerly used by the victim. Leave them there five nights or six. On the next night, take them from the top of the bed and place them in the same position under the mattress. Then wait outside the house in a concealed place where you can see in the room. The murderer will come on that last night to steal those sticks.

We remember reading this one ourselves in some magazine. Take a photograph of the victim's eyes, while wide open. On the photograph you will find the picture of the murderer. The theory here is that on the retina of the victim's eyes is pictured the last object seen before death; in the case of murder, the murderer.

But the best detective of them all was the one who came to the officials and asked for a piece of the murderer's clothing. With this, he assured the officers, he would identify and capture the murderer.
