ROCKY MT LATEST VICTIM

The Roanoke Textile Owls had to apply the heat in winning three bouts from Rocky Mount Friday night at the Arena. The locals won three bouts out of four for their closely contested margin. There was also an exhibition bout between the Owls on which there was no decision.

Ed Moseley won handily from Sparky Register in the 118 lb. class, seeming to have the advantage in the first round over the Rocky Mounter, his lefts landing almost at will. In the second round, Register's thumb was sprained, making him unable to continue, which gave Moseley the decision.

The bout between Jimmy Gilbert and Wildcat Kelly, in the 118 lb. class, went only a minute of the first round before the hard-hitting Kelly had Gilbert reeling on his feet, apparently dazed by Kelly's blasting blows. Referee "Booty" Outland awarded the "Wildcat" a TKO for Rocky Mount's only win of the night.

Clyde Shearin and R. L. Topping, two local middleweights, put on an exhibition bout, not originally scheduled, to give the fans a few thrills. The two Owls seemed very evenly matched in all three rounds, there being no decision on the bout. Shearin was to have fought Bob Moore from Rocky Mount, but for some unknown reason, Moore never made his appearance.

Wildcat Kelley pulled an iron man stunt by taking on Dick Collins in the semi-final bout. This is the same stunt Collins recently pulled at Ocean View. Kelley, after winning a TKO from Gilbert in the second fight of the evening, gave Collins plenty of fireworks all the way through in one of the most exciting bouts on the card. Kelley noticeably weakened in the last round, which Collins took advantage of to pile up his points and take the decision by a close margin.

The final bout on the program was a hair-raiser between 'Goat' Garris and Tom Johnson in the 160 lb. class. This proved to be another close bout, with both boys throwing everything they had. Blows landed frequently on both sides, the first two rounds being even. Garris, Textile Owl, landed a terrific right near the end of the second round. Johnson gave Garris plenty, before finally surrendering the decision to the local lad. "Booty" Outland refereed while the judges were Howard Hancock and J. O. Brown. The Owls fight in Ocean View this week-end, and have not as yet scheduled a bout at the Arena.

Lewis Chambliss of Triplet, Va. spent Sunday in town with friends.
