

Little Business Head Appoints State Leaders

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 14.—Appointment of Baxter Durham and I. M. Bailey, both of Raleigh, as Director of Organization and Law Committee Chairman, respectively, of the North Carolina Division of the American Federation of Little Business, was announced here today by Alfred Williams, State Division Chairman.

Durham has established headquarters here and will direct the Federation's membership campaign in this state. Widely known throughout North Carolina, he was first elected State Auditor in 1920 and was re-elected for three subsequent terms. He has also served four terms as President of the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers.

As Chairman of the State Division's Law Committee, Bailey will recommend for appointment attorneys from each of the counties of the state. A native of Johnston County, Baily practiced law in Jacksonville before coming to Raleigh in 1931. He is President of the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce, former president of the Raleigh Community Chest and was at one time general counsel to the State Corporation Commission and president of the North Carolina State Bar.

The appointments round out the structural organization of the North Carolina Division, which is similar to those set up in other states. It includes an Advisory Committee composed of chairmen from each of the 11 Congressional districts. Matt R. Bernhardt, of Lenoir, is Vice Chairman of the Federation and a member of its National Governing Committee, and Tyre Taylor, formerly of North Carolina, is the Federation's general counsel.

In announcing the appointments, Chairman Williams said: "The American Federation of Little Business, with national headquarters in Washington, D. C., offers the independent small business man the opportunity he has long needed—of becoming affiliated with a national organization designed solely for the purpose of protecting and advancing his economic welfare.

"This Federation, which has received the endorsement of Governor Hoey and other state leaders, is an independent, non-profit and non-partisan organization. In addition to the services it offers its membership, it promises to be an instrument by means of which the independent man of business can make his voice effectively heard in matters that directly affect his business and his economic security."
