

HENDERSON TO PLAY YELLOW JAX HERE TOMORROW

Henderson's undefeated football team will play the Yellow Jackets of the local high school here Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, and Coach J. C. Hoyle's locals are definitely rated as the "under dogs" in the contest.

The visitors here tomorrow licked the Yellow Jackets, 14-0, last year, and have had a perfect season this year. Last week Henderson trounced Roxboro, 26-0, and players on the Vance County team are rated as plenty big, fast and smart.

Co-Captain Raiford Green of the locals has recovered sufficiently from injuries which kept him out of the starting line-up of the Yellow Jax at Elizabeth City last week, and the big 225-pound tackle will probably start at his regular position tomorrow.

It is understood that Henderson will bring their crack high school band for the game here tomorrow, and the game promises to be one of the best in the city this year as the locals are out to get revenge for last year's defeat at the hands of the visitors.

In addition to Henderson's musical outfit and cheer leaders, there will be a massed section of cheerers from the Junior High School here for the locals.

Emry Park Is Name Of Subdivision Sold At Auction Sale Here

Miss Juanita Taylor Wins $25 Prize

Miss Juanita Taylor, librarian at the local high school, won the $25 prize for submitting the name chosen for a real estate development, lots of which were sold at auction here last Saturday morning through the Rochelle Realty Company of this city.

Ike Rochelle, head of the agency, stated that the new sub-division for the city will be known as "Emry Park", name submitted by Miss Taylor.

Miss Taylor said she admitted that name for the following reasons:

"Although Roanoke Rapids is a young city, few people other than the older citizens know the names of the outstanding persons who were associated with the early growth of the city. Some of these were: Major Thomas L. Emry, of Halifax and Weldon, John Armstrong Chaloner of New York, W. S. Parker of Henderson, Gustavus Millhiser of Richmond, Va., Charles Cohen and James M. Mullen of Petersburg, Va., John L. Patterson and S. F. Patterson of Winston-Salem, and W. M. Hoblston of Richmond, Va.

"A good way to get the citizens of our town to become 'history conscious' would be to name new streets and developments for some outstanding figure in the history of the city. Some one must have had the same idea when the new development near the Junction was named for John Armstrong Chaloner, who was the founder of this city in 1893.

"I suggest that the new subdivision be named 'Emry Park'. To Major Thomas L. Emry belongs the honor of discovering in 1891 the advantage of Roanoke Rapids (at that time called "Great Falls.") as a manufacturing site. His name is associated with the magic city and he should be remembered as one of the greatest potentialities in its development and growth. He died September 8, 1910."

Rochelle stated that the auction sale of the property, part of the T. Lee Whitaker estate, was very successful.

Local Juniors Battle Weldon Scoreless Tie

The Junior Yellow Jackets of the local high school tangled with Weldon's second string varsity at Weldon on Monday afternoon of this week, and battled their opponents to a scoreless tie.

The locals kicked off, and Weldon brought the ball to their own thirty-five line where they tried three running plays which failed. Weldon then kicked to the Junior High team of this city, and Moseley was stopped on the Jackets forty. A combination of running plays and passes failed to click for the locals, and on fourth down Moseley kicked deep into Weldon territory and the ball was downed on Weldon's twenty-eight stripe.

During the first half the two teams fought on equal terms, but in the third period Weldon made a series of first downs to bog down and lose the ball on the locals' twenty-two. The Junior Jackets then made a couple of first downs, moving the ball to their own forty-five yard line where three passes attempted failed. Moseley then kicked on the fourth down to Weldon's six-yard line, but the Weldon aggregation on the first play punted out of trouble.

Neither team was able to score, and the game ended 0-0.

Weldon's line and backfield showed good team work which was outstanding. Myrick's work in the local line, and Moseley and Reaves, backs, were best for Roanoke Rapids Juniors.

Rotary Club Hears Weldon Minister Here

The Rev. D. P. Moore, rector of the Episcopal Church in Weldon, was the guest speaker at the local Rotary Club meeting Tuesday night here. He was presented by Charlie Ogletree, who had charge of the program.

The Rev. Mr. Moore spoke on "The Coin of The Realm", and he gave a clear understanding of the basic place of a balanced economics in any political, social or religious system. He showed how the country is now faced with just the opposite of the problem of unrestricted economics of 1929, when the crash came. Today, he said, the unrestricted organized labor demands and strikes threaten a paralysis on the country's declared emergency preparedness, and are most dangerous to the nation.

The Rotarians will not hold their regular meeting on Tuesday, October 21, but will attend in a body with their Rotary Anns an Inter-City meeting at Ricks Hotel, Rocky Mount, on Friday night, October 24, at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Wolhar was called to Wilmington last Saturday because of the illness of her mother.

Funeral services for Mrs. Conway will be held Saturday of this week at Wilmington, Delaware.

Roanoke Association Of Baptist Churches Ends Annual Meeting

Rev. Gordon Price Gives Annual Sermon At Sessions

The Roanoke Baptist Association, comprised of 71 churches, closed its annual meeting at Farmville on Wednesday with the Rev. George D. Heaton of Lynchburg, Va., delivering an inspirational address.

Around 1,200 delegates and visitors attended the two-day associational meeting, which was presided over by Moderator John T. Coley of Rocky Mount. W. W. Mangum of Rocky Mount is secretary.

Prior to the close of the meeting, the association voted to hold the first day's sessions of the next annual meeting in Spring Hope, and those of the second day in Williamston, as a try-out plan to balance attendance. The Rev. B. B. Fordham, pastor of the Farmville Church, was chosen to deliver the annual sermon at the next meeting.

The associational meeting was launched with the welcome address by Mayor George W. Davis, deacon of the Farmville Baptist Church of which the Rev. Mr. Fordham is pastor. W. C. Ferrell of Nashville responded in behalf of the assemblage of delegates.

SERMON BY PRICE

The annual sermon was preached by the Rev. Gordon L. Price, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Roanoke Rapids, who chose as his theme, "The Kingdom of God Is Within You".

A comparative study of work in the association during the past eleven years was made by the moderator under the subject of "A Glance at the Roanoke." R. H. Satterfield of Raleigh addressed the group on "Holding up Christ in Our Reading," emphasizing the universal acceptance of the pen as the mightiest of weapons, and the invention of the printing press as being the greatest of all inventions. Rev. J. W. Kincheloe of the First Church, Rocky Mount, spoke on "Faith as the Christians Weapon."

Reassembling after lunch on Wednesday, a memorial service was conducted by Rev. Hugh A.

Ellis, pastor of the First Church, Wilson, following which Cale K. Burgess of Raleigh, spoke on "The Christian's Relationship to Strong Drink." M. A. Huggins of Raleigh, secretary of the State Baptist Convention, spoke on "The Gospel as Good News."

In the election of officers, the only change was made in the election of George W. Davis of Farmville, as vice moderator.

Special musical selections were presented at the sessions each day by the Farmville and Scotland Neck choirs and by John Lawrence, soloist, Mrs. Arthur F. Joyner was the organist.

Notable speakers on Wednesday were Rev. F. W. Haynie of Roanoke Rapids; Rev. Ross Cadle of Enfield; Mrs. E. B. Beasley of Fountain, who presented the W.M. U. work; Smith Hagaman, superintendent of the Baptist Hospital, Winston-Salem; I. G. Greer, superintendent of the Thomasville Home; Rev. H. M. Johnson of Bethel and Mrs. R. L. Councilman of Stony Creek.

A large number of delegates from this section attended the 34th annual associational meeting.
