THIS RUBBER WILL HELP BEAT AXIS

Major C. Newsom, chairman of the rubber salvage campaign in Halifax County being sponsored by the Petroleum Industry, is shown in the picture above standing before a huge pile of scrapped automobile tires, tubes and other items of rubber which service stations in Roanoke Rapids have brought forth during the intensive drive here during the past two weeks. More than 50,000 pounds of the precious commodity has been collected in the drive in the city thus far and Chairman Newsom believes that another 25,000 pounds will be collected before the drive ends on Friday night of this week. Newsom said today that Halifax county would contribute more than 250,000 pounds, or 125 tons, during the three week drive. The yards of the Newsom Oil Company is being used as a deposit lot for the scrap rubber collected in the drive.

FOUR BROTHERS LIKE THE ARMY

Four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Young of Roanoke Rapids are making their careers in the Army, and their services up to this point range from 5 to 20 years, and their ratings in Uncle Sam's service range from Technical Sergeant to Lieutenant. Three of the boys are sons of Mrs. Young by a former marriage, and the fourth member of the armed forces is by her second marriage, to Mr. Young, a well-known local barber.

At upper left is shown Herman T. Browning, the elder of the foursome, who has spent 18 of his 34 years in the Army. He is stationed at Maxwell Field, Alabama, where he is bandmaster of the Post band. He carries the rating of Technical Sergeant. Prior to entering the Army he spent two years in the Navy, but states that he likes the Army better and that he will be there until he retires on full pay.

The second picture shows Lieutenant Clifton Mayo Browning in the uniform of the Army Military Police, in which division he served prior to being promoted to Second Lieutenant without the benefit of Officer training. He has been in the Army for 15 years, during which time he has advanced grade by grade until he is now a regularly commissioned officer. Stationed at Fort Lewis, Washington, he is 31 years old and expects to remain in the Army the rest of his life.

The third picture shows Reuben H. Browning, 27, who is stationed at Bolling Field, Washington, D. C., where he is a chief mechanic in the air corps. Enlisting in the Army 9 years ago, Reuben has advanced rapidly in the service until he now carries the rating of a Technical Sergeant. He, too, expects to make the Army a career.

Wendell Young, the fourth and last son of Mrs. Young to enter the Armed forces, is stationed at Lowery Field, Colorado, and is also with the Air Corps. Although in the Army only 5 years he now carries the rating of a Staff Sergeant. He is with the inspection division and his rating is permanent. He likes the Army fine and advises all youngsters who either enlist or are drafted to try to learn everything they can about the Army and the job they are assigned to. In doing this they are assured of advancement as their capacity for work increases. He expects to remain in the army until time for his retirement.

USO Drive Is Going Over Top

Several units reporting in the USO drive for $6,900 in funds in Halifax County show that the drive is going over the top in all communities, according to F. C. Williams, chairman of the drive.

Mr. Williams stated that the campaign would be brought to a conclusion this week and that a full report of the success of the campaign would be made next week.

RUBBER DRIVE SUCCESS

Major C. Newsom, chairman of the Petroleum Industry's rubber salvage drive in Halifax County, announced today that more than 200,000 pounds of rubber had been collected in the county to date and that the drive, which ends on Friday night of this week, would probably bring in 250,000 pounds of the precious commodity before the campaign is brought to a close.

Newsom, who has been personally directing the drive for rubber in Roanoke Rapids, said that the drive in the city alone had so far netted about 50,000 pounds and that this figure would probably be raised to 75,000 before the drive closed Friday.

A total collection of 160,000 pounds in the county was reported to State Salvage headquarters at the end of last week, and the drive at that time still had more than a week to go. With this in mind, Chairman Newsom said, an additional 100,000 pounds had been set as a goal for the last week of the drive. This, he said, will be met.

The drive is being carried out in the city and county with the assistance of all service stations, to which the scrap rubber is being taken. All collections are picked up at these stations and taken to central collection points by trucks belonging to petroleum distributors throughout the county.

Pictures in this week's issue of the Herald records a portion of the rubber collected in Roanoke Rapids.

ORDERS ARE NOT DEFINITE

Captain A. T. Dodson, Jr., commanding officer of Company D, 30th Engineers, stationed at the local Armory for the past three months, said today that he had received orders from Battalion Headquarters at Fort Belvoir, Va., to the effect that there was a possibility of the Engineer Company here being moved to an unnamed point sometime next month.

Questioned by a Herald reporter late this afternoon, the officer stated that the letter from headquarters did not state definitely that the Company would be moved, but that he was of the opinion that his unit would be transferred elsewhere sometime during August. He stated that War Department restrictions on information to the press would not allow him to divulge the company's destination, or the date of the removal, even though he did not have such information at this time.

Company D moved into the Armory on April 5th and set up quarters, from which the personnel has been doing topographical work in this area for the War Department. While the work has progressed rapidly during the past two months, Captain Dodson said there was still quite a bit of work to be done and that his company would continue to carry out their duties pending further orders from headquarters.
