

For Every Star In Our Service Flag LET US EACH BUY ANOTHER BOND

Each blue star in the flag is a symbol of a home town boy — some mother's son, some wife's husband, some baby's father, somebody's brother all of them our very own — who at this moment may be charging through a hail of enemy bullets to live, to bleed, to die, as God may decree, in a supreme effort to wipe forever from the face of this earth those who would destroy our way of life. Wherever those sons, fathers, husbands, brothers of our own may now be fighting, everyone knows their re-doubled efforts can be no better than the support they get from back home — support that gives them ammunition with which to carry their heroic assaults to complete Victory . . . Though each of us may have responded already to the home front call to Back the Attack by Buying More War Bonds, we have not yet done enough. During these last two days of the 5th War Loan campaign — while men from our own home town fight and bleed and die to preserve forever the Spirit of Freedom our Founding Fathers gave to us and the world . . .

LET EACH OF US BUY STILL ANOTHER WAR BOND
