Another Old Penny
A plow share turned up an old penny on a farm on the Littleton highway recently.
Ed Ivey, Negro tenant on the farm of A. A. Tarboro, brought the penny to the Herald office Saturday. It was dated 1838 and was just a little bit smaller than a 50 cent piece.

Ivey said he was plowing a field when his plowshare turned up the penny. A look at an old coin book showed that the penny is worth 20 cents today.

coin book showed that the penny is worth 20 cents today.

Thank goodness, our copper pieces are smaller now than they were in 1838, what with the penny parking meters and all of the sales tax we pay, they would have been quite heavy to carry in our pockets or purses.

Avoid Long Wait

E, F, and G drivers can avoid waiting in long lines if they'll take their driver's license examination now, says E. P. Davis local driver's examiner.

No one can go with you on the driving test, added Davis, in a plea to mothers to leave their children at home or else make arrangements for someone to care for the child while the mother is taking the driving test.

It Does Happen

The story of the enlisted man being kicked around by his commanding officer during the war and then coming back to civil-ian life to a place of authority in a business only to have the same officer approach him for a job does happen. The Rambler stumbled across a true-life ver-sion the other day. Seems an exsion the other day. Seems an ex-serviceman rose to a top position in a company up North. Not too long ago none other than the gen-eral under whom he served came to him for a job. No, he didn't refuse him. The general now works as one of his foremen. The former serviceman is visit-ing a war buddy in town.

Teacher Writing Term Paper

The Herald received a let-ter today from Miss Henrietta Price, local teacher who is studying this summer at Columbia University, New York City. Miss Price asked for a copy of the Herald (May 27) that featured the recreational needs of Roa-noke Rapids as she plans to use some of the material from that issue for a term paper she's writing for one of her classes at Col-

Summer Showers—More Canning

These afternoon showers mean just muddy clay roads to walk through to lots of local residents, but to city clerk Dorothy Shearin they mean more vegetables from her 30x45 foot garden to can. To date, Dot reports a total of 23 pints of snap beans, 6 pinnts of butterbeans, 8 pints of corn, 1 pint of carrots (rabbits got into these) 3 pints of tomatees (many these) 3 pints of tomatoes (many more expected, added Dot), 6 pints of mixed vegetables, 9 pints of bread and butter pickles, 12
