Plays Days

Both Intermediate and Brownie Scouts have participated in Play Days recently. The Intermediate Scouts spent the day and several active games. The relay racing teams were evenly matched and the score was 3-3 at the end of six races. A seventh race was run off to break the tie and determine the winning team. At lunch time everyone joined in singing songs, hearing several stories and consuming picnic lunches.

Learn to Tie Knots
After lunch each Scout was given a length of rope. She learned how to whip the ends of the rope to keep them from unraveling. She then learned to tie three interesting knots and the uses for each knot. From knot-tying each Scout learned the first principles of lashing, a method used to fasten sticks together by binding with a cord. This method avoids the use of nails and is used where a temporary fastening is desired, where it is desirable to spare a living tree or when it is desirable to dismantle the object easily for transporting to another site. Lashing is a campcraft which is necessary for enjoyable primitive camping, and it is one of the crafts in which a good camper prides himself in being proficient. The rest of the afternoon was spent in knot-tying and lashing.

CARDUI is scientifically prepared and scientifically tested. If you suffer "at those certain times", get CARDUI today.

shrubbery was watered. This procedure was new to the Brownies, and they all hoped they would never have to douse a fire by this method. The rest of the morning was given over to active games, learning new songs and singing old ones, and stories.

After lunch all of the Brownies stretched out for a rest under the trees in the yard. During the rest a discussion of oak trees was held, and leaves from several different types of oaks were examined to determine likeness and differences.

After another story, the Brownies were supplied with paper, scissors, paste, patterns and old pieces of felt so that they might construct pictures. A stiff breeze somewhat hampered their activities, but also added to the hilarity.

At 3 o'clock everyone enjoyed a cool drink and went home until our next Play Day.

Favorite Recipes

A standing favorite on Southern dinner tables during the summer, in fact almost anytime, is fried chicken. Most good cooks take delight in treating their families to this delicacy on Sunday.

To many of us Sunday and fried chicken have become synonymous. Found in "Kitchen Kapers," a cook book put out by members of the First Methodist Church a few years back, is a recipe contributed by Mrs. Louis Taylor. And along with it is a recipe for biscuits contributed by Mrs. Clyde D. Liske. The two foods to go together and so they are reprinted here.

Southern Fried Chicken
1 chicken (1½ to 2 pounds)
1½ cups flour
1½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon black pepper
Frying fat

Dress and disjoint chicken. Chill. Sift flour, add salt and pepper and roll each piece of chicken in flour mixture. Melt fat in pan, using enough to have 2 inches deep and bring to very hot point. Place chicken in pan, remembering to place larger pieces in first and on hottest part of pan. After all chicken is in pan, lower flame, and cover pan to keep in steam. When a golden brown, remove chicken, and make gravy as follows:

Pour off all fat except two tablespoons. Add to this 2 tablespoons flour. Mix smooth. Add 1 cup milk. Stir until it boils and is thick and rich. Add salt and pepper. Serve in separate dish from chicken. If plain gravy is desired, use hot water instead of milk.

Baking Powder Biscuits
1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon shortening
1/4 to 1/3 cup milk

Mix all dry ingredients and work in fat, gradually adding milk, mixing it with a spoon. Work until a soft dough is formed. Turn onto a lightly floured board, roll and cut. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes about 12 biscuits.
