L. H. S. Expands Vocational Department

Diversified Occupations Under Kelly Offered Practical Experience Given by Firms

Lexington High School will expand its vocational department this year by adding a program of Diversified Occupations. Diversified Occupations is a part time cooperative whereby students can work and attend school too. The program is designed for students sixteen years and over who do not plan to attend college and have made an occupational choice. Students under the Diversified Occupations program attend school in the morning and study related technical information to the occupation being learned. In the afternoon, students receive practical experience in that occupation by going out and working in a local business or industrial plant.

The program of Diversified Occupations is a new venture and is in operation in most of the high schools of the Southern states. The program is subsidized by Federal funds and provides L. H. S. with an additional teacher who acts as a co-ordinator. Mr. Vincent Kelly, former industrial arts teacher, has taken over the job as co-ordinator. He attended State College last summer where he received special training in this work. About twenty students are enrolled in L. H. S. in Diversified Occupations. About thirty-five students have filed applications for the course. Before the student can be placed, it is necessary to secure a co-operating local firm to give the student part-time work, for which the student receive wages.

Students enrolled in the course and respective occupations are: Frank Leonard, embalmer; Bobby Rose, printer; Conrad Penninger, furniture worker; Jack Richey, sign painter; Sam Shoaf, automobile mechanic; Ernest Kirk, radio announcer; Calvin Hedrick, automobile mechanic; Delos Lyans, automobile mechanic; Ralph Richey, electrician; James Watson, butcher; Don Cherry, theatre manager; J. L. Osborne, department store; O. G. Jenkins, furniture worker; Arthur Miller, furniture worker; Jesse Leonard, machinist; L. M. Loflin, printer.

The co-operating firms are: Piedmont Furniture Company, Fred O. Sink Printing House, United Furniture Com-

New Addition To High School Building

From a recent interview with Superintendent L. E. Andrews it was learned that the new addition to L. H. S. will be quite an asset. The approximate cost of the new annex is to be thirty-three thousand dollars and will be ready for use after the Christmas holidays. As to the number of rooms, there will be four classrooms, each larger than the present ones in use. There will be three floors, the second and third to be used as classrooms. The first floor will be made into one large room. This room can be used for classrooms, small assembly groups, glee club, band, and P.-T. A. meetings. The floor will be elevated, with blackboards and desks at the front for instructors. The contractor for the building is Mr. Arthur Thomason, and when completed, the entire school building will accommodate eight hundred and forty students comfortably. "This new annex will be of a most modern construction and will contain the best and latest equipment," says Mr. Andrews. The student body anxiously awaits the completion of this addition; and in the meantime, the students are asked not to loiter around where work is being carried on.
