Paragraphics

As to what Fayetteville did for us the other day, all we have to say is, "Quoth the Raven—"

Readers of "Pigs is Pigs" note a startling resemblance to that great "Principals is Principals," which the faculty contemplates writing.

The newest thing at G. H. S. is a "Swat the Flapper" campaign.

"Judge" has a game foot, but we don't think it is as game as its owner.

A racquet is the most popular thing around the school these days. It may be large, small long or short, it doesn't make any difference—just so its a racquet.

Rumor hath it, that several of the gentle men faculty have beat hasty retreats before the attacks of their feminine students. But be of good cheer, the year is young as yet!

Mr. Jennings has about decided to start a "Pithy Paragraph Paper," and use the answers of his chemistry tests as contributions.

We don't mind "facing the music," if its the kind the orchestra provides. "Fair Days" are only school days for us.

"D" stands for dangerous—if on your report.

Miss Harris is putting the "glee" in Glee Club alright.

It is with pride, somewhat mixed with foreboding that the "High Life" staff sends its young "brain child" to battle with the world. Of course, like all fond parents, we are aware of the good features and promise of our off-spring, but unlike many, we also realize its limitations. It is true that the paper may seem a little crude at first, but when you take into consideration the fact that we are all new and green at our work, perhaps your criticism will be tinged with sympathy.

The Orchestra

Students, the High School orchestra is yours. The members are putting in their work the same enthusiasm and loyalty found on the athletic field. The appreciation you have shown has heartened all the members of the organization and made them determined to make theirs the best high school orchestra in the State. During the year the orchestra will do all it can to make the High School life happy and stimulate high school spirit. There will be ways in which you can aid in meeting the needs of the orchestra. Do not be satisfied with doing less than your best when called on!

High School Spirit.

"What does it all mean, this High School spirit that is always being talked about," one freshman was heard to ask another. Well, from a senior's standpoint, it means many inexpressible and intangible things. First of all it is the whole-hearted honest loyalty to G. H. S. It means the giving of one's very best to make our school just what each of us would have it. It is school spirit which makes us go out to cheer and root for our teams—both boys and girls, and makes us spend several of our "off afternoons" working on debates and dramatics and practicing with the glee club and orchestra.

This same will 'o the wisp leads us to conduct ourselves, where ever we are, so that credit is reflected upon our school and faculty. It is also the thing which makes us do our regular school work well, and makes us ashamed to turn in poor or shoddy papers. This spirit at G. H. S. is going to mean more to every student than ever before, and is being felt not only by us, but by every citizen in our city.

Our "spirit" is a fiery torch that must be watched with jealous eyes and tended with ready hands, to keep its light always burning with a steady glow that will lead us from the depths of the valley to the highest peak of the mountains.

Dr. Turner's Speech In Chapel

Wednesday morning in chapel, Dr. Turner, in his usual quiet and unassuming manner, gave us an interesting talk. He read before the student body a selection from the thirteenth chapter of II Kings. From this he chose the timely subject, "The Quitter." He told many fitting stories, bringing out how there was no place in athletics, life, and especially a high school, for anyone who quits. Dr. Turner told the students that there is a larger game than football, in which the "quitter" played a large part, and that was the "game of life." In closing Dr. Turner said he could think of no more suitable and appropriate motto for a football team and a high school than "Hold on until you find success, and don't be a quitter"

Shades of the Departed

Each day as we come to old G. H. S. we find that there is something missing, and readily see that it is our good seniors of last year. We see on every hand the present seniors stepping around with an important air, but as yet they cannot quite take the place of our class of '22.

The list of the class will show you where they have drifted. We find some have gone to the four corners, yet we we have a large number still with us in Greensboro. Many are at the colleges and some are working, and so we feel that they will be coming back to see us often. From the following list you can locate themembers of that class:

N. C. C. W.—Carlotta Barnes, Margaret Coble, Ruth Benjamin, Martha Cox, Mary Denny, Grey Fetter, Mary Alice Fowler, Katherine Grantham, Frances Harrison, Margaret Hartsell, Maude Jones, Myrtle E. ### Room 202 Wins Scholarship Medal

Wednesday, Oct. 4, Mr. Phillips announced the winner in the main building for the scholarship shield during the month of September.

The lucky room was Miss Grogan's No. 202, with the lowest per cent of failures. Miss Gressett's room, No. 101, was a close second.

The number of "A" pupils was not so large this past month as last year. The remark was made that a pupil that made all "A's" should have as much praise and applause as the player on the football field who carries the ball over and makes a touchdown. But do they get it? They do not. Shouldn't we be just as proud of this pupil as we are of a football player? By all means—Come on, boys and girls, let's show that we are, and in so doing, try to join the lucky "A" pupils, who for September are as follows:

Sophomores—Jack Causey, Garnett Gregory, Margaret Clegg, Leah Bowman, Lucile Sharp.

Juniors—Robert Wilkins, Lucile Boone, Isabel Cone, Dora Foust, Patty Webb, Katharine Schenck.

Seniors—Elizabeth Simpson.
