MR. PULTZ SPEAKS TO THE COMMERCIAL CLUB

Explains Advantages of Commercial Course in College and Business.

At the Thursday, January 8th Commercial meeting, Mr. Pultz, head of the Commercial Department, of Greensboro High School, was the only speaker. Mr. Pultz, in a very interesting talk, told the members of the Club the advantages of the Commercial course, the most important of which he said were: Preparation for life; better citizenship; help in College. This last point, alone, should appeal to High School folks who are planning to go to college. Short-hand, which the Commercial course offers, will help the college student to take the professor's talk down in notes, which he can use as later references. Then, too, one can help earn his way through college by typing outside of school for money.

Students who follow the Commercial course in High School have an opportunity for three main courses after school: Accounting and Business Administration; Secretarial; and Teacher of Commercial Subjects. Mr. Pultz stressed the point that nearly all of the Commercial teachers in N. C. were from outside the state, or had received training outside the state.

The speaker then told of the coming typing contest in April, and its possibilities and advantages. He finished his talk with these words:

"I do not know what you aim to do when you leave here, but I hope you have decided on something that will afford you a good living, and then go to it with a vim and will, with a determination to win.

The Business Course offers the following subjects:

Business Methods—primarily 10th grade subject. No bookkeeping student may take now. Five times per week—one credit.

Business Arithmetic—10th grade. Two semesters; one credit a semester.

Bookkeeping—10th grade and 11th grade. Two periods per day; little home work; certificate and diplomas; one credit per semester.

Typing—11th and 12th grade; five times per week; ½ credit per semester.

Shorthand—11th and 12th grade; one credit each semester.

Commercial Law—preference to Seniors, but Juniors also; one semester; one credit.

Office Practice; seniors; one credit semester.

LATIN CLUB PRESENTS PROGRAM ON FESTIVALS

Class in Charge of Marguerite Mason Reads Beatitudes in Latin.

At the meeting of the Junior-Senior Latin Club on January 17, a very interesting program on Roman festivals was presented by the Latin V classes. Frances Moore presided in the absence of the president, Michaux Crocker. Marguerite Mason opened the meeting by reading the Beatitudes.

Margaret Ferguson made a short talk on Roman festivals, and especially stressed the December festivals. "At first, the festivals were purely religious services," she said, "later, it became the custom to make the religious observances on the first day, and spend the rest of the time in merry making."

"The first festival in December," she continued, "was the one of Bona Dea, when the women and girls made sacrifices. Consualia, another important celebration in this month, was held in honor of Consus, the god of Corn. At this time, all the warehouses were opened, and the grain inspected. The Saturnalia, in honor of Saturn, was observed for about a week, beginning with the seventeenth of the month. This was the occasion of much drinking and feasting and many an upright Roman citizen had to be carried home drunk."

Elizabeth UMBERGER then told about the festivals in January. Panus, the god of this month, was always represented as having two faces; one looked forward to the future, and the other, back to the past. His festival was called the Agonium, and it was the custom on this day to give presents to one's relatives and friends. The Carmentalia, as the name suggests, was a festival of song and merriment, participated in particularly by girls and women.
