OLD KING EDWARDS

*Old King Edwards
 Was a stern old soul,
 And a stern old soul was he;
 He called for his ruler,
 And he called for Miss Hyams,
 And he called for his scholars tardee.
 Every scholar had a fine excuse;
 A very fine excuse had he.
 There's nothing so rare
 That can compare
 With King Edwards and his scholars tardee.*

Mrs. Atwater, indignant to find her son very low in his class at school, exclaimed wrathfully: "I am out of patience with you, John. I should like to know why Carlton Wilder is always at the head of his class, while you are always at the foot?"

John hesitated for a moment, and then looking his mother straight in the face, he said innocently: "You forget that Carlton has very clever parents."

CALLED HIM NAMES

One of the big store men walked into a ladies store and said, "I want to get a set of ladies' furs. That brown set in the window will do."

To which the salesman said, "Oh, you mean skunk."

And the salesman is still in the hospital.

made up of eight "Be's." Be honest, for that is the best policy; be efficient, for every business man wants an efficient employee; be courteous, for courtesy makes friends; be generous, for no one admires a stingy person; be optimistic, for no one likes a grouch; be reliable, for that leads on to bigger things; be appreciative, for everyone, even employers, like appreciation; be whole-hearted, and put yourself into everything you desire to attain.

"Making Life Count Through the Home" was Lois Gillespie's topic. We only have one life to live and one great opportunity, she said. The early part of our lives is spent in the home, and no one appreciates courtesy and thoughtfulness more than our family. A fine motto for every boy and girl is, "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth." This part of our lives should be made as fruitful as possible, and much of our time should be spent in bringing others to Christ. We should win the soul, not by what we say but by the way we live.

James Williams spoke on "Making Life Count Through the Church." This affords a wide field to all who really want to work, he declared, and its purpose is twofold: first, to win souls; second, to help those already in the church. He brought out the numerous organizations that the church has in order to keep up the interest and zeal for work. He begged all to remember Macaulay's well known saying, "What you are speaks so loud that I cannot hear what you say."

The last speaker was Dr. Percy R. Hayward, who took as his subject, "Folks Who Count and Some Who Merely Figure." Dr. Hayward has spoken all over the country, and he said that one question which he is always asked is, "Are the young people of today sliding?" His answer was, "No! No more than they ever did." Then he went on to say that those who slide are the figureheads in every generation, while the man who counts is backed by a motive, a purpose which is the result of real work and advantages of an all-round life. This fact was brought out by examples from his own experiences, and the only person who really counted was the one who had the qualities he had mentioned.

The rest of his talk was taken up in explaining and describing several summer camps which have been started for the purpose of promoting an interest in religious education. As North Carolina has never sent any folks to these camps he hoped that this summer he would welcome a great number of boys and girls from the Old North State.
