FORMER G.H.S. STUDENTS LINGER LONG IN HALLS

Has Greensboro High School suddenly acquired a new charm? Is there really something irresistible about this place, usually considered by students as being utterly devoid of anything interesting, charming or fascinating? Perhaps some person within the school holds the secret of this magnet; perhaps a teacher (Mr. Roe is quite popular with the girls, it is understood) or some pretty blue-eyed freshman maiden, or yet a big rough football man. Whatever or whoever it may be, the fact remains that there is something here that has a pretty strong power of attraction, for during the last few weeks the school has been visited by a great many of last year's, and even year-before-last's seniors.

It is indeed strange that seniors of past years, who have been so anxious to leave High School, so hasty to speak of the dullness of school life, so important and self-centered, should be seen gazing with longing eyes into the classes that once they only tolerated. From all sides the cry goes up, from mournful-eyed girls and boys, "I wish I was coming back," or "Oh, you don't know how I wish I were going to be over here this year."

Think of it! They want to come back! Is it possible that they really mean that they would like to be going back to High School? Yes, it is the truth; for it is very hard, after being an all-supreme senior, to have to become once again a humble, ignorant freshman; to have to be looked down upon when before they have looked down; to have to look up when they have had people to look up to them; in fact, it is very hard to start from the bottom again.

So fair maidens of the blue eyed, golden-haired variety, and big boys of the brown-eyed, black-haired variety, and teachers who resemble the highest type of vamp or sheik, take a back seat, as none of you alone hold the magic magnet that is drawing those pupils of old. All of you combined have a slight influence in causing the return of the finished; but the thing that draws them most is what plain every-day people call homesickness. Our one-time joyful, defiant, happy-go-lucky seniors have been tossed out on the cruel sea of life as college freshmen; and, G. H. S., they are at last really beginning to appreciate you!

Bad men excuse their faults, good men will leave them.—Ben Johnson.

PHILLIPS OUTLINES POLICIES AT CHAPEL

New Principal Says Happiness Should Be Paramount Among Teachers and Students.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, September 15 and 16, respectively, the first chapel programs were held.

Mr. Phillips asked the pupils not to consider this as a regular program, but just a meeting where he could talk over new rules and changes. First he said that he wanted the students to be happy and that the faculty stood ready to give all possible aid in furthering the happiness of all.

He emphasized the fact that pupils should not enter the building at the ringing of the 8:25 bell, but wait for the 8:30 bell.

The difficulty in changing classes was next stressed by the principal. "Loafing in the halls is the biggest difficulty," he said. "Three minutes is sufficient time in which to change classes and there is no reason why anyone should be trodden upon in the rush," said Mr. Phillips.

"Much time and effort has been put forth in making beautiful lawns in front of the new building, and it will be greatly appreciated if the pupils will make an effort to walk on the boardwalk which has been provided for that purpose," he continued.

In conclusion the principal assured the students that he considered character-building and doing the right thing from impulse within the secret of all happiness. "I want you all to be happy and satisfied," he said, "and in doing so, I want you to be happy in doing what is right because you know it is right—and not because I said so."

CHARLES W. PHILLIPS SUCCEEDS
LEE H. EDWARDS AS PRINCIPAL

cause of his wonderful disposition, was demanded. He was also president of the Dialectic Literary Society.

In the spring of the year 1921 Chas. W. Phillips graduated from the University, receiving his A.B. degree, later he completed two of the four summers work necessary for an M.A. degree from Columbia University.

In the fall of 1921 Mr. Phillips became a member of the English department of Greensboro High School. He taught there for two years and won the love and admiration of all his students. After this he was assistant to Miss Hunter Irvin, principal of Aycock school. In the year 1924-1925, Mr. Phillips became principal of the Caldwell school when Mr. Edwards left to fill the vacancy made at the High School by G. B. Phillips. When Mr. Lee H. Edwards left Mr. C. W. Phillips was elected principal of the High School.

HENRY E. BIGGS, JR., WINS IN STATE ESSAY CONTEST

Henry E. Biggs, Jr., student of G. H. S., won over all North Carolina contestants in the national essay contest conducted by the highway education board of Washington, D. C., it was announced during the summer. Second place was won by Miss Eileen Gardner at Asheville High School. The subject of the contest this year was "Economics Resulting from Highway Improvements."

Out of seventy-eight essays submitted from high schools all over the state Henry's was selected to represent North Carolina in the national competition with those chosen as best in other states. The winner of the national contest will receive the Harvey S. Firestone scholarship, which entitles him to four years with expenses paid at the college of his choice.

G. H. S. will be presented with a trophy cup by the university extension division of the University of North Carolina, under whose auspices the contest is conducted in the state.

Henry Biggs is well-known at G. H. S. where he has distinguished himself in many fields. He is a member of the Sophomore class.

P. T. A. WELCOMES NEW TEACHERS AT STATION AND SECURES HOMES

Mad Rush Made for the Men Teachers—Are Distributed "Quick as Hot Cakes."

On the Tuesday before school opened, a committee from the Parent-Teacher Association met all of the teachers at the station. Homes were secured for the new faculty members, and the old ones were carried to the doors of their homes already engaged.

According to reports, there were not nearly enough teachers to accommodate all the people who desired to have one or two of these learned scholars in their homes.

A mad rush was made for the "men teachers" and they were distributed as "quick as hot cakes." Many of the people insisted that there were not enough men teaching in Greensboro this year, while still others remarked that men were mighty nice things to have around the house. These remarks speak very well for our "men teachers."

The P. T. A. hopes that none of the new teachers lost their way after arriving in Greensboro, as they did last year. One experienced teacher said: "It's a fine thing to have some one meet the new pedagogues, for it is very easy to get lost in a Greensboro."

FIGURES ON HIGH SCHOOL ENROLLMENT ARE GIVEN

The pupils of Greensboro Central High School began the 1925-26 session on September third when they came for their book slips. They reported again on Monday, the seventh, for regular work.

Forty-five teachers compose the personnel of the faculty. Of the students there are 131 in the first year (that is including eighth and ninth grades), 129 Sophomores, 110 Juniors, and 125 Seniors, making a total of 795 registered. It is expected that 850 pupils will be enrolled within another week as new ones are coming in each day.

Concerning ideals set for the school by the authorities, Mr. C. W. Phillips made the following statement:

"This year we want to do a little better in everything than we have ever done before. If HIGH LIFE has been good, we want it to be a little better. In athletics, in dramatics, in debating, and in scholarship we want to work a little harder, go a little farther and accomplish a little more. Particularly do we want to stress literary work and scholarship. There have been three new classes organized along literary lines: a class in Creative English, one in Dramatics, and one in Journalism. Our commercial department will come in for a share of improvement. We want to turn out better and more efficient students. The kind that business men are demanding.

"It is our purpose to let the folks in town, the parents and citizens, know what we are doing through publicity, through HIGH LIFE, and through each individual's life, by his living the kind of High School life we would like him to."

FIRST TEACHERS' MEETING HELD IN H. S. AUDITORIUM

"There is too much standardization in America. Every child is beginning to be run through the same educational groove. What will the nation do when its people become alike? It would be a drab place to live in," the superintendent believed.

Too much standardization—fathers wanting their sons to be just like themselves, going to the same church, attending the identical college, joining the same fraternity, taking up the same business or profession. "I don't want to teach my boy to be like his father—be a University man—be a member of my fraternity. I want him to be a better man, at least a different man, than I," he said.

"The most important meeting is held in the school room, and that morning and that school room should be conducted on a democratic plan with encouragement for all, no matter in which direction they are shooting."

MR. ARCHER RETURNS TO RESUME DUTIES IN GREENSBORO SCHOOLS

"North Carolina, Georgia, and Texas, are the best represented Southern states. The North Carolina club at present numbers sixty-five members, and the percentage of increase in enrollment from our state is perhaps a great deal higher than that of the school as a whole. Several members of the Greensboro High School faculty have attended the summer school sessions at Teacher's College. Among them are Miss Coleman, Mr. Phillips, Mr. Wunsch, Miss Grogan, Miss Beckwith, and others."

Martha G.: "Can you help me out with this problem?"

Miss Walker: "I would, but I don't think it would be right."
