

GIRLS ENTERTAIN WILMINGTON TEAM

Football Boys Guests of Honor—Girls Serve Ice Cream and Cake—Dance Enjoyed.

On Friday night, November 6, the girls' hockey team gave a reception to the Wilmington hockey team at Caldwell gymnasium. The football boys were invited and an enjoyable evening was spent. Many games which created fun and excitement were played. Every one joined in on the old-time square dance.

The hostesses served ice cream and cakes to the guests. After the guests finished the refreshments a very amusing "poem-puzzle" was worked out.

Teachers present were Miss Ida Belle Moore, Mr. Herbert Johnson, Miss LeRoy, Miss Causey, and Mr. Phillips.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS GIVES FRENCH COMEDY

"La Surprise d'Isidore" Pleases Audience—The Roll of Jeanne, Played by Marguerite Mason, Furnishes Fun.

At the meeting of Le Cercle Francais on November 12, Miss Mitchell's French III class presented an unusually good comedy in one act, "Le Surprise d'Isidore." The cast was the following:

Adolphe Picard, doctor of mental diseases, played by James Tidwell; Suzanne, his wife, Mary Lyn; Isidore, the doctor's friend, Ed Mendenhall; Mme. Duval, mother of Suzanne, Dorothy Lea; Jeanne, maid, Marguerite Mason.

The play begins with the doctor telling Jeanne, the maid, to prepare a room for a patient who is coming to his asylum. When a man, supposed by Jeanne to be the lunatic, arrives, she is very frightened, especially since he tries to kiss her because she happens to have his grandmother's name. The maid goes out, and Dr. Picard enters the room to find that the real patient hasn't come, but that the man there is his old college friend, Isidore.

While at the doctor's Isidore is mistaken for everything from a madman to a murderer, by the two or three people who came in. For his part, Isidore has decided that the other arrivals are crazy, until Doctor Picard clears the air by introducing his friend to his wife and mother-in-law, and thereby explains everything.

HOME ECONOMICS CLASS PAY VISIT TO "IDEAL HOMES"

Friday, November 13, Miss Zollman and her second year home economics class went to see the two houses in Sunset Hills built by A. K. Moore Realty company and furnished by Morrison-Neese Furniture company—"Tar Heel Bungalow" and "Castle Charming."

"Tar Heel Bungalow" is a unique small house completely furnished with Carolina products. Upstairs there is an exhibit by 50 local firms of Greensboro-made goods and Greensboro industry.

"Castle Charming" is said to be the most elaborately furnished home ever exhibited in North Carolina. Miss Zollman's purpose for the trip was to give the girls a chance to see in reality what they have been studying about in "Home Furnishing and Decorating."

Mr. Morris from Morrison-Neese and Mr. Turner from the Moore Realty company met the group at the houses and showed them especial courtesy by going over the houses with them and giving them prices on the various pieces of furniture.

The different opinions of the girls about the furnishings and decorations will be discussed on class. The girls expressed so much interest in the trip that Miss Zollman says she is planning some more study trips for them.

ENOCH ELLIOTT ELECTED PRESIDENT AT RECENT PHYSICS CLUB MEETING

Other Officers, Charles Burgess, Beverly Moore—Johnson Outlines Possibilities of Club.

On Friday, November 5, the physics students met in the laboratory and organized for the year's work. Enoch Elliott was elected president. Other officers elected were Charles Burgess, vice-president, and Beverly Moore, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Stanley Johnson, faculty advisor, opened the meeting with a short talk, outlining the possibilities in such an organization. He said, in short, that the club might accomplish some very fine things if it put forth serious efforts. After his talk the election took place.

The President-elect appointed a committee for drawing up rules and regulations; then a series of interesting programs were mapped out for future meetings.

LACK OF "JACK FROST" CANCELS "RED'S" REPAST

The rain came down in a steady, soothing drizzle. It was at one of the lunch periods, and everyone was in the cafeteria, in the library, or on class, leaving the school yard deserted. Out of the side entrance to the new building a solitary figure majestically strode. Straight to the persimmon tree at the corner of the yard. Solemnly, unobserved except for the single watcher concealed from his view inside the building, Saunders Osborn stalked, and with almost simian agility skinned up the wet, slippery bark.

As if his life depended upon the securing of some of the few, pucky 'simmons left upon the tree's almost bare branches, he swung himself insecurely out upon a limb and grasped two of the little reddish-brown globules. Cramming them into his capacious mouth at one time, he chewed down upon them. A look of unpleasant surprise coming over his freckled face, he began to spit. For at least two minutes, balanced up in the tree as he was, the rain pouring down upon his curly, flamingly crowned head, "Red" spat and spat. Then, having tasted of the fruit of the persimmon and found it not to his liking, he slid down the tree as easily as he had come up and dignifiedly unconcernedly sauntered back into the building.

JANE VISITS SCHOOL IN ARMS OF POGUE SHERRILL

What's all the excitement about in room 103? Why are all the students (especially the boys) hanging around Pogue Sherrill? A little investigation will show that Pogue in himself is not the real center of attraction.

The little blue-eyed, golden-haired damsel in his arms is the true cause of the commotion and the recipient of the boys' admiration and affections. Jane is receiving a wealth of pennies and nickles, mostly pennies.

Jane is a neighbor of Pogue's and one of the senior mascots. This is her second visit to 103 this semester. The seniors appreciate her efforts to get acquainted and hope she will come back often.

The High School Orchestra rendered two selections, "Marche Romaine" and "Raymond's Overture."

Before the entertainment the reports of the various committees were read and approved and the mothers were urged to attend the Parent Teacher's Convention to be held in Wilmington.

As for the sake of getting more.

BLACK MAID SEES WHITE FOLKS' "DOINS"

As She Peeps Through Door Imagines Herself Central Figure in French Play—Seems Wonderful to Her.

She stood on the tiptoe, peering absorbingly through the glass pane in the door which opens into the chapel. Her eyes were big and round, the whites shining, and she rolled them to and fro between the figures upon the stages in a ecstasy of appreciation and enjoyment. Her glistening black face, had an expression of wistful, hopeless yearning upon it. As the pianist began to play a dance selection and a girl on the stage began to rhythmically glide in time to the music, her broad, flat feet shuffled awkwardly, comically in sympathy.

That form standing there watching the "white folks fine doings" had a world of pathos in it. To the dusky white capped and aproned maid that rehearsal of a simple little French play was something wonderful out of another world, something in which she in her futile dreams had imagined herself to be the central figure, something only to be longed for, unattainable.

Seeming to sense that she was being observed, she turned and saw me. Grinning guiltily, she came back to earth, and, shamefacedly picking up her broom and dustpan, she went on about her prosaic duties.

JUNIOR-SENIOR MATH CLUB HOLDS MEETING

There was a meeting of the Junior-Senior Math Club in 106 at Chapel period Friday 13. Mary Jane Wharton, president of the club, presided.

The purpose of the organization is to create more interest in mathematics and to cultivate a broader knowledge of the subject.

Bill Horney told why the Parabola is used to such a great extent. Beverly Moore talked about the Geometry in Greensboro. A game of numbers was played by Matilda Roberson and Virginia Douglas. Adelaide Hilton showed why Plato said, "God Eternally Geometrizes."

A very interesting feature of the program was a contest in Geometry. Wade Hobbs gave each member a sheet of paper on which was printed twenty statements; each statement could be supplemented by a geometric term. A pocket calendar was awarded to Beverly Moore for answering the greatest number of statements correctly.

Everyone taking Geometry or Trig is privileged to join the club. Miss Walker, faculty director, hopes to have a "live wire" organization this year, and new members are welcome.

CENTENARY BOYS' CLUB HOLDS THIRD MEETING

Wednesday, November 11, the Centenary Methodist Boys' Club held its third meeting.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Louis Glascock. Mr. Yost, the leader of the club, made an entertaining talk on "The Things Which Serve to Destroy a Youth's Character." This talk was a follow-up of his talk last meeting on "The Things Which Serve to Build a Youth's Character."

Two new members were initiated. This makes a total of 26 members.

This club was organized during the second week of October. It was sponsored by the Yost Sunday School class, a class composed of High School boys.

The principal work occupying the present energy of this club is that of constructing a club-room. This room will, in fact, be a monument to the charter members of the club. The stewards of the church told Mr. Yost, the teacher of the class, that if the boys would finish the digging of the basement under the church hut, they, the stewards, would furnish the room and make it suitable for a club-room. The digging is almost finished.

Gratitude is the memory of the heart.

DEBATING CLUB MEETING FEATURED BY SPLENDID FORENSIC CONTESTS

Excellent Arguments Presented By Both Sides—Rebuttals Continued Until Next Meet.

The members of the Debating club enjoyed a well-prepared debate at its regular bi-monthly meeting, Friday, November 6, in the basement of the new building. The affirmative, composed of Henry Biggs and J. D. McNairy, upheld their side of the query, Resolved—That the Federal Constitution should be so amended that Congress by a two-thirds vote may override the decisions of the Supreme Court. Rachael Nye and Harry Gump composed the negative team. Excellent arguments were presented by both sides. The rebuttals were continued until next meeting on account of lack of time. Six minutes were allowed for the main speech and two minutes for rebuttal.

All business was laid aside until next meeting, that more time might be given to the debaters. There were several new members present at this meeting.

Glenn H.: "What is the matter with he watch John?"

J. M.: "Nothing."

G. H.: "Then what do you want to sell it for?"

J. M.: "Nothing."

G. H.: "I'll take it."

M. Hood: "What are these people along the shore and in the boats doing?"

Life Guard: "They are dragging the river."

M. Hood: "Good gracious! Does the river run so slow that it has to be pulled along?"

Mrs. Lee: "What are you doing Dorothy?"

D. Lee: "I am knitting mother." "I heard Jack say the other day he was afraid he's have to buy a new muffler for his car, and I thought I would knit him one as a sort of surprise."

M. Ferguson: "I don't believe any woman could have been so fat."

P. Shelton: "What are you reading now, Margaret?"

M. F.: "Why this paper tells about an English woman that lost 2,00 pounds."

P. Wimbish: "Is the man your sister married rich?"

M. Harrison: "I don't think so, because every time the marriage is mentioned father says 'poor man.'"

S. Clement: "Don't you think there should be more clubs for women?"

C. Scott: "Oh, no! I should be inclined to try kindness first."

J. Betts: "Smith strikes me as a promising young man."

L. Moore: "He strikes me that way too, but he seldom pays it back."

MISS SUMMERALL TALKS IN CHAPEL

Uses "Victory of Samathrace" As Model—S. S. Aldermen Urges Support for Drive.

Miss Jane Summerall used a model of the statue, "Victory of Samathrace," to illustrate her talk given in Chapel Monday, November 9.

"The Victory of Samathrace represents winged victory, irresistible energy, and triumphant grace," declared the speaker.

"You," stated Miss Summerall, "remind me of irresistible energy on the football field and of winged victory and triumphant grace when you resist temptations."

The speaker spoke of the next war, declaring that gas more terrible than the deadly Louisite would be used and that this gas would be used largely against civilians.

"Persons bearing the characteristics of 'Winged Victory' can prevent future wars and a good way to begin is by supporting the League of Nations," concluded Miss Summerall.

Attorney Sidney S. Alderman, of the local bar, a member of the "gas brigade," making speeches in support of the Stadium Drive, appealed to the students to help put the drive across. "If you are not interested," asserted Mr. Alderman, "we may as well drop the Stadium Drive right now."

KILTIE KLUB HEARS REPORT OF CONVENTION

Banks Simpson Elected Chairman of Resolutions Committee—Thirty-two Members Attend Meeting.

The three boys who represented the Kiltie Klub of the First Presbyterian church at the Older Boys' Conference at Salisbury, brought back an account of the convention which they presented to the club at its regular weekly meeting Wednesday, November 11.

John Mebane gave an interesting review of the social activities conducted at the convention. Banks Simpson, who was elected chairman of the resolutions committee, read the resolutions and told the things that he learned from the meeting. Paul Scurlock gave a complete summary of the main speeches and talks of the conference.

Miss Lily Walker, a member of the High School faculty, visited the club. Thirty-two members were present at this meeting.

Mr. Phillips made several awards to Commercial students for work in type-writing. The following received Underwood Certificates: Dan Fifer—30, Mary Bledsoe 30, Elizabeth Campbell—38. Annie Younts was given a pin for 40 words per minute. Those awarded L. S. Smith certificates were: Annie Younts—39, Randolph Barker—30, Gladys Bennett—34, Cordie Durham—36.

Ah! on Thanksgiving Day when from East to West,

From North and South come the pilgrim and guest,

When the gray-haired New Englander see round his board

The broken links of affection restored,

When the care wearied man seeks his mother once more,

And the worn matron smiled before.

What moistens the lips and what brightens the eye?

What calls back the past, like a rich pumpkin pie?
