

High School Dramatic Club Gives "A Tailor-Made Man"

WELL RECEIVED

Large Audience Witnesses Performance At N. C. C. W. Auditorium on May 13.

GEORGE NEWMAN, JR., STARS
Carlton Wilder As Mr. Huber and Shelton Dry As Dr. Sonntag Do Splendid Acting.

George Newman, Jr., supported by an able cast of 28, starred in A Tailor-Made Man, a comedy in four acts, presented by the High School Dramatic Club, at N. C. C. W. auditorium, on Thursday, May 13, at 8 o'clock. The entire production was marked by a freshness seldom found in amateur performances; the actors showed unusual ease and stage presence, while the thrilling play held the audience enthralled. Many remarked that it was the best work the dramatic club has done this year.

While the star displayed splendid acting, his success was equaled, in the opinion of many, but Carlton Wilder as the tailor, Mr. Huber, and Shelton Dry as the scholar, Dr. Gustavus Sonntag. The leading lady, Margaret Ferguson, and Mrs. Dupy, a divorcee, Glenn Boyd MacLeod, were probably the outstanding actresses. John Thornton as Mr. Rowlands, a newspaper man, and George Donovan as Peter, Huber's assistant, also shared in the commendation of the audience.

The play centered around John Paul Bart, a worker in a tailor shop but with big ideas and ambitions. By his smoothness and "the brains of another man and a stolen dress-suit," as Dr. Sonntag described it, he made his way to success. Then, when he was at the height of his career, Dr. Sonntag threatened to tell everything about his early life. He immediately dictated a story to the Associated Press telling how he had stolen the dress-suit from the tailor shop and returned it the next morning, and how it had helped him on to success. He then went back to the tailor shop. The next day when the whole city was aroused, his Broadhurst, chairman of the school board, was the principal speaker of the assembly in chapel. On account of lack of space in the main auditorium, all standing room being taken, over 250 students were forced to gather in the basement of the new building.

"I'm trying to work for all of you," declared Mr. Broadhurst. "The children of the town are the most precious possessions in a town." Mr. Broadhurst stressed the vital importance of immediate registration and of voting "For Schools." The speaker gave the audience a vivid picture of what will be the result if the proposed bill is not passed. He stated that the educational standards of the community will be lowered; that the boys and girls attending schools in Greensboro will only have the opportunity of attending a 7½ or 8 months school term in the future; there will be no new
