EXCHANGES

"THE BEACON," Newport News, Virginia. On October 1, the students of Newport News High School, as well as the citizens of the city, were anticipating a visit of the U. S. Frigate "Constitution." "Old Ironsides," as it is familiarly known, was launched in 1797 and has probably been preserved so well due to the thought-provoking poem written by Oliver Wendell Holmes, entitled "Old Ironsides." This is certainly an enviable experience for the Newport Newsites.

"THE CHATTERBOX," Danville, Virginia. The literary club of George Washington high is soon to present the school with a large American flag. The flag will be raised and lowered before and after school daily, and the flagpole, which will be made by the students themselves, will be erected on the front campus. Greensboro High salutes you, "Old Glory."

"MANUAL ARTS WEEKLY," Los Angeles, California. The slogan of this paper is "It can be done." Why not select that for your slogan for the coming year, students of G. H. S.? It may well be applied to studies, sports, social activities, or, in fact, any phase of life. Don't forget, "It can be done."

Do you know how the books are arranged on the shelves in the library? They are arranged in a definite order so that all books on the same subject are kept together. In order that the books may be returned to their correct places after being used, the subject of each book is indicated on the back in numbers.

If you wish to find books on general works look from number 000-099; Philosophy 100-199; Religion 200-222; Social Sciences 300-399; Language 400-499; Science 500-599; Useful Arts 600-699; Fine Arts 700-799; Literature 800-899; and History 900-999. The books in the library are arranged on the shelves according to these class numbers, beginning with the smallest and ending with the largest.

Books with the same subjects by different authors are arranged in the class alphabetically by the author's names. No class number is used for books of fiction. They are grouped together, in one part of the library, arranged alphabetically by the author's name.

Books are placed on the shelves in the same order as the words are printed on a page, from left to right across the shelf, then down to the next shelf.

Some books are not grouped in this classification. Historical novels, Latin parallels, English parallels, there is also a special reserve shelf for history and one for English reserves which can be kept for one night.

All history books have been moved from the little room and are now in the main library in the corner near study hall 203. Classes of the books in little room are 100-400s. The books may be used if they are brought out in the library. Groups of students are welcome to use the little room when accompanied by their teachers, and committees may meet in the little room with permission from the librarian.

Please notice that the shelves are marked with the classes of book, so to avoid asking useless questions. However the librarians will be glad to help anyone who cannot find the book they want.

IDEALS OF SIR LIPTON

Man Known As World's Best Sportsman Ends Career As a Glorious Loser.

C. V. Phillips conducted a devotional service in chapel Monday, October 12. Mr. Phillips confirmed the monthly theme, Sportsmanship, by reading two editorials on the life of Sir Thomas Lipton, deceased.

"Sir Lipton," quoted the principal, "was considered the world's best loser, or perhaps you might say winner, he was such a glorious sport. He died as he was sleeping and probably dreaming of the time when his 'Shamrock' should win a victory. Sir Thomas was the last of his family and perhaps, it was better so, for how could there have been a more glorious ending. Sir Thomas Lipton's life was one glorious victory and should inspire great lives," said Mr. Phillips.

BOYHOOD AND LIFE ON THE FRONTIER

This is the first of a series of eight articles to be published by High Life on the life and character of George Washington. Since 1932 marks the two hundredth anniversary of Washington's birth and a great celebration is being planned by the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, the staff of High Life wishes to co-operate with the commission in giving the celebration its full educational and inspirational value.

Many stories have been told about Washington during his entire life, and especially his boyhood, many of which have no foundation. The best known of these is, of course, the incident of the cherry tree, and though young George was known to be a truthful boy, still there is no evidence of this ever having taken place. On the death of his father he went sent to live with his brother and to attend school, in which he received a fairly good education considering the time and place.

Washington was from early childhood a leader among his friends. He was very athletic and, no doubt, had he lived in 1932 instead of 1732, would have made an excellent football player. He was a good boy without being a "goody-goody" boy and at 14 began studying surveying, since his father's death had left the family well provided with land but with little money.

He became a surveyor at the age of 16 at a time when his profession required a more knowledge of woodcraft than expert mathematics. His first task given to him by Lord Fairfax, with whom his brother was connected by marriage, was to survey the vast Fairfax estate and determine its boundaries. So well did he do his work that Lord Fairfax had him appointed public surveyor. Four years later his eldest half-brother, Lawrence, died, leaving George guardian of a daughter and heir to the family estates if she died—as she did within ten years.

While his home life was changing greatly, his part in public affairs was becoming more pronounced. With SALVE! SALVE!

Two hundred or more pupils each day pass room 24 and see the word SALVE written upon the door. No doubt many of these pupils do not know what it means, but for their benefit it is a Latin word which both the Latin students and the teacher thought they would like to have upon the door. Its English meaning is Welcome.

They Speak for Themselves

KATHRYN TATE (April 19, 1915-4)

The birthplaces of many of the greatest people the world has known have been disputed, but Jacksonville, Florida, holds an uncontested claim on mine. Since my third year, however, Oklahoma City's population has been increased by the presence of my family within its boundaries. I began my musical career in the sixth grade by taking the lead in an opera. Otherwise, my grammar school record is unblemished.

The school system of Oklahoma City differs from the one here in that they have three years of junior high instead of two, as Greensboro does.

During the time I spent in Harding junior high school I accompanied the boys' glee club and orchestra. I was also president of the Student Council.

Another difference in the schools is the fact that at the Classen high school they have social fraternities, sororities and pep clubs. The object of the pep clubs was to stimulate more interest and pep at the games. Each club was assigned to a special section in the stadium. I was a member of the B. K. K. sorority and president of the Comes pep club.

Since I have given some contrasts of the two schools, perhaps it would be interesting to compare them. Classen has the National Honor Society; the equivalent of the Torchlight Society. Classen Life, the newspaper, has four pages, just as High Life, but is published weekly instead of bi-monthly.

Having lived in a large city for so long, at first I could not get used to it; but since I have made many friends, Greensboro seems more like a real home.

NEW SONG WRITTEN BY STUDENTS

Have you heard anything about the new song just published by Elmer Wronn and Allan Johnson? It has been highly accepted by the football team and they want everyone to hear it. The theme of the song is something about "Crow." Ask Jack Burroughs if he can tell you anything about it.

GIRL SCOUT WEEK TO BE OBSERVED

Four Volunteers From Each Troop to Take Care of Children at P. T. A. Meetings.

JAMESTOWN HAS TROOP

Thirty-five Girl Scouts and nearly as many Boy Scouts were present at the unveiling of a tablet at 11:30 o'clock yesterday. This tablet which was unveiled by the Culppeper D. A. R. from Virginia, was placed at the Battleground, near the arch on the right.

The week beginning the 25th of this month and ending the 31st, will be known all over the United States as Girl Scout week. During Scout week this program will be followed:

Sunday is Go to Church day; Monday is Homemaking day; Tuesday is Craftsman day; Wednesday is Thrift day; Thursday is Community Service day; and Saturday is Health day.

Each troop in Greensboro will take a "window" in some store in town and decorate it. Some of the troops are taking a furniture store window and making it into a dining room or a kitchen and during the day they will serve the employees of that store hot tea and cakes.

There is a new troop in Jamestown and another one in Gibsonville.

Girl Scout representatives will attend the Parent Teachers' association of Greensboro and tell exactly what is being done in the way of Scouting.

Four Girl Scouts from each troop are volunteering to go to the Parent Teachers' meeting and take care of the children.
